

Lindsay O'Neill

Education

- Ph.D. History, Yale University, New Haven, CT, 2008
M.A. M.Phil, History, Yale University, New Haven, CT, 2005
B.A. Pomona College, Claremont, CA, History, magna cum laude, 2001

Academic Appointments

- Associate Professor (Teaching) of History, University of Southern California, 2019-present
Assistant Professor (Teaching) of History, University of Southern California, 2014-2019
Lecturer, Department of History, University of Southern California, 2011-2014
Andrew Mellon Postdoctoral Fellow, Institute for British and Irish Studies, University of Southern California, 2008-2011
Adjunct Instructor, University of New Haven, 2007-2008

Books

- The Opened Letter: Networking in the Early Modern British World* (Philadelphia: University of Pennsylvania Press, 2015)
“The Global Journey of the Mpfuman Princes, 1715-1723” [Under contract with the University of Pennsylvania Press]

Articles

- Katherine Kapsidelis and Lindsay O'Neill, “Creating a Showstopper: Student-Curated Exhibitions” in The Teaching with Primary Sources Cookbook, ed. Julie M. Porterfield (Chicago: Association of College and Research Libraries, a division of the American Library Association, 2021), 58-59.
“News and the personal letter, or the news education of Theophilus Hastings, 7th Earl of Huntingdon, 1660–71” in Connecting Centre and Locality: Political communication in early modern England, eds. Chris Kyle and Jason Peacey (Manchester: Manchester University Press, 2020)
“Dealing with Newsmongers: News, Trust, and Letters in the British World, c. 1670-1730,” Huntington Library Quarterly, Vol. 72, No. 2 (Summer 2013): 215-233.

Departmental & Professional Service:

- Director of Undergraduate Studies for Department of History (2017-present)
Book Prize Committee for Pacific Coast Conference on British Studies (2021)
Nominating Committee for North American Conference on British Studies (2016-2019)
Coordinator of the USC-Huntington EMSI Seminar in Early Modern British History (2014-present)

Public Engagement

- “Tasting History: In a Pickle, The British Empire on a Plate,” virtual event developed by USC Special Collections and the Department of History, May 26, 2021.
Guest Speaker for “Better Teaching with Rare Materials” course for California Rare Books School, 2016-2022.