2010 Annual Report

Professional Division 2010

Reported by Trudy Huskamp Peterson

The 2010 annual report of the Professional Division must begin by reporting the much too early death of Vice President David J. Weber. He played a strong role in the Division far into the year, writing e-mail messages from his hospital room and chairing the Division's spring teleconference even though his strength was clearly ebbing. The Division was fortunate to have been led by such a kind, committed historian.

The other members of the Professional Division are Trudy Huskamp Peterson, appointed vice president by AHA Council to complete David Weber's term; Kristin Ahlberg (U.S. Dept. of State); Sarah Maza (Northwestern Univ.); and Laura Isabel Serna (UCLA). The Division has benefited from splendid help by AHA staff members Sharon K. Tune and Debbie Ann Doyle.

In the Professional Division's Annual Report of 2007, outgoing Vice President Anthony Grafton urged the Division to "concern itself above all with questions of diversity and access." That focus was clearly reflected this year in the activities of a working group on public history and two special task forces, one on disability and one on LGBTQ historians, and the preparation and publication of several new or revised documents of best practices and standards.

1. Working group and task forces

Working Group on Evaluating Public History Scholarship. Established in June 2007 as a joint working group of the American Historical Association, the Organization of American Historians, and the National Council on Public History, the working group produced a report titled, "Tenure, Promotion, and the Publicly-Engaged Academic Historian," aimed at helping departments evaluate public history work during hiring, promotion, and tenure review. All three organizations adopted the report this year; the AHA mailed copies of the report to all history department chairs with a copy for deans and administrators included in that mailing. The report is a landmark in the development of public history in the academy.

Task Force on Disability. Established in 2008 by the AHA and the Disability History Association, the task force conducted surveys in the autumn of 2010 to assess the issues facing historians with disability when they are in graduate school, on the job market, seeking promotion and tenure, and in teaching, research and service-related activities. Separate surveys, all of which were voluntary, were directed towards department heads and directors of graduate studies, graduate students with disabilities or health conditions, and professional historians with disabilities or health conditions. The final report of the task force is expected in June 2011.

LGBTQ Historians Task Force. Established in 2009 by the AHA and the Committee on Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender History, an affiliate society of AHA, the task force in 2010 completed a review of all existing AHA policy statements to ensure that they adequately address gender issues and prohibit discrimination. The task force is expected to present its final report by the AHA annual meeting of 2012.

2. Guidelines for professional practice

The Division produced various documents on best practices in the profession. “Planning your Path to Tenure: What New Faculty Members Should Ask,” written by Sarah Maza and Elise Lipkowitz, appeared in the September 2010 issue of Perspectives on History, and a “Note on Graduate Student Health Insurance” by Leisa Mayer appeared in the October 2010 issue. Laura Isabel Serna prepared an advisory document on best practices for phone and video interviews, which was shared with the Task Force on Disability and the Graduate and Early Careers Committee and is submitted for Council review.

With the increasing number of postdocs in history, as shown by the number of postdocs advertised in Perspectives on History, the Division discussed the application process for postdocs, particularly the practice in some institutions of charging application fees. The Division recommended to Council that language be added to the AHA Statement on Standards of Professional Conduct discouraging application fees for postdocs.

3. Other matters

The issue of childcare at annual meetings is a matter of concern to the Division. A short survey was distributed through the e-mail newsletter Fortnightly News to determine the impact of the availability of childcare on participation in annual meetings. Following the survey, which garnered 146 responses, the Division recommended to the Council that a pilot project of limited subsidies for childcare be established for the 2012 annual meeting.

Kristin Ahlberg reviewed the AHA’s existing guidelines on part-time and adjunct employment and recommended they be consolidated and revised. Assistant Director Rob Townsend reported to the Division on the status of the survey by the Coalition on the Academic Workforce (CAW) on contingent faculty members, instructors, and researchers. Because the CAW findings may be pertinent to any revisions of the AHA guidelines, the Division postponed further work until the CAW report is available in the spring of 2011.

Sarah Maza is working with the Committee on Women Historians on a survey to examine the disparity in time for promotion to full professor for female and male faculty.

Finally, as is true each year, the Division discussed and responded to a number of informal queries by members of the profession.

Research Division 2010

Prepared by Iris Berger, Vice President

The American Historical Association is fortunate to have a staff that is remarkably dedicated and effective in working on behalf of the Association. First, I would like to thank Rob Townsend, the staff member for the Research Division. Working with him has been one of the pleasures of this position. I also want to thank Mary Elizabeth Berry for her work over the past three years, and the continuing members of the Division, John Thornton and Thomas Sugrue, for their ideas and support. And of course, former AHA Executive Director Arnita Jones during the first half of 2010 and new Executive Director Jim Grossman during the past six months have been important sources of ideas on how to further the Division's mission.

The work of the Research Division generally consists of two broad activities—the promotion of historical work and scholarship, and oversight of the Association's scholarly activities, including the American Historical Review and the Annual Meeting Program Committee.

Our efforts to promote historical work took on many forms over the past year. We directly intervened in a few cases, where the Association could do some good. For instance, at the request of members we supported new state records policies in Pennsylvania and New York, which we hope will assist future generations of scholars by insuring the availability of critical state records to scholars, including (in New York) the deposited of governors' records in the state archives. We also joined an amicus brief to try to open up the grand jury testimony of Richard Nixon. In other cases, our room for action has been more circumscribed, such as restrictions on oral history by institutional review boards, Florida state regulations barring funds for research travel to Cuba, and evidence of restrictions on historical scholarship in the former Soviet Union. We continue to monitor those issues. We also supported the work of other organizations by endorsing the Oral History Association's updated statement, "Principles and Best Practices for Oral History."

The challenges of digital history came up repeatedly over the course of the year, and in a variety of forms—ranging from the legal and technical implications of digital archives to the implications of digital publishing for the American Historical Review. These discussions have consumed a significant part of the Division's meetings over the past year, and we hope to expand the conversation to the general membership in the coming year. To get a better measure of the way historians are using digital materials for their research and teaching, we distributed a survey on these questions to almost 12,000 history faculty this past spring. The results of the survey were published in the fall. Division members published articles on the larger implications of digital technologies for the discipline in the January 2011 issue of Perspectives on History. We hope these essays will lay out some of the challenges as we see them, and draw in additional opinions and discussion from our members.

In addition to addressing external challenges for the discipline, the Research Division also plays an important internal role in the governance of the Association. Some of the thorniest issues we faced in 2010 concerned the book prizes. Over the past year a number of members objected to language in the George Louis Beer prize that limits eligibility to U.S. citizens and permanent residents. This language was established by the original bequest from Dr. Beer, back in 1920, in an effort to encourage American historians to study European history. From the more global perspective of the present, this seems fairly provincial. But after careful review by staff, legal counsel, and our auditor, we have concluded that it will be impossible to change the terms of the original bequest. In the course of our review, however, we discovered that two other prizes have similar eligibility requirements that are not bound by donor restrictions. We will be eliminating those restrictions and substituting a language requirement in their place.

The Division is also working with the Association's publications staff to encourage emerging areas of research and to assist the work of scholars and teachers. Most notably, we are sponsoring a new pamphlet series on regionalism in history. We are exceptionally grateful to Prasenjit Duara (National Univ. of Singapore) and Sebastian Conrad (Free Univ. of Berlin), the editors of this series. They have already issued a call for proposals and have received a number of excellent submissions, so the series seems to be well underway. We are also considering a pamphlet or series on the growing field of food history, and a separate publication to assist researchers preparing to do archival work.

In addition to these activities the Research Division took an active role in organizing panels for the 2011 annual meeting. We worked with the Teaching Division to organize a mini-conference on "Religion, Peace, and Violence," and we assembled a range of sessions that reflect the Research Division's engagement with both the content and practice of research. We had three sessions with a content focus, one on food history and two on cross-cultural encounters resulting from the Muslim invasion of Iberia in 711. We also sponsored or co-sponsored three sessions on the intersection of research and professional activity, one on quantitative assessment and ranking of history departments, another on the academic job market, and a third on the use of new media in academia.

The fiscal climate at the moment has made fundraising to support the Association's goals difficult, but not impossible. We are still working on how we might raise funds to assist scholars in attending international conferences, replacing a program formerly sponsored by the ACLS. But I'm delighted that we have been successful during the past year in two other efforts that required substantial fundraising. This year's meeting will mark the first award of the new Martin A. Klein prize for the best book in African history, as well as the successful effort to inaugurate the John F. Richards Prize for the best book on South Asian history. The recognition of these areas of historical research by the AHA is long overdue.

Teaching Division 2010

Prepared by Patricia Nelson Limerick

The following individuals served on the Teaching Division in 2010: Patricia Nelson Limerick (Univ. of Colorado at Boulder), vice president; Cheryll Ann Cody (Houston Comm. Coll.-West Loop Campus); Timothy M. Thurber (Virginia Commonwealth Univ.); and Barbara L. Tischler (Horace Mann Sch.).

In 2010, the AHA Teaching Division pursued its assigned work, benefiting in every step from the guidance of AHA Assistant Director Noralee Frankel, and engaged in one notable adventure. The Texas State Board of Education gave us the occasion for that adventure: an experiment in communicating, without combativeness or condescension, about an imperial revision of curriculum standards, made by an elected body whose convictions about history differ dramatically from that of professional historians, including members of the AHA.

Here is an inventory of the Teaching Division's activities during 2010:

- We continued our engagement with George Mason University's Center for History and New Media National History Education Clearinghouse workshop at the AHA annual meeting.
- We have finalized two teaching sessions for the 2012 annual meeting on these topics: the future of the textbook in history education (coordinated by Division Member Tim Thurber), and the Texas State Board of Education's historical standards episode in retrospect (coordinated by Division Member Cheryll Cody). With the assistance of Noralee Frankel, we will get the word out in calling attention to deserving sessions like these.
- We have two other 2012 sessions in mind that are taking longer to be finalized because they rest on the participation of two prominent speakers. The first is a session with Doug Lemov, author of Teach Like a Champion, a recent and widely discussed book offering an approach to teaching drawn from closer observations of successful teachers. The book is a great inspiration in very concrete ways, even though the cover of the book suggests that it is relevant only to K-12 instruction. To the contrary, the book's findings carry unmistakable relevance to teachers of undergraduates and even graduate students. Our hope is to have Doug Lemov present at a session, and then to unleash respondents who would apply his approach to particular case studies from history. At the further reach of our ambition, we hope that we might secure Doug Lemov's permission to allow the Division to prepare a pamphlet laying out ways to use his insights to improve our teaching of history. The second pending proposal is a session with evolutionary biologist and filmmaker Randy Olson. Both of Olson's major documentaries—Flock of Dodos and Sizzle—offer a sharp and very helpful commentary on the ways in which academics communicate with wider public audiences. While he has focused on the contest of evolutionary biologists with advocates of intelligent design and the struggle between climate scientists and global climate change deniers, Olson's work has direct bearing on the approach that professional historians take to issues of public controversy. Olson, who finances his films from the revenue from his speaking engagements, has generously offered to waive his usual $5,000 fee. But his visit to the 2012 Chicago annual meeting would still require funding for his travel and accommodations. There is some hope for a collaboration with the American Economics Association, meeting in Chicago at the same time as the AHA, since economists have even greater need than historians for guidance from this gifted communicator. We also had a plan in play for a session on “the tyranny of coverage” in semester- or year-long historical surveys, but we will return to this idea for 2013.

- We agreed to endorse an undertaking from the California History-Social Science Project at the University of California Davis to create a “History_Blueprint.” But this endorsement came with an important condition attached. All members of the Division felt that the California proposal was written with opaque jargon, familiar to experts in educational theory, but daunting and discouraging for people who are just trying to teach history. So our endorsement of the proposal comes with a request that the project participants commit themselves to a more intelligible and accessible language when it comes to declaring their findings. While this may seem a small matter, it is a valuable experiment in finding ways to use leverage and incentives to resist the drift toward the unintelligible in much of the best-intentioned advocacy for wiser approaches to social studies education.
- Our colleague in the Teaching Division, Cheryll Cody, is serving on the Two-Year Faculty Task Force. We very much appreciate her willingness to take on this added obligation, and we will be eager to act on any recommendations she brings us.
- Members of the Teaching Division participated in the selection committee to review the submissions for the Boston annual meeting mini-conference, “Religion, Peace, and Violence,” inspired by the success of the mini-conference at the 2010 annual meeting in San Diego. The Research Division has taken on the activity of evaluating the idea of mini-conferences, an undertaking in which we are happy to assist. The dilemma posed by the politics of the hotel owner in San Diego provided a very different context for holding a mini-conference, and without that external challenge, we had noticeably less to guide us in appraising proposed sessions. In hindsight, it was clear that we should have consulted with former Division Vice President Karen Haltunen to learn about how she handled the San Diego mini-conference plans; this recent history surely offered plenty of lessons. When we reviewed this experience at our June 2010 meeting, we considered the interesting possibility that having a theme for a mini-conference, and forswearing a theme for the convention as a whole, might be an idea worth presidential consideration. We also were pleased that one of the mini-conference sessions would showcase K-12 teachers working in their roles as research scholars, a cause we would like to advance.
- And, as already noted, we made a plucky try at engaging the Texas Board of Education in a dialogue over their questionable revision of the Texas curriculum. Cheryll Cody did the hard work on this project, reviewing the proposed standards with an eagle eye and an open mind and preparing an insightful and well-aimed draft. Cody and Patricia Nelson Limerick reviewed the draft standards with the goal of finding a disarming and congenial way of saying that while we thought there were significant problems with the proposed standards, we were certain that people dedicated to the well-being of students could deal with and correct these problems. We very much appreciated commentary from the other members of the Teaching Division, and from the Council in general, and we especially appreciated the widespread willingness to sign this document. It was a particular encouragement to have long-time Texas resident David Weber, vice president of the Professional Division, register his hearty support of our enterprise. But was this experiment a success? Or, more to the point, did many people read our diplomatic and unexpected pitch? We discovered that diplomacy was not necessarily compatible with brevity, as our draft grew in length. But more to the point, we recognized that we should have made every overture we could think of to the op-ed page editors in Texas and around the country, since one highly visible placement of our letter could have made a big difference in its impact.

The following tasks are still on the Division's horizon:

- We spoke on occasion of evaluating the current AHA Teaching Division web site, and then brainstorming ways to clean it up and energize it. Division members will pay more attention to this in 2011.
- We are interested in pursuing a collaboration of some sort with The Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History, but we have not pinned down the nature of the collaboration. Patricia Nelson Limerick mentioned great appreciation for the common cause between the AHA and the Gilder Lehrman. During the summer of 2010, Gilder Lehrman Director Lesley Herrmann briefly discussed with Limerick the relationship between the two institutions, and Executive Director Jim Grossman has had a similar conversation with Herrmann. The doors are open for this dialogue to continue. At the very least, we would like to ask The Gilder Lehrman Institute to let us use their list of local teachers who have participated in Gilder Lehrman summer seminars to invite their participation when the AHA annual meeting is in their area.
- At all of our meetings, we discussed the fate of the Teaching American History (TAH) grants from the Department of Education, and raised the question of whether or not there are actions that the Teaching Division should take in order to see that program continue. The Obama Administration has proposed to Congress a reorganization that would subsume the TAH grants in a larger program, with history competing for resources against other disciplines. Congress has not yet acted on the proposal. There is, as well, a very large and open-ended question about the evaluation of these grants and the design of measures of their effectiveness, a puzzle for which neither we nor anyone else has invented a solution. And yet, there must be a way that AHA members, as citizens and constituents, could play a role in these decisions. Historians with personal ties to senators and congressmen (and more important, their staffers) could be of some value in communicating with our delegates on the future of the Teaching American History grants.
- Noralee Frankel has kept us apprised of the work of the National Council for the Social Studies in seeking a more secure position for social studies in federal programs and in state curricula. In states where social studies joins fields like mathematics in having a standardized achievement test, the field acquires and maintains resources in a much more reliable way. Patricia Nelson Limerick gave a plenary talk at the Denver convention of the National Council for the Social Studies in November 2010, an occasion that led to a better recognition of the vulnerability of social studies in states without a "high-stakes test" for the field. Perhaps the AHA could play a useful role by looking at testing in historical perspective, and in using that longer-range thinking as a route to imagining the most beneficial form testing can take to affirm rather than interfere with actual learning. Thus, the Division is thinking of a possible session on this subject in 2013; it is a particular hope that we might persuade Nicholas Lemann to revisit his investigation into standardized testing on that occasion.

- Cheryll Cody brought to our attention the fact that her home institution offers a competitive grant-giving program, the Chancellor's Innovation Initiative. We began a discussion about whether there might be some compatibility between this initiative and the AHA, particularly in the direction of holding a conference of community college teachers of history. But preparing the proposal for such a project would, in our judgment, put too great a burden on Cody to carry alone.
- Noralee Frankel let us know of an initiative that might come to fruition, in which professors who hold joint appointments in departments of history and colleges of education would pull together a gathering to reflect on the insights that this shared affiliation has brought into their thinking. If this plan moves forward, we would hope that the results might be rich and innovative in the bringing together of historical content with the freshest understanding of how students learn.
- We have discussed possible topics for essays that might appear in Perspectives on History. Teachers of history at every level are doing their best to adapt as productively as possible to the changing modes of cognition among young people living in such a connected and digitized world. Still we also hold to a loyalty to the lasting value of face-to-face interaction in seminars and lectures. But we should be willing to experiment: If Power Point presentations are punctuated with cartoons from The New Yorker and The Far Side (surely two of the best guides for thinking deeply about Western American history!), will that keep students in a large lecture class from drifting out of attentiveness? If offered the chance to join their professor and a guest speaker for an after-class, face-to-face conversation, will more than three or four students find that appealing? Have gifted people designed animation that conveys fundamentals of sentence structure in a few delightful moments of screen-time? Are there technological reinforcements for that useful advice, "Tell them what you're going to say, say it, and then tell them what you said," that might actually abbreviate that tedious process? We would like to have an essay that could provoke a useful exchange among AHA members on ideas such as these. As another topic for a possible essay in Perspectives in History, we have discussed the theme of service learning. At the Center of the American West, and also at newly elected Division Member (for a term starting in 2011) Anne F. Hyde's Hulbert Center for Southwest Studies at Colorado College, various programs have delivered very gratifying results by engaging students in "applied history." And, of course, the election of Bill Cronon as president-elect of the AHA for 2011 brings another prominent practitioner of applied history into our circles. Additionally there was a session on civic engagement at the Boston annual meeting (Session 245: "Civic Engagement in the Classroom: Strategies for Incorporating Education for Civic and Social Responsibility in History Courses"), which will hopefully lead to a forum in Perspectives in History.

I am grateful to the AHA Nominating Committee and to the membership of the Association for entrusting the office of vice president of the Teaching Division to me. It is my informed guess that I have had predecessors in this office who have "hit the ground running" in a more dynamic way, identifying goals and setting off to reach those goals in an expeditious way. And yet I seem to have been more of a devotee of the platitude, "Act in haste, repent at leisure." In truth, I have been cautious about using the platform of this office to endorse causes that may hold my loyalty, but may not represent the Association's priorities. In the next two years, I will hope to scope out—in close consultation with the other members of the Teaching Division, with the Council, and with the executive director—possibilities and prospects for entering more visibly and audibly into the world of public discussion about the value and significance of history in our schools, colleges, universities, as well as our city councils, county commissions, state governments, and, should I prove to be as thick-skinned as I think I am, in Congress and the executive branch agencies.

Prepared by Robert A. Schneider, Editor (on leave 2010–11)

I am pleased to report that all is well at 914 E. Atwater in Bloomington, Indiana, home of the editorial offices of the American Historical Review. Thanks to the hard work of the editors and staff, as well as the efficiency of the University of Chicago Press, the journal has been publishing on schedule—indeed a bit ahead of schedule for recent issues. We are fully staffed and under budget. And as I am on academic leave for the year 2010–11, the direction of the journal has been in the capable hands of Konstantin Dierks and Sarah Knott, both members of the faculty of the Department of History of Indiana University, and both former associate editors. During their tenure as acting editors they have introduced several reforms to the editorial process that have contributed markedly to improving the work flow and efficiency of the office. In future issues we will see the fruits of their editorial initiatives in a series of forums and articles they have commissioned.

A couple of statistics capture the unique nature of the AHR. We receive nearly 3,000 books a year for review; we publish about 1,000 reviews, that is approximately 200 an issue. We receive on the order of 300 article submission annually; we have space to publish about 25, which is to say about nine percent of the submissions ultimately make it through the review process and into our pages. These two sets of statistics are, I think, telling. They speak to two features of this publication. The book review section is probably the most comprehensive among journals of history in its coverage of recently published scholarship. Our mission is to review all scholarly books that aim to make a contribution to historical knowledge. Many books we receive, while interesting and worthy, are not suitable for review for one reason or another: they may be textbooks, books written for a general readership, synthetic in nature, previously published material, edited volumes, or books exceeding narrow in focus. But despite limitations of space, we are constantly on the look-out for books to review. We are especially interested in reviewing scholarship from periods and regions that have traditionally been neglected or overlooked, especially the fields of African and Middle Eastern history.

The statistics concerning article submissions and publication may seem daunting: why would anyone want to play those odds—nine percent! The fact is, however, that many submissions are rejected simply because they are too long, too short, excessively narrow, or clearly inappropriate for a scholarly journal. And many, while interesting and certainly well-researched, do not meet the particular remit of the AHR to try to address the concerns and interests of our wide readership. In addition, scholars should know that every submission receives a report from an editor; and those that make it into the review process receive several reports. Thus, even scholars whose manuscripts are ultimately rejected can benefit from invaluable comments from a range of experts. I should note here that, contrary to what is sometimes assumed, young historians and those early in their careers often have their work accepted for publication. The AHR is definitely not a journal reserved for senior scholars. Indeed, a recent issue included a piece by a graduate student.

Since 2007, the AHR has been published by the University of Chicago Press. Our five-year contract with the press will expire in 2012. Accordingly, we have issued Requests for Proposals from a range of scholarly presses with significant journal divisions, including Chicago, so that we might make the best and most well-informed decision regarding which press will be entrusted with the crucial task of publishing the AHR.

2011 Annual Meeting

The GECC sponsored a full range of activities at the 2011 annual meeting. In cooperation with the National History Center, we sponsored a pre-meeting workshop on the topic “Recognizing Excellence in Undergraduate Teaching.” The workshop featured talented scholars giving presentations on creating an undergraduate course, effective lecturing, and how to balance teaching, researching, and service in one’s professional life. The workshop was extremely well-received, and GECC is delighted to be working with the NHC again next year to bring another workshop on teaching to the Chicago meeting. The GECC also sponsored or supported panels on other topics. GECC members Katherine Hajar spoke at the annual meeting orientation session, Douglas Kiel chaired a session on academic mentoring, and I chaired a session on careers in history. A video of the careers session is now available on the AHA web site.

The GECC also hosted an open forum for graduate students and early career professionals. Forum participants packed the room and GECC members heard their concerns and suggestions for an hour. We were fortunate to have Executive Director Jim Grossman in attendance for part of the forum, and he graciously answered some questions from the crowd. Forum participants expressed concerns on many issues, including the state of the job market, the cost of applying for jobs, how the AHA communicates with its membership, and the availability of health care. Although not all of these items fall directly within the purview of the GECC, the main issues raised at the forum formed the basis of our spring web meeting.

2012 Annual Meeting

In addition to the workshop mentioned above, the GECC will continue to sponsor its usual range of panels at the Chicago meeting. Panel topics for next year include a session on turning one’s dissertation into a book, a session on applying for grants and fellowships, and a session on careers in history. We would be grateful if, beginning with the 2013 annual meeting, the Professional Division would assume responsibility for creating the careers session, which has always proved quite popular with meeting attendees.

Spring web meeting

At the spring web meeting, the GECC discussed a number of issues, many of which sprang from the open forum at the Boston meeting. The GECC discussed changes to the graduate and early career reception held at the beginning of the annual meeting, improving the GECC’s presence on the AHA blog, reaching out more to history undergraduates who may be interested in careers in history, and making it easier for conference participants to identify professional development sessions.

Hail and farewell

I would like to thank Katherine Hajar for her three years of dedicated service to GECC; she departed the committee after the 2011 annual meeting. We welcome Laura Rominger of Notre Dame in her place; Laura is a graduate student at Notre Dame and will also serve on the Committee on Women Historians.

Committee on Minority Historians

Prepared by Ana Elizabeth Rosas, chair for 2010

2010 Business

The Committee on Minority Historians (CMH) had a conference call meeting on November 8, 2010. During this meeting, the committee proposed the possibility of strengthening our AHA Equity Awards announcement's language concerning nominations being carried forward from year to year, as well as the development of a form or language that would tighten the award criteria nomination letters should address. We anticipate that these measures will help improve the breadth and diversity of award winners over time. Another important item on our agenda was using our AHA Equity Award and Perspectives in History to advance our association's conversation on the retention of faculty of color in our profession. To this end, George J. Sánchez will write an article on this issue that is to be published by Perspectives in History. The committee also discussed ideas for sessions for the 2012 AHA annual meeting.

CMH heard a report from the Graduate and Early Career Committee, given by Doug Kiel. He reported that GECC is making wonderful progress. This committee is working to podcast select annual meeting sessions of interest to graduate students, as well as to establish a social network that includes helpful resources for graduate students seeking nonacademic employment opportunities.

2011 Annual Meeting

In January 2011, CMH chair Ana Elizabeth Rosas was invited to give two presentations at the AHA annual meeting held in Boston entitled, "Pathways toward an Expansive and Shared Sense of the Past" and "Teaching Chicana-Latina Women's History." Both presentations were part of annual meeting sessions sponsored by the Graduate and Early Career Committee (GECC) and Committee on Women Historians respectively. Each presentation proved a generative conversation toward asserting the committee's dedication to the importance of mentorship and teaching that advances diversity within the historical profession.

Also at the 2011 AHA annual meeting CMH sponsored its mentoring breakfast (January 7) and evening reception (January 8), as well as three meeting sessions: "Rights and Rites of Passage" (January 8), "Remapping the Historical Terrain" (January 9), and "John Hope Franklin Life and Legacy" (January 9). This annual meeting also marked the committee's inaugural award of the AHA Equity Awards to George J. Sánchez of the University of Southern California and the Department of History of Baruch College, City University of New York.

For 2011, CMH will be joined by a new member, Celia E. Naylor of Barnard College. Ana Elizabeth Rosas will be rotating off of the committee. Mae Ngai of Columbia University will replace her. Martin Summers of Boston College will serve as chair of the committee for 2011.

Committee on Women Historians

by Margaret Strobel

Members of the Committee on Women Historians (CWH) in 2010 were: Margaret Strobel, Univ. of Illinois at Chicago, emerita, chair; Leslie Alexander, Ohio State Univ.; Charles Capper, Boston Univ.; Katherine Hajar, California State Univ. at San Marcos; and Ruby Lal, Emory

Univ. Leora Auslander (Univ. of Chicago) will chair the CWH in 2011. Katherine Hajar and Margaret Strobel are rotating off.

Activities at AHA annual meetings

John D'Emilio (Univ. of Illinois at Chicago) spoke at the CWH breakfast in San Diego, 2010, on the struggle for gay marriage, specifically the wisdom (or lack thereof) of pursuing a legal strategy that risks the U.S. Supreme Court issuing a ruling declaring gay marriage to be unconstitutional. The committee also cosponsored a session on the work of Blanche Wiessen Cook.

Janet Afary (Univ. of California, Santa Barbara) spoke at the CWH breakfast in Boston in 2011 on sexuality in Iran, especially tracing how homosexuality has become stigmatized over the course of the 20th century. The committee created two sessions for the 2011 conference: "The Challenges and Opportunities of Teaching Women's History;" and "Generations: The Past, Present, and Future of Historians of Women and Gender." We also cosponsored two linked sessions, on Subalternity and Difference Investigations from India and the United States.

Survey on the Status of Associate Women Historians

We collaborated with AHA staff on a survey of associate and full history professors to identify factors involved in equitable and timely promotion from the former to the latter. The survey results will inform future committee recommendations for possible interventions.

Task Force on Disability 2010

Prepared by Debbie Ann Doyle

Current membership: Representing the AHA, Jeffery Cook (North Greenville Univ.), Leisa Meyer (Coll. of William & Mary), Michael Rembis (Univ. of Notre Dame); Representing the Disability History Association, Sandra Sufian (Univ. of Illinois at Chicago, chair).

The three-year term of the joint AHA and Disability History Association (DHA) task force ends in June 2011. The task force is charged with gathering information about the concerns of historians with disabilities and proposing concrete, practical solutions for as many of them as possible.

2010 was a difficult year for the task force, with the death of Professional Division vice president David Weber, who represented the AHA on the task force, and DHA representative Paul Longmore. Jacqueline Jones will replace Weber representing the AHA on the task force in 2011. The DHA has not appointed anyone to replace Mr. Longmore. AHA representative David Ulbrich resigned in fall 2009 after taking a new job. In April 2010 Council appointed Jeffrey Cook and Michael Rembis to replace him, after approving the addition of a fourth AHA member to represent early career professionals.

The major focus of the task force over the past year has been to survey historians with disabilities (31 responses), graduate students with disabilities (26 responses), and department chairs and directors of graduate studies (36 responses). The survey of department chairs and directors of graduate studies attempted to determine their attitudes toward students and colleagues with disabilities and assess their level of knowledge about disability services available at their institutions. The other two surveys were designed to identify the concerns of current and future historians with disabilities. A question asked what the AHA can do to address those concerns. Overwhelmingly, the most common answer was “increase awareness of disability issues among history departments and programs.”

The task force is also designing a pilot program to match graduate students with disabilities to faculty mentors.

Catherine Kudlick, who previously represented the DHA on the task force, contacted Ms. Sufian in the fall to suggest that the report address the accessibility of digital resources, specifically the electronic submission systems being adopted by many journals, which are not compatible with screen readers used by scholars with visual impairments. Members are considering addressing this issue in the final report.

The task force had a teleconference on December 2, 2010, to begin analyzing the survey results. They held an open forum at the 2011 annual meeting in Boston on Friday, January 7, 2011, to discuss survey results and get feedback on plans for the report. The open forum was followed by a tribute to the life and work of Paul Longmore. Members have outlined the final report and assigned a section to each member. They hope to prepare the first draft in February 2011 so that the final document will be ready by June 2011.

Pacific Coast Branch 2010

Submitted by Peter J. Blodgett, Executive Director, Pacific Coast Branch

The 103rd annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Branch (PCB), American Historical Association, took place at the campus of Santa Clara University in Santa Clara California on August 12–14, 2010. The conference had 222 registered attendees, who participated in 55 different sessions. During the conference, Gayle Gullett (Arizona State Univ.) spoke to the Western Association of Women Historians luncheon on the topic “Feminism and the City: Newspaper Women, the Press, and 1910s Los Angeles,” while President Barbara Molony (Santa Clara Univ.) presented her presidential address, “From ‘Mothers of Humanity’ to ‘Assisting the Emperor’: Gendered Belonging in the Wartime Rhetoric of Japanese Feminist Ichikawa Fusae.” The presidential address shall appear in expanded form in the February 2011 issue of the Pacific Historical Review.

Minutes of the Meeting of the Council of the Pacific Coast Branch, American Historical Association, the Kennedy Commons, Santa Clara University, August 12, 2010.

President Barbara Molony called the meeting of the PCB Council to order at 2:10 p.m. The Council thanked 2010 Program Committee co-chairs Kyle Longley (Arizona State Univ.) and Thomas Turley (Santa Clara Univ.) and their committee members as well as Barbara Molony, Judy Gillette and Michael Bates from the Santa Clara University history department for their exceptional efforts in assisting with conference local arrangements.

Executive Director Blodgett followed the discussion of the 2010 program with a report on the current financial state of the PCB. Having retained all its assets in cash through the year, the PCB has avoided any financial losses for a second year and has maintained complete liquidity of all its funds. On the other hand, the interest rate for the Business Market Rate account has continued to fall and income from advertisers and exhibitors at the 2010 annual conference will decline significantly from the amount received in 2009. While the larger economic climate thus has a noticeable impact upon the circumstances of the PCB, its finances remain stable and its economic health is sound.

Pacific Historical Review. Managing Editor David Johnson then presented the report of the journal in which he noted that between July 31, 2009, and August 1, 2010, the journal received 61 submissions, accepted 15 for publication, and published 15. Over the year, 115 scholars served as external reviewers for the journal. The journal published 125 book reviews with 125 reviewers representing 107 institutions. At Johnson's request, the Council then approved a slate of individuals whom the editors proposed as new PHR editorial board members and expressed its thanks to those board members whose terms had concluded. Discussion thereafter ensued of the memorandum of agreement between the PCB and Portland State University covering arrangements for publication of the journal, including the possibility of a two-year extension of the current agreement which will expire in 2012. Following this discussion, the Council approved a motion commending the Pacific Historical Review's editorial staff for their exceptional work on behalf of the Branch.

In the absence of Nominating Committee chair Sara Pugach (California State Univ., Los Angeles), Executive Director Blodgett announced that 184 members voted in the 2010 election, with the following results:

- President-elect for 2011: Kyle Longley (Arizona State Univ.)
- New members of the PCB Council:
  - Cathleen Cahill (Univ. of New Mexico),
  - Natalia Molina (Univ. of California, San Diego)
  - Robin Walz (Univ. of Alaska Southeast)
- New member of the PCB Nominating Committee:
  - Kristin Dennehy (California State Univ., Fullerton)

Council then discussed the possibility of moving to online elections, in hopes of increasing participation from the membership and reducing the costs to the organization of managing elections. Discussion centered on the existing schedule for PCB elections, the potential costs of online elections and the experience of other organizations. Council requested Executive Director Blodgett to pursue contacts with the staff of the American Historical Association to obtain details about its experience.

Executive Director Blodgett then announced the winners of the various PCB awards:

- The Pacific Coast Branch Book Award: Sharon Gillerman for Germans into Jews: Remaking the Jewish Social Body in the Weimar Republic (Stanford Univ. Press)
- The Norris and Carol Hundley Award: Marsha Weisiger for Dreaming of Sheep in Navajo Country (Univ. of Washington Press); honorable mention to Terry Rugeley for Rebellion Now and Forever: Mayas, Hispanics, and Caste War Violence in Yucatán, 1800–1880 (Stanford Univ. Press)
- The W. Turrentine Jackson (Dissertation) Award: Catherine Christensen (Univ. of California, Irvine), "Mujeres Públicas: Euro-American Prostitutes and Reformers at the California-Mexico Border (1909–29)"

Thereafter, PHR Managing editor Johnson announced the two awards for articles that appeared in the Pacific Historical Review:

- The Louis Knott Koontz Memorial Award (chosen by the entire editorial board) to Julia Maria Schiavone Camacho (Univ. of Texas, El Paso) for “Crossing Boundaries, Claiming a Homeland: The Mexican-Chinese Transpacific Journey to Becoming Mexican, 1930s to 1960,” published in the November 2009 issue
- The W. Turrentine Jackson (Article) Prize (chosen by the editors from among articles submitted by graduate students) to Elizabeth Tandy Shermer (Univ. of California, Santa Barbara) for “Counter-Organizing the Sunbelt: Right to Work Campaigns and Anti-Union Conservatism, 1843–1958” and Karin Huebner (Univ. of Southern California) for “An Unexpected Alliance: Stella Atwood, the California Clubwomen, and the Indians of the Southwest, 1917–34” which appeared in the February 2009 and August 2009 issues, respectively

Executive Director Blodgett and incoming President Janet Fireman then offered preliminary details about the 2011 annual conference. The meeting will take place at the Renaissance Seattle Hotel in Seattle, Washington, on August 11–13, 2011. Fireman announced her selections for 2011 Program Committee Co-chairs, Steve Hackel (Univ. of California, Riverside) and Kevin Leonard (Western Washington Univ.), as well as the conference theme “Horizons of Change: The Unexpected, Unknown, and Unforgettable.” Program Committee Co-chair Leonard announced that the co-chairs have already been recruiting committee members and that in consultation with incoming President Fireman and Executive Director Blodgett the deadline for program submissions will be moved up to November 17, 2010, in order to provide the committee with more time to organize the program.

Turning to the related topic of future meeting venues, Executive Director Blodgett circulated a list of all PCB conference sites between 1980 and 2010 in order to inaugurate the work of the Site Selection Committee (established by the PCB Council in 2009). Blodgett solicited the input of PCB Councilors about sites for the 2012 meeting and beyond and commented that the Site Selection Committee members would undertake online discussions later in the autumn with an eye to identifying two or three leading locations.

Under the heading of “old business,” President Molony discussed the inaugural “Presidents Travel Award.” As administered by a three-person committee consisting of current president Barbara Molony and past presidents Al Camarillo and Rachel Fuchs, the committee awarded grants of $200 each from the John Schutz Travel Award funds to fifteen graduate students to facilitate their participation in the 2010 annual PCB conference. An on-going committee consisting of the immediate past president, current president and incoming president will oversee this program and will develop spending goals and fund raising goals for 2011 and beyond.

Still under the heading of old business, President Molony discussed the meeting that she hosted between members of the PCB leadership and AHA President Barbara Metcalf, outgoing AHA Executive Director Arnita Jones and AHA Assistant Director Robert Townsend at the 2010 AHA annual meeting in San Diego. The PCB and the AHA will investigate means of enhanced collaboration between the two organizations, including PCB sponsorship of events at AHA conferences and Molony will prepare an article on the PCB for a future issue of the AHA

Perspectives in History to remind AHA members of its continuing activities and contributions to the profession.

Finally, as its last order of business, the Council heard discussion of staff activities in managing the web site and conference arrangements and unanimously approved an increase in the compensation package for Executive Assistant Cynthia Scott, whose exceptional dedication to the operations of the Pacific Coast Branch have been a major contribution to its success.

No further issues awaiting discussion, President Molony then declared the Council meeting adjourned at 4:10 PM.

Two-Year College Task Force 2010

Submitted by Trinidad Gonzales, chair

The Two-Year College task force met via teleconference on November 1, 2010. Members that met were Trinidad Gonzales, chair; Cheryll Ann Cody; Judith Jeffrey Howard; Kevin Reilly; and Natalie Kimbrough; and Noralee Frankel, AHA staff.

Frank Malaret stepped down as the task force chair and Trinidad Gonzales assumed those duties. Cheryll Ann Cody who also serves on the Teaching Division became a member.

Survey

In 2010, a survey of AHA two-year faculty was conducted. The results were discussed by task force members during their meeting. Early assessments by members revolved around the need for the AHA to address issues related to teaching, in particular courses taught at two-year institutions.

It was agreed during the meeting that currently no systemic methods or effort exists concerning the collection of data on the professional lives of two-year history faculty. While data does exist about faculty at two-year institutions, none does so that focuses on historians. Judith Jeffrey Howard, formerly at the National Endowment of the Humanities drafted a memo concerning Community College Data to the task force, which the rest of the members will examine.

Annual Meetings

The task force sponsored two sessions at the 2011 annual meeting in Boston. The sessions were “Getting a Job at a Community College,” held Friday, January 7, 2011, from 9:30–11:30; and “Teaching the Survey,” Friday, January 7, 2011, from 2:30–4:30. A reception for two-year faculty was held on January 7 from 5:30–7 p.m. Members of the task force held an open forum during the reception as they did at the 2010 San Diego meeting.

Two sessions are planned for the Chicago 2012 meeting. They are “Teaching the Survey with Technology,” and “Course Outcomes and Assessments.”

Early Thoughts on Recommendations for Final Report

Recommendations included, pamphlets addressing issues related to teaching from subject centered publications to the mechanics of organizing a course and dealing with teaching to a diverse audience. Other suggestions include increased representation of two-year faculty on programs and committees, regional meetings, day rates for the annual meeting, encouraging collaboration between two-year and four-year faculty members, increased awareness concerning articulation agreements between two-year and four-year institutions, developing a data collection system on the lives of two-year faculty, and addressing lack of collegial respect by research and four-year faculty toward two-year faculty.

The task force is considering publishing an article in Perspectives on History to help inform the larger membership about the professional life of two-year members. The tentative title of the article is “The Day in the Life of a Two-Year Faculty Member.”

Independent Auditors' Report

We have audited the accompanying statement of financial position of the American Historical Association as of June 30, 2010 and 2009 and the related statements of activities and cash flows for the years then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Association's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by the management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the American Historical Association as of June 30, 2010 and 2009, and its changes in net assets and its cash flows for the years then ended in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

Our audits were made for the purpose of forming an opinion on the basic financial statements of the American Historical Association taken as a whole. The accompanying supplemental statements of expenses by program, net assets by classification and general operations for the years ended June 30, 2010 and 2009 are presented for purposes of additional analysis and are not a required part of the basic financial statements. The information for the years ended June 30, 2010 and 2009 has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audits of the basic financial statements and, in our opinion, is fairly stated in all material respects in relation to the basic financial statements taken as a whole.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

June 30, 2010 and 2009

1. DESCRIPTION OF THE ORGANIZATION

The American Historical Association (the Association) is a District of Columbia non-stock corporation founded in 1884 and incorporated by Congress in 1889 for the promotion of historical studies, the collection and preservation of historical manuscripts, and the dissemination of historical research.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of Accounting

The financial statements have been prepared on the accrual basis of accounting in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. Accordingly, revenues are recognized when earned and expenses are recognized when incurred.

Cash and Equivalents

The Association considers all highly liquid investments purchased with an original maturity of three months or less to be cash equivalents.

Pledges Receivable

Pledges receivable represents amounts which have been promised but not yet received. Pledges beyond one year are discounted to reflect the present value of the pledge.

Investments

Investments are recorded at market value. Realized and unrealized gains and losses on investments are reported on the statement of activities as they occur.

Inventory

Inventory consists of publications and is stated at the lower of cost or market, based on the FIFO (first-in, first-out) method of accounting.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Fixed Assets

Furniture and equipment are reported at cost. Assets and capital lease purchases are depreciated over a three to five year estimated life using the straight line method. Depreciation expense for the years ended June 30, 2010 and 2009 was $57,726 and $50,571, respectively.

Accounts Receivable

Accounts receivable is recorded net of an allowance for uncollectible receivables, based on management's evaluation of outstanding accounts receivable at year end. The allowance for uncollectible receivables was $36,422 and $64,845 for the years ended June 30, 2010 and 2009, respectively.

Deferred Revenue

The Association records income for membership dues, subscriptions, registration fees and publication advertising which have been paid in advance as deferred revenue.

Endowment Funds

The Financial Accounting Standards Board issues Staff Position No. FAS 117-1, Endowments of Not-for-Profit Organizations: Net Asset Classification of Funds Subject to and Enacted Version of the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act (UPMIFA) and Enhanced Disclosures for All Endowment Funds (the FSP). The FSP provides guidance on the net asset classification of donor restricted endowment funds for a not-for-profit organization that is subject to an enacted version of the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act of 2006. The FSP also improves disclosures about an organization's endowment funds (both donor restricted endowment funds and board designated endowment funds) whether or not the organization is subject to UPMIFA.

Net Assets

Net assets are reported by the Association in accordance with Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) 116 and 117. Accordingly, net assets have been reported using the following categories.

Unrestricted

Unrestricted net assets represent resources over which the Council has discretionary control and are used to carry out operations of the Association in accordance with their bylaws.

The Council's designated fund, included as part of the unrestricted net assets, was established to accumulate a reserve for the Association.

Temporarily Restricted

Temporarily restricted net assets represent contributions and grants, which have been restricted by donors for specific programs or activities. Restrictions, which have been met by the passage of time or expenditure of net assets, are reported as revenues released from restrictions on the statement of activities. For the years ended June 30, 2010 and 2009, the Association received $132,938 and $85,632 in temporarily restricted contributions and grants, respectively.

Permanently Restricted Funds

Permanently restricted net assets represent contributions which have been restricted by donors indefinitely. Investment income generated from the principal of the permanently restricted net assets is used to fulfill programs and the general operations of the Association. For the years ended June 30, 2010 and 2009 the Association did not receive any permanently restricted contributions. The balance of the permanently restricted funds were $481,370 and $481,370 for the years ended June 30, 2010 and 2009, respectively.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Gifts and bequests of property

Gifts and bequests of property are recorded at the earlier of the date received or when the bequest is no longer subject to probate and its value can be reasonably estimated. Gifts and bequests are valued at their estimated fair market value on the date they are recorded.

Donated Services and Materials

Contributions of services are recognized if the services received create or enhance nonfinancial assets or require specialized skills, and are provided by individuals possessing those skills and would typically need to be purchased if not provided by donation. Contributed services and promises to give services that do not meet the above criteria are not recognized. During 2010 and 2009, the Association did not receive any donated materials or services.

Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect certain reported amounts and disclosures. Accordingly, actual results could differ from those estimates.

Income Taxes

The Association is a nonprofit organization, which is exempt from federal income taxes under the provision of Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. However, the Association is subject to unrelated business income tax for activities conducted outside its tax exempt purpose. The Association conducted unrelated business activities that resulted in net operating losses during 2010 and 2009, respectively, accordingly no provision for income taxes was recorded.

Functional Allocation of Expenses

The costs of providing the various programs and other activities have been summarized on a functional basis in the Statement of Activities. Accordingly, certain costs have been allocated among the programs and supporting services benefited.

3. INVESTMENTS

The value of investments was as follows:

	June 30, 2010		June 30, 2009
	Cost	Market	Cost	Market
U.S. Treasury notes and bonds	$ 889,900	$ 972,953	$ 1,223,322	$ 1,272,410
Equity mutual Funds	1,234,631	1,686,353	1,418,041	1,696,547
Fixed income mutual Funds	680,013	699,098	96,545	97,200
Certificates of deposit	-	-	332,157	332,157
Total	$ 2,804,544	$ 3,358,404	$ 3,070,065	$ 3,398,314

The market value of stocks is estimated based on quoted market prices for those investments. None of the investments are held for trading purposes.

4. FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENTS

FASB Statement No. 157, Fair Value Measurements, establishes a framework for measuring fair value. That framework provides a fair value hierarchy gives the highest priority to unadjusted quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities (Level 1 measurements) and the lowest priority to unobservable inputs (Level 3 measurements). The three levels of the fair value hierarchy under FASB Statement No. 157 are described as follows:

Level 1 Inputs to the valuation methodology are unadjusted quoted prices for identical assets or liabilities in active markets that the Foundation has the ability to access.

Level 2 Inputs to the valuation methodology include

- Quoted prices for similar assets or liabilities in active markets;
- Quoted prices for identical or similar assets or liabilities in inactive markets;
- Inputs other than quoted prices that are observable for the asset or liability;
- Inputs that are derived principally from or corroborated by observable market data by correlation or other means. If the asset or liability has a specified (contractual) term, the Level 2 input must be observable for substantially the full term of the asset or liability.

AMERICAN HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

Level 3 Inputs to the valuation methodology are unobservable and significant to the fair value measurement.

The assets or liability's fair value measurement level within the fair value hierarchy is based on the lowest level of any input that is significant to the fair value measurement. Valuation techniques used need to maximize the use of observable inputs and minimize and the use of unobservable inputs.

Following is a description of the valuation methodology used for assets measured at fair value. There have been no changes in the methodologies used at June 30, 2010.

Mutual funds: Valued at the net asset value (NAV) of shares at year end.

Cash and equivalents: Valued at cost.

Equity Securities: Valued at the closing price reported on the active market on which the individual securities are traded.

The preceding method described may produce a fair value calculation that may not be indicative of net realizable value or reflective of future fair values. Furthermore, although the Association believes its valuation methods are appropriate and consistent with other market participants, the use of different methodologies or assumptions to determine the fair value of certain financial instruments could result in a different fair value measurement at the reporting date.

The following sets forth by level, within the fair value hierarchy, the Association's assets at fair value as of June 30, 2010:

	Fair Value	Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Treasury notes and bonds	$ 972,953	$ 972,953	$ -	$ -
Equity mutual Funds	1,686,353	1,686,353	-	-
Fixed income mutual funds	699,098	699,098	-	-
Total	$ 3,358,404	$ 3,358,404	$ -	$ -

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

June 30, 2010 and 2009

5. ENDOWMENT AND BOARD-DESIGNATED FUNDS

The Association endowment includes both donor-restricted endowment funds and funds designated by the Council to function as endowments/board-designated funds. As required by GAAP, net assets associated with endowment funds, including funds designated by the Council to function as endowments, are classified and reported based on the existence or absence of donor imposed restrictions.

Interpretation of Relevant Law

Based on its interpretation of the provisions of UPMIFA and the FSP described in Note 1, the Association feels that retaining its existing policies regarding net asset classification of its donor restricted endowment funds is appropriate. Distribution of any gift, bequest or fund is governed by the Association's governing documents and donor agreements. Thirty-nine percent of the Association endowment funds make available the use of principal which are able to be utilized for the intended purpose of the fund. As a result of the ability to distribute corpus, the Association has determined that these donor restricted contributions received subject to the governing documents and subject to UPMIFA are classified as temporarily restricted until appropriated, at which time the appropriation is reclassified to unrestricted net assets. Board designated endowments do not possess external spending restrictions and therefore are classified as unrestricted net assets. Endowment funds that require the corpus remain restricted in perpetuity represent eight percent of the Association's endowment funds are classified as permanently restricted.

Funds with Deficiencies

From time to time, the fair value of assets associated with an individual donor-restricted endowment fund may fall below the level that the donor or UPMIFA requires the Association to retain as a fund of perpetual duration. There were no deficiencies as of June 30, 2010.

Return Objectives and Risk Parameters

The Association has adopted investment and spending policies for endowment and board-designated assets that attempt to provide a predictable stream of funding to programs supported by its endowment while seeking to maintain the purchasing power of the endowment assets. Endowment assets included those assets of donor-restricted funds that the Association must hold until appropriated as well as board-designated funds. Under this policy, as approved by the Council, the board-designated assets are invested in funds with a primary objective of safety and liquidity. The objective of the restricted assets is to maintain the real purchasing power in order to support the Association's programs, initiatives and operations.

Strategies Employed for Achieving Objectives

To satisfy its long-term, rate-of-return objectives, the Association relies on a total return strategy in which investment returns are achieved through both capital appreciation (realized and unrealized) and current yield (interest and dividends). As a result, the Association has elected to adopt a well-diversified asset allocation consisting of equity and fixed income securities. The Association's current asset allocation for endowment funds targets a composition of between 40 to 80 percent in equities and 20 to 60 percent in fixed income funds.

Spending Policy and How the Investment Objectives Relate to Spending Policy

Expenditures from the board-designated net assets are released as approved by the Association's Council. The earnings on the temporarily restricted net assets are reinvested. Temporarily restricted net assets are released from restricted funds and are used in accordance with donor stipulations.

The changes in endowment net assets for the year ended June 30, 2010 are detailed for income, expenses, investment earnings, investment expenses and transfers on the supplemental statement of net assets by classification.

6. COMMITMENTS

The Association has entered into agreements for rental of space for the annual meeting. The Association is required to pay a portion of the anticipated room revenues in the event that the conference is canceled. Cancellation insurance has been obtained by the Association to offset any potential future losses. The Association anticipates that all minimum room rental requirements will be met.

NOTES TO FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

June 30, 2010 and 2009

7. RETIREMENT PLAN

The Association maintains a qualifying defined contribution retirement plan for qualifying full-time employees under Internal Revenue Code Section 403(b). The Association contributes up to a maximum of 10 percent of the employee's total annual compensation to the plan each year. The contributions are fully vested and nonforfeitable. For the years ended June 30, 2010 and 2009, contributions to the plan were $108,766 and $87,323, respectively. There were no contributions due to the plan at June 30, 2010 and 2009, respectively.

8. CONCENTRATION OF RISK

The Association maintains cash balances in a financial institution which is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for amounts up to $250,000. The Association is exposed to concentrations of credit risk at times when cash balances exceed the FDIC limit. The Association has not experienced any losses and believes they are not exposed to significant risk.
