Minutes of the 132nd Business Meeting
American Historical Association
132nd Business Meeting
January 6, 2018, 5:15pm

Location: Marriott Wardman Park, Salon 3, Washington, DC

Present: Tyler Stovall, President; Mary Beth Norton, President-elect; Pat Manning, Immediate Past President; James Grossman, Executive Director; Edmund Russell, VP Research Division; Elizabeth Lehfeldt, VP Teaching Division; Kevin Boyle, VP Professional Division; Alex Lichtenstein, AHR Editor; Dane Kennedy, Director of the National History Center; Michael Green, Executive Director of the Pacific Coast Branch of the AHA; Susannah Ottaway, Nominating Committee

Stovall opened the meeting and thanked everyone for the conference.

Report of the Executive Director (Jim Grossman)

Grossman acknowledged that 2017 was an unusual year in the federal government and encouraged members to discuss what the AHA’s role should be amidst these unprecedented political times. Grossman reviewed AHA accomplishments over the past year, noting that the AHA’s Statement on Confederate Monuments has been invoked in a range of arenas, including classrooms, city halls, and major media. The AHA pitched membership and financial support as a means to enable the AHA to participate in civic culture, and both went up this year. Grossman continued by discussing the importance of institutional membership. He noted that the “Chairs” listserv is an active community with emphasis on advice and sharing data. A chairs lunch is now hosted at the annual meeting. An expanded definition of advocacy has allowed the AHA to provide letters to chairs who think AHA support can help them with internal issues. The vice presidents of Teaching Division and Research Division are working with AHA staff to organize a chairs workshops, with substantial interest from an informal surveys at the chairs lunch. Grossman noted that the AHA plays a leading role in many national organizations. There were about 4500 historians at AHA18.

Reports of the Vice Presidents

Research Division (Ed Russell)

Russell thanked Research Division members as well as AHA and AHR staff. This is Russell’s last report as vice president, Research Division (RD), and he focused his report on the AHR. The AHA has benefited from decades of partnership with Indiana University concerning the AHR. The model the AHR has had, centralized in Bloomington, IN, has worked for a long time but is no longer fully suited to a changing landscape. Two editor searches failed because the candidate could not move to Bloomington and numerous promising candidates could not relocate. In its reassessment of the AHR, RD compared five different models for journals and discussed these models with the Council and IU. At its meeting on January 4, 2018, the Council decided to change the structure of the AHR. Operations will continue to be centralized at Bloomington. However, beginning in 2021, the editor can be anywhere. The editor can stay at his or her home institution.
or there may be an option for the editor to move to IU, if both the editor and IU see such a move as mutually beneficial. The AHR will also begin introducing associate review editors in 2018. The board of associate review editors will consist of about a dozen people, chosen by field of expertise. Currently, graduate student editorial assistants have faculty consultants at IU guiding them on reviewers, as complements to members of the Board of Editors. The associate review editors will allow for the diversification of this body of consultants. These changes will spread the pool of people able to be considered as editor and diversify review editors. Both IU and AHR editor Alex Lichtenstein have approved the plan. Russell introduced Sophie Rosenfeld as the new vice president, RD.

Teaching Division (Liz Lehfeldt)

Lehfeldt thanked Teaching Division members and AHA staff. Brenda Santos will rotate off the division and Matt Cone will join as the representative from K-12. Beginning in 2016, Teaching Division (TD) adopted addressing enrollments in history courses as a primary initiative. At AHA18, TD organized three roundtables at which department chairs discussed strategies for boosting enrollments. Attendance at the roundtables exceeded expectations and demonstrated that these efforts are speaking to an issue of interest to membership. Although money from the Tuning grant has run out, the energy around the initiative has not. The AHA hosted its third Texas Tuning conference, and continued to advance the Tuning agenda even without outside funding. Lehfeldt announced a forthcoming publication from the AHA, Careers for History Majors, which will be a valuable resource for departments, prospective students, and skeptical others. TD recruited an ad hoc committee that is working on preparing a statement promoting the value and scholarly nature of the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning, but was still awaiting Council approval at the time of the Business Meeting.

Professional Division (Kevin Boyle)

Boyle thanked Professional Division (PD) members and AHA staff. PD spent much of this year building on the work of previous year. PD proposed two additions to the AHA’s Statement on Standards of Professional Conduct related to tenure, promotion, and publicly engaged historians as well as hiring practices. Both additions were approved. PD members have written for Perspectives and are working on a best practices document related to members dealing with online harassment. PD maintained a program of subsidizing child care service for members attending the annual meeting and sponsored several meeting sessions. One of the sessions sponsored was on mental health and the profession, for which Boyle credited Russell, who organized the session last year. PD has supported the AHA’s Career Diversity program, worked on AHA’s sexual harassment policy, and is working with Grossman on next summer’s first AHA chairs workshop. Boyle thanked Valerie Paley, who is rotating off PD, and welcomed Mary Elliot from the National Museum of African American History and Culture.

Report of the AHR Editor (Alex Lichtenstein)

Lichtenstein thanked the Board of Editors, the Research Division, and the staff at the AHA headquarters and AHR office. He provided updates on the editorial initiatives he has pursued since he started his four-year term in August 2017. Lichtenstein aims to change the content of the AHR. The AHR now has an enhanced social media presence, including an AHR Interview podcast, and is collaborating more with AHA headquarters staff. The AHR is revamping how it identifies book reviewers and is reviving the book reviewer pool to better reflect the discipline. Diversity efforts include addressing the book review process, in terms of both representation on the Board of Editors and soliciting manuscripts. Lichtenstein also aims to diversify content, which could include essays reappraising classic texts, reviews of films and public history sites, historical fiction, and essays evaluating the state of the field in non-English work.

Report of the National History Center (Dane Kennedy)

Kennedy highlighted the need by historians to be publicly engaged, noting that this is the role of the National History Center (NHC) at the AHA, and which is timelier than it has ever been. This issue has been recognized by others, and two new university-based centers for history and public policy have recently been established. The NHC has continued its Congressional Briefing program and will expand it with a recent increase in funding from the Mellon Foundation. The Mellon funds will also allow the NHC to do create materials for classroom workshops that enable students to create their own mock briefings. The NHC also continues its Washington History Seminar program and organized 10 panels at the 2018 AHA annual meeting. The NHC is always open to other ideas. Kennedy thanked the center’s associate director Amanda Perry, Jim Grossman, and the AHA.

Report of the Pacific Coast Branch (Mike Green)

Green gave his first report as the executive director for the Pacific Coast Branch (PCB) of the AHA, and reported on the activities of the branch, which had recently selected him as executive director after a regional search. The University of Nevada, Las Vegas, has committed institutional support for Green as the executive director. PCB is the only branch of the AHA and has a membership above 3,800; every AHA member west of the Mississippi River is automatically a member of the AHA-PCB. The PCB awards scholarships and has a journal, the Pacific Historical Review. Its next annual meeting will take place at University of Santa Clara in August 2018. Green noted that PCB’s regional nature facilitates attendance by junior scholars, especially graduate students, in addition to the more established scholars who have found PCB to be hospitable to their students. PCB will be looking to enhance its existing subsidies for graduate students to attend its meetings.

Report of the Nominating Committee (Susannah Ottaway)

Ottaway presented the annual report of the Nominating Committee, describing the nominations process and summarizing the considerations in selecting nominees for elective office. She announced the results of the 2017 election: President: Mary Beth Norton (Cornell Univ.);
President-elect: John R. McNeill (Georgetown Univ.); Professional Division Councilor: Mary Elliott
(National Museum of African American History and Culture); Research Division Vice President: Sophia Rosenfeld (Univ. of Pennsylvania); Research Division Councilor: Melissa K. Bokovoy (Univ. of New Mexico); Teaching Division Councilor: Matthew Cone (Carrboro High School); At Large Councillor: Sarah Mellors (Univ. of California, Irvine); Committee on Committees: Jennifer L. Palmer (Univ. of Georgia) and Madeline Y. Hsu (Univ. of Texas, Austin); Nominating Committee: Kathleen Brosnan (Univ. of Oklahoma); Gabriel Paquette (Johns Hopkins Univ.); and Carin Berkowitz (Chemical Heritage Foundation). Ottaway concluded her remarks by thanking Jim Grossman, Liz Townsend, and departing members of the committee.

Other Business

Stovall asked for any other business.

Presentation of Plaque of Appreciation to Pat Manning

Grossman presented Manning with a plaque of appreciation in recognition of his service as president.

Passing of the Gavel to Mary Beth Norton

Stovall thanked everyone for helping him cope with much more work than he expected. He then passed the gavel to the incoming president, Mary Beth Norton. Norton declared the meeting adjourned by unanimous consent.

Kevin Boyle, Northwestern University
Vice President, Professional Division

The 2017 Professional Division (PD) comprised Debjani Bhattacharyya (Drexel University), Sue Marchand (Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge), Valerie Paley (New-York Historical Society), and myself as the new vice president. Valerie Paley completes her term this year. The work of the division depends upon the extraordinary support of executive director Jim Grossman and AHA staff members Seth Denbo, Debbie Ann Doyle, Dylan Ruediger, Emily Swafford, Liz Townsend, and Dana Schaffer. We cannot overstate our appreciation for the staff’s professionalism, expertise and good humor. Thank you one and all.

The division’s principal responsibility is to monitor all areas of professional work within the discipline and to develop advisory materials to assist historians at various stages of their careers. The division also addresses issues related to the training, employment, responsibilities and working conditions of historians and responds to informal queries from AHA members seeking advice on workplace and other practices. We are not an investigatory body, and therefore usually refer enquiries to the AHA’s Statement on Standards of Professional Conduct, available on the Association’s web site, as well as to guidelines produced by other pertinent organizations.

Last January Council asked PD to make a recommendation on whether the AHA should resume the adjudication of plagiarism cases. In June PD recommended not doing so. Council agreed with that recommendation. The Council might be interested to know about the frequency of requests from the membership. In 2017 PD received two inquiries about plagiarism cases – one of the two, interestingly, on self-plagiarism -- and two inquiries about other professional matters. The division responded to these four inquiries according to the procedure outlined above.

Much of the division’s time this year has been devoted to building on the excellent work of previous years’ PD. The division proposed two relatively small additions to the AHA Statement on Standards, the first – which Council approved in June – on tenure, promotion and the publicly engaged historian; the second on hiring practices, to be presented to Council at its January 2018 meeting. PD also continued the division’s work on the occasional Perspectives column, “The Ethical Historian: Notes and Queries on Professional Conduct.” After extensive discussion the division decided not to run a proposed column on consensual sexual relationships in academia. The PD did move ahead with a column on predatory journals, written by Debjani Bhattacharyya. It will be submitted to Perspectives in 2018. PD also began work on preparing a best practice document for members dealing with online harassment, though that work is still in its early stage.

The division maintained the AHA’s program of subsidizing childcare services for early-career attendees at the annual meeting. Valerie Paley and I served as selection committee, reviewing twelve applicants. The division award grants to all twelve, for a total of $2500. And, as usual, the division is sponsoring a number of meeting sessions, among them a session on mental health in... the profession (a follow-up to its highly successful 2017 session); Q & A sessions with journal and book editors; and two new sessions on ethics and the profession, organized by Sue Marchand and Debjani Bhattacharyya. It is also co-sponsoring a late-breaking session on sexual harassment in the profession.

PD’s other major work this year has been on behalf of new AHA initiatives. It offered its support to the Association’s exciting Career Diversity program. It consulted with the executive director on arrangements for this summer’s inaugural workshop for department chairs, to be held in Chicago in June 2018. And the division took the lead in preparing materials for the Council’s January 2018 discussion of the AHA’s sexual harassment policy. Its goal was not to propose specific policies but rather to facilitate discussion of alternatives. The PD’s materials reflect that goal. My sincere thanks to PD members for their careful, thoughtful, insightful, and rapid work on this issue.

On behalf of the continuing members of the division, and the entire Council, I would like to thank Valerie Paley, who is rotating off the division, for her extensive service to the AHA over the last three years. The AHA has benefited enormously from her dedication. I would also like to extend a warm welcome to Mary Elliott of the National Museum of African American History and Culture, who joins the division in 2018.
This past year was a busy one for the Research Division. Our top priority was finalizing a plan for the American Historical Review in 2021 and after. We are submitting a revised recommendation to council for consideration at its January 2018 meeting. The journey to that recommendation was long and labor-intensive. In the first half of 2017, RD worked with AHA staff, AHA presidents, an outside consultant, and Oxford University Press to prepare a report to council for the June 2017 meeting. Council discussed the report at the June meeting but postponed a decision until the January 2018 meeting to give Indiana University time to prepare a detailed response. RD discussed IU’s report in its fall video conference and afterwards via email. We continued to discuss ideas with Oxford University Press and the AHA president. Those discussions led RD to develop a new model included in the recommendation to council for the January 2018 meeting. As I write, we are in the process of obtaining feedback on the model from IU and the AHA staff.

This year we implemented the procedures in the AHR oversight document approved by council last year. The incoming editor, Alex Lichtenstein, submitted plans for his tenure as editor. These plans enabled RD to discuss the plans with the editor in a proactive, constructive way. RD worked with the AHR editors on a number of other topics, including the response to a book review that implied support for racism, diversity in the board of editors, appointments of board of editors members, and the policy on publication of AHR content elsewhere.

Becky Nicolaides took the lead on the issue of democratizing access to scholarly research. She and Seth Denbo conducted a survey, which found that many historians outside R1 universities lack access to scholarly publications. Becky prepared a report on the findings, organized a session on the topic, is collaborating with other groups, and will continue to lead an effort to find solutions.

One of the most difficult and time-consuming responsibilities for RD was considering charges of plagiarism against a prize-winning book. After learning the results of the investigation, the author returned the prize.

Other RD activities included organizing sessions for the annual meeting, clarifying prize policies, monitoring plans for AHR archives, and offering input on a bibliography project.

This is my final report as vice president, so I want to step back and reflect a bit. When I agreed to run for VP, I saw it as an opportunity to pay back a profession that has treated me well. Over the three years, it turned into something more. It has been a deeply rewarding experience. I see several reasons.

First, I have had the honor of working with excellent members of the Research Division. The current members are David Bell, Jim Sweet, and Becky Nicolaides. Members who served and rotated off earlier in my tenure were Farina Mir and Randall Packard. I could not have asked for a more thoughtful, smart, hard-working, and amiable group of colleagues. It was a pleasure to work with them.

Second, I got to work with excellent council members, vice presidents, and presidents. After focusing most of my professional interests on my fields, I saw council service as a chance to engage the profession more broadly. That aspect of the job fulfilled my hopes. It was a pleasure discussing issues with dedicated, insightful colleagues from a variety of historical fields. I have learned a great deal from formal and informal discussions with these colleagues.

Third, I got to work with the outstanding staff in the AHA DC office. Jim Grossman, the man who never sleeps, sets a superhuman standard for dedication to the society. He is responsive and proactive. Debbie Doyle, Seth Denbo, Sadie Bergen, and Zoe Jackson staffed the RD during my tenure with good humor and great dedication. RD leaned especially heavily on Seth as we developed plans for the future of the AHR, and I am grateful for the way he helped guide us and keep us on track. Dana Schaffer regularly helped RD with grace and competence.

Fourth, I worked with the excellent editors of the American Historical Review. Rob Schneider and Alex Lichtenstein brought enormous dedication to their duties, which included educating RD about the complex task of producing the highest-impact history journal in the world.

I thank all these people, and others too numerous to mention, for being such good colleagues.

RD is in good hands going forward. I worked with the incoming vice president for research, Sophie Rosenfeld, earlier in our careers when we were both at the University of Virginia. She is an outstanding scholar and teacher, and I admire her calm, reasonable style of leadership. AHA is lucky to have her in this position, and I hope her experience is as rewarding as mine.
In my second year as Vice President of the Teaching Division, I have overseen an active agenda. The bulk of the Division’s efforts in the last year have focused on Enrollments and Teaching Resources.

Enrollments: Beginning in 2016 the Division adopted addressing the question of enrollments in history courses as one of its focal initiatives. In the last year this work has included:

- TD hosted a discussion of these issues at the Department Chairs’ luncheon at the annual meeting in January 2017.
- TD members and AHA staff attended regional meetings of department chairs in 2017 where these issues were discussed.
- TD organized three roundtables for the 2018 Annual Meeting where department chairs will share strategies and ideas about boosting enrollments in history courses.
- AHA staff are collecting recruitment materials and other resources that have been shared by departments.
- Julia Brookins is working on data from annual enrollment survey. Results will be published in 2018.

➢ Overall, Teaching Division’s activities around the enrollments question have informed the Professional Division’s planning of a Department Chair Workshop, scheduled for June 2018.

Tuning and Related Activities

- Julia Brookins submitted the final Tuning Report to the Lumina Foundation.
- Investigation of how we can build on the lessons of Tuning, especially its faculty-focused, discipline-specific process for developing learning outcomes/curriculum building, outside of a grant-funded framework. One example we are currently pursuing: taking the message of Tuning to a new audience: advisors that are “embedded” in History departments and have primary responsibility for advising prospective majors and majors.
• The AHA hosted its third annual Tuning/Texas Conference on Introductory Courses in September 2017.

• The AHA co-sponsored a K-16 Teaching History in the 21st Century conference at UC, Berkeley in May 2017. The AHA is looking for ways to institutionalize it.

• Julia Brookins and Emily Swafford published an article on disciplinary associations and gateway courses that will appear in the winter 2017 edition of New Directions for Higher Education, a publication of the John N. Gardner Institute for Excellence in Undergraduate Education.

• The Careers for History Majors booklet is slated for publication in early 2018.

Updated Statements related to Teaching and Learning

Moved the statement Standards for Employment of Part-Time Faculty (2003) to the archives. It is superseded by Standards for Part-Time, Adjunct, and Contingent Faculty (2011), a joint statement with the Organization of American Historians’ Committee on Part-time, Adjunct and Contingent Employment.

Changes to Teaching Prizes

The Division approved changes to the submission criteria of several teaching awards. For the Cunningham Prize for the best article written by an undergraduate student, the Division voted to remove potentially restrictive language that limited submissions to “history department” journals. For the Eugene Asher Distinguished Teaching Award and the Beveridge Family Teaching Prize, the Division voted to amend an onerous two-step submission process. A proposal to allocate excess funds from the Gilbert Prize bequest to support costs associated with the development of articles on teaching history for AHA publications was also approved by the Division. Council approved all of these changes to the Teaching Prizes at its June 2017 meeting.
Scholarship of Teaching and Learning

The Division is in the preliminary stages of forming an ad-hoc committee, which will be tasked with preparing a statement that promotes the value and the scholarly nature of the Scholarship of Teaching and Learning (SoTL) in History.
It is my pleasure to report on the American Historical Review to the members of the Council of the American Historical Association. On August 1, 2017, Interim Editor Robert Schneider stepped down and I commenced a four-year term as Editor of the journal. Previously I served as Interim Editor from Aug. 1, 2015-Aug. 1, 2016. Throughout this entire period of transition, Konstantin Dierks (Associate Professor of History, Indiana University) has served as Associate Editor, and will continue to do so until August 1, 2018. As a consequence, there is no 2017 “annual plan” against which to measure this year’s accomplishments. I include at the end of this report a document outlining both my annual plan for 2018 and my term plan for 2017-2021.

Board of Editors

The Board of Editors is at full strength of thirteen members and working hard. We try not to burden BOE members with unworthy or unpromising manuscripts. All submissions (original and revised) are first read and evaluated in-house by Associate Editor Konstantin Dierks and by myself. Of the 325 manuscripts (the lowest number in the last 5-year cycle) submitted (as of 12/8/15), 75 (23%) were passed on to Board members for initial review, based on their fields and areas of expertise. As the pie chart on the next page indicates, we attempt to spread these duties evenly, but this year saw a much wider spread than we would like, ranging from only 1 (Medieval) through 27 for the overburdened Lara Putnam. I will seek to correct that in 2018. In addition, the BOE serves as an advisory council on a whole range of matters, especially in the commissioning and curating of editorial projects (forums, roundtables, review essays, etc.), the appointment of book review consultants, and frequently consults with Editorial Assistants in choosing book reviewers. Since I began my term as Editor, we have looked more frequently directly to the BOE for consultations on book reviewers. If more of these duties shift in their direction, I may begin sending them fewer manuscripts for review. For example, we need not send every submission to two members of the BOE, as is our custom currently. However, the most recent RD proposal on reorganization of the book process may make this unnecessary.

In July 2017 we welcomed four new members of the BOE who began their three-year terms, to expire in June 2020:

Kenneth Lipartito, Florida International (Modern US)
Carina Ray, Brandeis (Africa)
Heidi Tinsman, UC-Irvine (Latin America)
Francesca Trivellato, Yale (Early Modern Europe)
Continuing members of the BOE include:

Peter Fritzsche, Illinois (Modern Europe)
Manu Goswami, NYU (South Asia)
Ruth Mazo Karras, Minnesota (Medieval)
Ussama Makdisi, Rice (Middle East)
Sarah Maza, Northwestern (Modern Europe)
Lara Putnam, Pitt (Methods/Theory)
William Rowe, Hopkins (Asia)
Claudio Saunt, Georgia (Early America)
Lynne Viola, Toronto (Russia/Eastern Europe)

In June 2018, I will have the opportunity to nominate new BOE members in Modern Europe, Asia, and Early America, as Professors Maza, Rowe, and Saunt will end their three-year terms.
AHR Content

- Stand-alone articles. The 2017 volume contained 16 stand-alone scholarly articles, touching on every continent.

- AHR Conversation. Rob Schneider’s final contribution to the AHR Conversation, “Walls, Borders, and Boundaries in World History,” appeared in the December 2017 issue. The idea of this format is to select a topic of wide interest, recruit scholars from a range of fields and/or periods, and conduct an on-line discussion, moderated by the Editor, which is then lightly edited, footnoted and usually published in the December issue. The December 2016 issue, which I brought to fruition as Interim Editor, assembled a group of eight scholars to discuss in global terms the question of “Rethinking the Twentieth Century,” based on a Mellon Sawyer Seminar held at Boston University. These Conversations are followed by an AHA session that allows readers to participate. The suggested topic for December 2018 is “Generations,” and I am recruiting participants now.

- Roundtables. The Roundtable is a genre of publication introduced by former Editor Rob Schneider, comprised of a series of essays—seven to ten—that are shorter than regular articles, addressing a subject of general interest. In 2017, no roundtables appeared in the AHR. In the works for 2018 or 2019 are “Global 1968,” “Rethinking Antisemitism,” and “Towards an Unsettling History of Domesticity.” When completed they are marvelous; coordinating and editing 7-10 essays, not so much.

- Review Essays. As Rob Schneider reported to the AHA several years ago, “Review Essays are in many ways among the most useful and popular kinds of articles we publish,” yet they can be difficult to solicit. A few appeared in the 2016 volume; none in 2017. An upcoming issue will include a “state of the field” essay on immigration history, and several others have been commissioned. We need to find a more effective way to commission and evaluate these.

- Digital History. We have begun to make a habit of devoting at least one piece in each February issue to digital history. In 2017, this consisted of a review essay of Adam Matthew’s digital database, “China, America, and the Pacific.” The February 2018 issue will have an article on digital text analysis and 19th century US legal practice. We continue our practice of listing digital primary sources along with our usual list of documents and bibliographies.

- 2017 also saw a renewed effort to publish “digital scholarship.” The April issue contained an AHR Forum on “Mapping the Republic of Letters,” which included a description of this Stanford University digital history project, an article derived from this project, and an accompanying comment. I am not persuaded this was entirely a success, largely because we still have not hit upon the most effective means to “publish” such digital products in what fundamentally remains the “analog” form of the AHR. A work in progress, I would say.
• AHR Forum. The “Forum,” as opposed to a roundtable, consists of 2-3 full-length articles accompanied by a short comment or introduction. In addition to the above-mentioned digital history forum, in 2017 the AHR published another forum on the history of banking and finance (December 2017), entitled “Follow the Money,” with three linked articles and a comment. The February 2018 issue, now in press, has a forum on “Gender and Interior Lives.”

• Prizes. In 2017, AHR articles from 2016 were awarded the following six prizes: LACS Kimberly S. Hanger Article Prize; Carol Gold Best Article Award, Coordinating Council for Women in History; Bernath Scholarly Article Prize, Society for Historians of American Foreign Relations; Theodore C. Blegen Award, The Forest History Society; Alice Hamilton Prize, The American Society for Environmental History; The Forum on European Expansion and Global Interaction Article Prize.

Editorial Initiatives

Following suggestions made at the June 2017 AHA Council meeting, I have already initiated some changes in AHR procedures and content. A full picture of these initiatives can be found in my appended annual plan, but I highlight a few here:

• Social media presence: updated the AHR Facebook page; began an AHR twitter account (@ahr_editor); began regular consultation with AHA publications/social media team to coordinate publicity; initiated the “AHR Interview” podcast—five interviews conducted to date.

• Book Reviews: began update of book reviewer pool by identifying scholars with appropriate expertise who have not yet published a monograph. This will a) widen our reviewer pool; b) make the reviewer pool younger and thus more familiar with recent trends in scholarship; and c) make the book reviewer pool better reflect recent demographic changes in the professoriate. This latter goal accords with ongoing efforts to improve our commitment to diversity at the AHR.

• Diversity efforts: one of the unanticipated benefits of the 2017 “Wolters scandal” in our book review section (see below) was to renew attention to the necessity of examining staffing, editorial practices, and AHR content to align them with the AHA’s commitment to professional diversity. This ongoing discussion falls into three areas—how to make sure that the book review process properly reflects the profession’s efforts on behalf of diversity; ensuring diverse representation on the BOE; and scrutinizing our process of soliciting and evaluating manuscripts.
• New Content: New content solicited throughout 2017, and set to first appear in 2018, includes a) “Reappraisals,” review essays of classics in the field (e.g., Imagined Communities); b) film reviews; c) reviews of public history sites/museums; d) reviews of historical fiction; e) reviews of recent documentary volumes in the Foreign Relations of the United States series; f) “Foreign Correspondence,” a state of the field essay in non-English language scholarship; g) “In the Field,” essays about newly discovered historical sources.

AHR Staff

The editorial and production staff of the AHR in Bloomington, Indiana continues to function at an excellent level, despite some turnover. Key members of the staff are the seven Indiana University PhD students who serve as Editorial Assistants (EAs). These EAs are responsible, under the direction of Assistant Editor Leone Musgrave, for the enormously complex process of selecting reviewable books, assigning books to impartial reviewers, and then editing the reviews once they come in. They also proofread the entire journal before it goes to press. EAs normally serve three-year terms, often renewable for a fourth year. In the future, I hope to recruit an eighth EA to help with digital editorial duties. The current Editorial Assistants, with their areas of specialty, are:

CHARLENE FLETCHER-BROWN (foreign language: Spanish)
- US (pre-1930)
- African American (1830-1930)

LAURA MERRELL (foreign language: French)
- Religion (American)
- Native American
- Great Britain/Ireland (post-1689)
- Canada (to 1830)
- North Atlantic/Atlantic World to 1830

TYLER JEFFRIES (foreign language: Arabic, Persian)
- Asia
- Russia/former USSR
- Middle East and North Africa

JULIA REIGEL (foreign language: German, French, Polish, Yiddish)
- Germany/Austria/Switzerland
- Scandinavia/Baltic
- Eastern Europe
- Jewish History
- Theory/Methods
- W. Europe (post-1815)

ISABEL ÁLVAREZ ECHANDI (foreign language: Spanish, Portuguese, French)
- Africa
- Oceania/Pacific Islands

As noted, I have proposed adding an additional EA who can oversee digital projects; we continue to seek funding for such a position.

In addition to these Editorial Assistants, the office of the AHR in Bloomington is home to five other people who are indeed truly responsible for the excellent journal we edit and publish five times a year:

- Konstantin Dierks (Associate Editor, Associate Professor of History, Indiana University—term ends Aug. 1, 2018)
- Leone Musgrave (Assistant Editor, Book Reviews)
- Jane Lyle (Assistant Editor, Articles)
- Cris Coffey (Operations Manager)
- Jessica Smith (Production Assistant)

Getting the AHR published five times a year—the 2017 volume finished at 1952 pages—is decidedly a team effort. This entails keeping the quality of the articles consistently high, an enormous amount of proofreading and copy-editing for each issue, reviewing 175-200 books for each issue, processing thousands more books, managing correspondence with authors, readers, reviewers, and Board members—not to mention the more mundane tasks of getting broken office equipment fixed, scheduling staff luncheons, and responding to disgruntled authors. Publishing a journal of this scope and quality can only be a collective endeavor.

I have asked IU Associate Professor Michelle Moyd (Africa, Germany, World) to serve as Associate Editor of the AHR as of August 1, 2018. She is currently negotiating this with the IU history department and College of Arts and Sciences. Michelle’s profile can be found here:

Book Reviews

One of the most important services we provide, both to our readers and the profession as a whole, is the extensive book review section of the journal. In 2017 we published 961 book reviews (not far from our stated goal of 1000) and 27 slightly longer “featured reviews.” We make an effort to spread the latter evenly across time period, region, and method, even while seeking to feature reviews of potential interest to readers across several of these categories. Here is the ten-year spread of books received and books reviewed:

In general, publishers are sending us fewer books than they have in the past.

Since August 2017, we have benefitted from the presence of a new Book Review Editor, Leone Musgrave. Leone, who recently received her PhD from Indiana University in Russian/Eurasian history, benefits from four years of experience as an AHR editorial assistant, and thus knows the book review procedure in and out. She has jumped right in, and we continue to aim for about 180 reviews per issue, and a further 5-6 featured reviews. In addition, we have expanded our efforts to secure books from publishers, especially from presses not located in Europe or North America and/or non-English language presses, which do not send us review copies as a matter of course. We continue to rely upon Board members and others for suggestions for appropriate scholarly books to review that might escape our notice. There has, in the past, been some dissatisfaction about the paltry number of books in African history reviewed by the journal. We have made efforts to rectify this, and I am pleased to say that the February 2018 issue will have 16 reviews of books in Sub-Saharan African history.

As Editor, I envision making some important changes in the book reviewing process (see the annual and term plans for more details). In order to revivify our pool of potential reviewers, we have begun to shift our traditional criteria for reviewer qualifications. In the past, AHR policy was “it takes one to know one”—i.e., to review a scholarly monograph you had to have written one. Now, in consultation with the BOE, we have begun to add select junior scholars to our reviewer pool. Our revised expectations are that a reviewer will a) have published a refereed article; b) have published a book review elsewhere; and c) usually will have a monograph or scholarly work of some sort in progress. This process will help ensure that the reviewer pool more accurately reflects the current face of the profession—demographically, topically, and methodologically.

I have also already sought to expand the types of material we review beyond books and digital history sites (a recent innovation in itself). I have since August commissioned reviews of films, public history sites, historical fiction, and documentary collections. I am contemplating reviewing several “graphic histories” as well.

Through multiple levels of quality control we try our best to ensure that all books are reviewed by disinterested parties; that reviews remain fair and balanced, even when they are critical or controversial; and that both reviewers and authors feel they have been treated fairly and with respect, even when disagreement about the merits of a particular book, as it inevitable does, arises.
Yet, controversy inevitably arises all the same. It is no secret that 2017 saw a major dispute about a published book review that contained language taken as racially “insensitive,” to put it in the mildest terms. While the review itself was relatively fair and non-controversial, the reviewer, Professor Raymond Wolters, took the occasion to advance his own extreme views about racial inequality in education. A raft of (justifiably) outraged letters duly appeared in the Communications section, followed by an appropriate apology by Interim Editor Schneider. We commissioned and published another review of the book at hand, and made it clear that the AHR rejected Wolters’s views and regretted allowing them into our pages. What I hope is my final editorial word on this matter came in the October 2017 issue:

It is, of course, entirely within Professor Wolters’ right to air such ideas openly if he can find a place willing to publish them. However, we must emphasize that there is no place for these views in the pages of the AHR, and we regret deeply that we assigned this review to him. A commitment to free speech means we would never presume to tell Wolters to stop publishing his discredited white nationalist views elsewhere; but neither does it require the AHR to help him promote them as if they were based on real scholarship.

My own view is that while this incident was regrettable, it gave me an opportunity to state in unequivocal terms how the journal regards racism in the profession, and helped instigate renewed scrutiny of our procedures with regard to the slow pace of professional diversification.

Oxford University Press

This is the sixth year of our relationship with Oxford University Press as our publishing partner. In general, the relationship has been a good and productive one. In all our dealings with Oxford, and especially with Trish Thomas, Executive Editor, Humanities Journals, we have been impressed with their willingness to accommodate our particular needs and their eagerness to market the journal to libraries and institutions where we heretofore have not had much access.

A few issues remain, however, OUP’s compositor service, Cenveo, has set up shop overseas, in Bangalore. To date, we have not always been satisfied with the quality control that goes into the transformation of typescripts into typeset page proofs. In the first year, we discovered a number of errors introduced by the new process. Most of these have been smoothed out by now, but occasional problems remain. More recently, however, OUP has shifted all of its academic publications to a new platform, Silverchair. As Editor, I am not especially happy with this platform. It has had a number of glitches since it got up and running, and it has taken weeks—and in some cases, months—for rather glaring errors to be corrected. The October 2017 issue, for example, was not fully accessible online for about 10 days after its release. As I write this, the December issue is not up online yet, although we signed off on all content two weeks ago. This is especially troubling because AHA RD has recommended that we release articles as they are prepared, rather than as a bundle; we are not convinced this is a good idea with the current platform. Moreover, I find Silverchair’s ability to search back issues quite unwieldy. I hope these issues will be resolved in the coming year, and can be written off as growing pains.

As Interim Editor in 2015-16, I began discussions with OUP about implementation of an Editorial Management System, Scholar One. After a good deal of preparation in this direction, I was informed in May 2016 that OUP would prefer we try Editorial Manager. As Interim Editor, this left me no time to move in that direction. When hired on as Editor in October 2016, I then attempted discussions with Editorial Manager. The staff there repeatedly failed to get back to me. Finally, once I stepped in as Editor in August 2017 I pursued a demonstration arrangement with Manuscript Manager. We have now processed almost fifty manuscripts with this system, and find it largely satisfactory. It is relatively simple to use, flexible, user-friendly, and amenable to our work-flow. The customer service is excellent and responsive. I will initiate discussions with the AHA to see if we can afford to implement it on a permanent basis. A fee of $7500 will cover 1000 submissions, or about three years of operation based on current submission projections. In the future, the AHR will face the high cost of accommodating our existing database of scholars to any new EMS.

Budget, Printing and Publishing

The journal is operating within its 2017-18 budget. The 2017 volume came under our allotted space by 88 pages.

Conclusion

There will be much to discuss and to do in the coming year. If Council accepts Research Division’s proposed reorganization of the journal’s reviews section, I will need to speed up some of the changes I have already initiated in the reviews process, and replace review “consultants” with a board of “Associate Review Editors.” We will face the linked tasks of updating our reviewer database and instituting an electronic editorial management system for our manuscript submissions. I anticipate several bold challenges in making room for new kinds of content, and accommodating this to our regular stringent manuscript review procedure. And we will need to confront head on questions of professional diversity in the journal’s operations and content, thrown into sharp relief by last year’s dispute in our review pages. I have 3.5 years in which to make these changes, and pass the journal on to my successor, whoever that might be. I am indeed looking forward to working with all of you to make the journal worthy of the organization and its mission.

As always, I welcome any comments or questions you care to share on this report or any other issues relating to the AHR.

Institutions in Developing Countries: This number is approximate for 2016 and 2017 for not-for-profit institutions in developing countries that have access to AHR for free or at a reduced rate; this number will be finalized in the next report. Seventy percent of institutions with access via the Developing Countries Initiative are located in Africa and 9% are in Europe, with the remaining 21% distributed across SE Asia and Oceania, Asia, and North and South America. Nigeria and Albania were added to the access plan in 2016.

Traditional institutional subscriptions include academic, corporate, and Deeply Discounted Print subscriptions for qualified developing countries, purchased by the institutions directly from OUP or through a subscription agent.

Consortia sites: It is important to note that the consortia number in this table indicates additional points of access through consortia agreements—any given institution participating in a consortia agreement could have several or many campuses within it, each of which would count as an additional point of access.

About Consortia Agreements:
Consortia are groups of libraries that purchase online access to whole collections of journal content, as opposed to purchasing journals on a title-by-title basis.

Libraries participating in a consortium will be able to purchase AHR in three ways: by purchasing the entire Oxford Journals Collection, the Humanities collection, or a customized selection of titles. Libraries often want the entire Oxford Journals list since ours is a very selective program, marked by high quality and high usage, in marked contrast to the “bundled” deals offered by commercial publishers that include a great many journals of varying quality and value. In general, we have found that our multi-disciplinary university customers will purchase the full collection, while specialist institutions (for example, law and medical schools) will buy the appropriate subject collection, and our corporate customers tend to favor custom packages. A flexible approach means that OUP is able to tailor a collection that meets the needs of specific institutions, enabling us to negotiate deals with specialist libraries and institutions that may not have the means or demand to purchase the entire collection.

We protect existing subscription revenue from those institutions participating in the consortium agreement by identifying their existing and previous subscription holdings with Oxford Journals during the quoting process, and require that they continue to pay the full rate for any title to which they have had a subscription for the life of the consortia agreement (these are called “migrated subscriptions”). That revenue will continue to be allocated to AHR, protecting that existing revenue stream. 727 traditional subscriptions have migrated to consortia agreements since 2012.
Developing Countries Offer:
AHR is also available online to established not-for-profit educational institutions from qualifying countries, based on country incomes as established by the World Bank Report. Access is either free or greatly reduced, depending on which list the country appears on.

Houston Reviewed Collection

Book reviews from AHR were included in a collection on Houston in the aftermath of Hurricane Harvey.

- A collection landing page was created to house the book reviews and an introduction written by Merline Pitre
- A blog post about the collection was written and posted to the OAH’s Process blog, driving readers to the collection landing page
- A banner ad promoting and linking to the collection ran on the AHR, JAH, and WHQ pages. The banner has received 5,076 impressions and 4 clicks to date and has been running since November 9.
History and Technology Collection

A cross-journal collection of history articles on the intersection of history and technology was created on the Oxford Academic platform and promoted on OUP channels. The AHR article “The Transnational and the Text-Searchable: Digitized Sources and the Shadows They Cast” by Lara Putnam was included.

- Social media promotion for the collection included:
  - Three tweets on @OUPHistory advertising the collection, which received a combined 5 retweets and 5 likes.
  - A Tumblr post that promoted the full collection, which received 40 notes.

- Pay-per-click advertising for the collection included an ad on Google that ran in September. The ad received 44,039 impressions and 1,251 clicks to the collection.

- An email was sent to a list of individuals registered to receive new issue and advance access alerts from OUP History journals. The email was sent to 8,739 registrants, opened by 2,609 registrants (31% of delivered), and clicked by 415 registrants (16% of opened).

- An email was sent to rented list of history researchers through Clarivate Analytics. The email was sent to 4,328 registrants, opened by 1,298 registrants (30% of delivered), and clicked by 212 registrants (16% of opened).

- Banner ads on OUP History journal websites gained a combined 455,981 impressions and 175 clicks to the collection.
Results: Putnam’s article saw a major increase around the time of the collection promotion, receiving a 233% increase in downloads from August to September.

AHR Podcasts

- A banner ad promoting the latest AHR podcast with author Sven Beckert was placed on the AHR pages. To date, the banner has received 40,174 impressions and 20 clicks.

Bernath Scholarly Article Prize

- A series of three tweets was sent from the OUP History twitter promoting the article. They received a combined 8 retweets and 10 likes.

- A banner ad promoting the Bernath Scholarly Article Prize-winning article “Milking the Third World? Humanitarianism, Capitalism, and the Moral Economy of the Nestlé Boycott,” by Tehila Sasson ran on the AHR pages. The banner received 40,594 impressions and 27 clicks.
Results: Sasson’s article saw a precipitous increase in the days after the prize announcement, coinciding with our promotional efforts.

Forum on European Expansion and Global Interaction Article Prize

- A tweet was sent from the OUP History twitter promoting the article. They received a combined 8 retweets and 10 likes.

- A banner ad promoting the FEEGI Article Prize-winning article “Dodging Rebellion: Politics and Gender in the Berbice Slave Uprising of 1763,” by Marjoleine Kars ran on the AHR pages. The banner received 70,550 impressions and 66 clicks.

Results: Kars’ article saw spikes in downloads around the tweets sent through the OUP History twitter and the deployment of the banner ads.
Other Social Media and Web Promotion

- AHR was a featured title on OUP’s Arts and Humanities discipline page, receiving 2,031 clicks through to the journal homepage.

- Banner ads promoting membership with AHA were posted on the AHR journal webpages. The ads received 35,001 impressions and 25 clicks.

Print Advertising

- AHR was included in print promotional materials at American Historical Association’s annual meeting and for the Organization of American Historians’ Annual Meeting:

  o AHR was included in a cross-history promotions and advertisements in 2017, and will be included again in 2018. The 2018 History flyer, below right, will be included in the History catalogue.

  o AHR was included in a history e-alerts sign-up card that was sent to the American Historical Association and the Organization of American Historians annual meetings. The card allowed attendees to easily sign up for electronic alerts from their favorite journals at the conferences. The card will continue to be used at other major history conferences.

- The 2017 Organization of American Historians Annual meeting program featured an advertisement that included AHR.

- A large backdrop banner including AHR was displayed at the OUP booth at the 2017 Organization of American Historians Annual Meeting.

American Historical Association 2017

- A backdrop banner showcasing Oxford’s history journals, including AHR, was displayed at the 2017 American Historical Association Annual Meeting in Denver.
• OUP had a manned stand at the 2017 American Historical Association Annual Meeting. Along with books and copies of the journal, a table top-banner promoting AHR (shown at right) was displayed at the booth.

• AHR was featured in an advertisement with other OUP journals in the program for the 2017 American Historical Association Annual Meeting.

• A raffle took place at the 2017 American Historical Association Annual Meeting conference, in which individuals who signed up for email alerts from AHR and other history journals were entered to win $100 worth of OUP books. The raffle was promoted through a large branded banner behind an iPad stand.

• AHR staff hosted a “Meet the Editor” event at the 2017 American Historical Association Annual Meeting, which was promoted through a landing page on the AHR website. The page provided information about the “Meet the Editor” event and how to register for the 2016 American Historical Association Annual Meeting.

• Banner ads advertising the 2017 conference were posted on AHR webpages. The ads received 96,467 impressions and 32 clicks.

• A pre-conference email encouraging AHR e-alert registrants to visit the AHR booth at AHA 2017 was sent on January 3. The email was delivered to 642 registrants, opened by 203 registrants (32 percent of delivered), and clicked on by 24 registrants (12% of opened).
Conferences
Conference presence is either in the form of an OUP branded booth/stand or, in some cases, via a shared publishers display. Sample copies of the journal are displayed, along with promotional materials.

Extensive testing of the platform at points in 2017 pushed up online usage, but overall traffic has increased.
As noted above, OUP’s system for online usage collection changed in 2014, creating a difference in the data collected. While the datasets from 2013 and 2014 forward cannot be compared on a direct basis due to a fundamentally different form of usage gathering, it may be useful to see broad trends over time. Below is a graph that shows monthly full-text usage from 2013 to the end of March 2017.

JSTOR

AHR is also available through JSTOR, which also exposes the journal’s archive content (with a moving wall to protect current subscriptions) to an audience beyond OUP consortia and subscribers. The following data provided by JSTOR show the journal’s activity in 2016 and 2017 to date. (We should note that the most frequently downloaded article is available through JSTOR’s Register & Read program and so is freely available. As a point of comparison, this article was downloaded 171 times on the OUP site during 2016, and 1,106 times during 2017 YTD.)

Production
Production throughout 2017 has been successful for AHR, with most issues printing on time or ahead of schedule. The only exception was issue 2, which was delayed due to the need to reprint the cover. Furthermore, due to issues with SilverChair and online formatting, the issues sometimes published late online. However, we expect these issues to be fully resolved for 2018 production. Production processes with typesetting, printing, e-reader files, and distribution worked well.

Online Developments
Silverchair

The following SilverChair issues have been resolved:

DOIs not rendering properly to CrossRef (please note, this was an error with CrossRef and not with OUP)

Formatting of references has been resolved and is now displaying correctly

The editorial office is now able to log in and review the staged issue

Online Licensing

Production will continue to work with AHR to determine implementation of online licensing.

Other Developments

Oxford continues to work with editorial office regarding online developments and developments within the production process.

Author Survey

At the publication of each issue, Oxford invites each author to rate the production process on a scale from 1 (poor experience) to 5 (excellent experience) based on speed, service, quality, and communication. Below are the results from 2017:

Pacific Coast Branch Report
2017 Report of the Pacific Coast Branch

This is my first report on the Pacific Coast Branch of the American Historical Association, for which I have technically just become the executive director, so it will be about what has happened, but more about what we hope will happen.

The PCB-AHA conducted a search for a replacement for its executive director, Kevin Leonard, who left the position when he became chair of the history department of Middle Tennessee State University. I was the selection, and will be joined in the spring semester by a full-time graduate assistant, Lee Hanover, one of UNLV’s finest graduate students. UNLV has committed to a year-round GA, assistance in the summer, and assistance from the staffs of the Dean of the College of Liberal Arts and the Department of History. We look forward to a long, happy tenure.

The PCB-AHA is the only branch of the AHA. Its area consists of 22 states and four Canadian provinces west of the Mississippi River. Our membership is slightly above 3,800, and we present several awards for scholarship directly and through our quarterly journal, Pacific Historical Review. We receive funds from the AHA toward our upkeep, and are grateful to AHA Executive Director James Grossman and the entire AHA staff for all of their assistance and patience.

The PCB-AHA is being financially cautious. We have moved increasingly toward a meeting model that focuses on holding our annual conference at a university that includes dormitory space and cheaper rooms and meeting fees. The 2017 conference at California State University, Northridge, was a success, and the 2018 conference will be at Santa Clara University. As this report is written, we are talking with two universities for the 2019 conference and developing a template for future bidding by universities.

One of the reasons for this approach is to encourage involvement by early career scholars—graduate students, affiliated faculty, and untenured tenure-track faculty who may lack access to the kind of funding available to more senior scholars. Current and former PCB-AHA presidents contribute to a Graduate Student Travel Award fund, and we hope to increase donations to that from other sources, find sources to fund luncheons and receptions, and increase the amount of advertising in our program and for book exhibits. We hope that these also manifest themselves in increased involvement in the parent organization.

Indeed, the AHA helps us and, we believe, benefits from our activities, and we hope to improve that relationship still more with a drive to increase membership in our region. Jim Grossman has suggested this idea and offered to work with us, and we appreciate him and the AHA staff. The AHA and the PCB-AHA have what is described in another, geopolitical context as a special relationship, and we look forward to making it even better.

Committee on Affiliated Societies Report

Submitted by: Jane Fiegen Green, AHA Staff Liaison to the Committee

2017 Committee on Affiliated Society Members: Robert J. Malone, History of Science Society, Chair; Ann E. Moyer, Univ. of Pennsylvania; Thomas Noble, Univ. of Notre Dame; Mary Beth Norton, Cornell Univ.

The Committee on Affiliated Societies identified areas for improvement in the AHA’s policy regarding “Affiliation with the American Historical Association.” The following is a summary of the changes to the policy as approved by AHA Council in June 2017:

- Made clear the diversity of organizations that can be accepted into the program, particularly make the language more welcoming of interdisciplinary societies and institutions that are not based on individual membership (i.e., libraries and archives)
- Included documentation of the organization’s founding and fiscal status as part of the application packet
- Updated the description of the Committee on Affiliated Societies to match the AHA’s Organization, Jurisdiction, and Operation of Association Divisions and Committees document.
- Updated benefits to describe current offerings
- Made details about annual meeting policies to a separate document
- Increased the frequency of mailing list exchange
- Clarified options for removal from the affiliates program

Annual meeting activities:
- Affiliated Societies Table Display, atrium outside the Exhibit Hall in the Marriott Wardman Park from 11:30 a.m.–2:30 p.m. We currently have only 6 signed up for this.
- Annual Meeting of Affiliated Society Representatives on Saturday, January 6, 1:30 p.m.–3:00 p.m. in the Marriott Wardman Park’s Wilson Room A.
- Affiliated Societies Workshop, Saturday, January 6, 3:00 p.m.–4:30 p.m., Marriott Wardman Park’s Wilson Room A., discussing strategies related to membership recruitment and retention.
- In 2018, 61 affiliates are holding sessions. This is an increase from 54 in Denver, 55 in Atlanta, and 50 in DC in 2014.
Current Projects:

- Survey of Affiliated Society Needs, conducted in late November. The results are attached.
- Auditing our directory of affiliated societies to make sure all information is up-to-date and recommending defunct or non-communicative societies for removal in accordance with current policy.
- Considering a new format to replace the Table Display with a shorter Networking Session. Instead of tables in a hallway, we would set up round tables in a meeting room and serve some coffee or other refreshments. The purpose would be to invite attendees to meet representatives of Affiliated Societies, to learn about Affiliate meetings and other opportunities, and to meeting other attendees with similar research interests. After the 2018 meeting, we will survey Affiliated Societies (particularly those who use the Table Displays) to see if they would like to try this alternative networking event.

New Affiliates in 2017:

- African American Intellectual History Society
- Western Society for French History
Committee on Gender Equity Report

Submitted by Katrin Schultheiss, chair

Members: Richard Godbeer, Monica Mercado, Ulrike Strasser, Mary Ann Villarreal

The committee met via conference call twice in 2017, once in spring and once in fall.

At the spring meeting, the main topics of discussion were: 1) renaming the Committee on Women Historians; 2) revision of the Committee’s mission statement; 3) planning for the breakfast at the AHA 2018 meeting.

1.) Discussion on renaming the committee centered on concerns that the existing name no longer reflected the current goals of the committee. The group considered ideas and concerns expressed at the “Brainstorming Session” at the 2017 meeting and voted to change the name to “Committee on Gender Equity.” This change was approved by the Council later that spring.

2.) Discussion of the mission statement centered on a need to reflect where the profession is today, taking into account ideas and concerns expressed during the brainstorming session referred to above. The new mission statement states: “To advocate for and monitor women’s and gender equity in the discipline, including recommending policies and best practices in that regard; advocating for women’s and gender history and the history of sexuality; and fostering an inclusive scholarship that challenges and transforms the practice of history, both substantively and methodologically.” The new mission statement was approved by the Council later that spring.

3.) The group generated a list of names of possible keynote speakers for the 2018 Breakfast Meeting. Nwando Achebe of Michigan State accepted the CGE invitation.

At the fall meeting, the discussion focused almost exclusively on the committee’s response to the issue of sexual harassment in the profession. Members agreed that the AHA should respond to the growing awareness of the problem by issuing a strong and clearly visible statement. Noting that the existing AHA statement, in the Statement on Standards of Professional Conduct, is currently located under "Employment," the CGE recommended that the statement be expanded to apply to students, job applicants, and researchers as well. The committee also discussed distributing a post-meeting survey to attendees at the AHA 2018 meeting. The concerns of the CGE and others have since led to the creation of a Late-Breaking Session on sexual harassment at the upcoming AHA meeting. The panel is co-sponsored by the CGE and the AHA Professional Division.
Committee on International Historical Activities
Report

Submitted by Joel Harrington, chair

On behalf of the International Committee (Jane Allman, Yinghong Cheng, Greg Downs, Kris Lane, myself), I write to report the progress of our discussions over the past year.

Staff Changes

Kritika Agarwal, associate editor, publications is the new CIHA staff liaison, taking over from Deputy Director Dana Schaffer. Dana assisted with the solicitation and submission of proposals for the CISH 2020 conference.

Activities

In response to our charge from the Council, we have launched or explored the following initiatives:

- Perspectives Columns: A project to increase the visibility of historians outside the United States with three guest columns per year in Perspectives written by scholars from different parts of the globe. In 2017, CIHA solicited a column from Professor Mucha Musemwa of South Africa, and Perspectives staff is currently working with him through the editorial process. CIHA will reach out to other promising candidates to continue publication through 2018. The topics can range from general methodological innovations to challenges the guest columnists face that US-based colleagues may not be aware of, such as issues around university structure or government influence.

- Webpage for International Resources: AHA Staff explored developing a designated space on the AHA website for international committee resources. CIHA has determined to wait until more substantial resources could be developed before launching the page.

- Sessions at the AHA Annual Meeting: CIHA has also discussed the establishment of session(s) at the AHA annual meeting on transnational historians (“Historians Without Borders”) or other discussions involving the practice of history in an international context (and including scholars from abroad). We also might consider a set of roundtables such as Practitioners, Concepts, Methods. The AHA already allots 10% of its annual meeting sessions to be “sponsored” by AHA committees, and CIHA will take advantage of this established procedure for future meetings. Kritika will be in touch with the committee in January to begin the process of compiling session proposals.
• Soliciting Proposals for CISH 2020: Earlier this year, CIHA submitted proposals for themes for the 2020 CISH conference in Poznań, Poland. We proposed two themes: The Global Sixties and Ethnohistory.

We are also in the early stages of pursuing one other initiative, but first require guidance from the AHA Council:

• Strategic ties with non-US counterparts to the AHA: Committee members have identified promising personal and professional contacts in several countries (China, Cuba, Germany, Ghana, Mexico, South Africa), but before we begin individual discussions, we would like to know what the AHA hopes to achieve from formal relationships and what financial or other resources are available to pursue these agendas. Possibilities include exchanges of scholars and graduate students, co-sponsorship of colloquia and conferences, joint publishing ventures, public outreach, etc. The IC is unanimous that it is not advisable to enter into any formal relationship without clear strategic goals in mind.

Finally, in concert with the Research Division, we recommend the following changes to the Honorary Foreign Member award:

• Honorary Foreign Member: We believe that the Honorary Foreign Member award at the AHA annual meeting deserves much greater visibility and support. Our source of information for the history of the honorary foreign member award is a February 2009 Perspectives article, “Distinctions for Distant Scholars: The AHA and Honorary Foreign Members.” One thing that the article reveals is that the AHA has grappled at other times with how to make this award more meaningful. Current criteria for the honorary member require that recipients of honorary memberships must be foreign scholars who are distinguished for their work in the field of history and who have markedly assisted the work of American historians in the scholar’s country. Though it hasn’t always been a regular award, the honor is now bestowed yearly (see past recipients here) at the Association’s annual meeting. There is nothing else in the AHA’s constitution or by-laws about this award. The 2017 honoree is Patrick Fridenson (École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales)

We propose that the scope of activities associated with this award be enhanced. For instance, the honoree might be paired with a very distinguished US-based historian, possibly the current or former AHA president, for a well-publicized discussion at the AHA annual meeting. We share the AHA’s determination to become less Eurocentric, and also believe that this award might also be used to bolster formal ties with the historical organization of the honoree’s home country (as discussed above). Finally, we believe that this award should be given much greater national and international publicity, further assisting in all of the goals outlined above and particularly enhancing the visibility of the AHA outside the United States. We are not proposing any specific changes in the language of the CFP, but rather in the implementation and support for the award itself.
Committee on LGBTQ Status in the Profession Report

Submitted by Susan Ferentinos, chair.

Members: Wallace Best, Princeton University; Leah DeVun, Rutgers University; James Green, Brown University; and Michael Ryan, University of New Mexico.

2017 marked the second full year for the committee, which was created in 2015 on the recommendation of the ad hoc LGBTQ Task Force. The committee continues to use the LGBTQ Task Force’s report to guide our work, as it included multiple recommendations for making the AHA, and the historical profession as a whole, more sensitive to the issues faced by the lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer communities.

With the help of Debbie Doyle, AHA staff liaison to the committee, we have recommended changes to the AHA membership form to allow people a broader range of gender identification. We also identified the need for the AHA policy on peer review to be expanded to be more inclusive of sexual and gender identities. As we understand it, the Research Division plans to do a general update of this policy in the near future, and when it does, the Committee on LGBTQ Status in the Profession would welcome a chance to review a draft with a particular eye to LGBTQ issues.

At the 2018 annual meeting, the committee is hosting an open forum to get a sense of what issues are facing LGBTQ members of the profession, which in turn will assist the committee in setting its priorities for next year. In January, we welcome Tammy Ingram, associate professor at the College of Charleston as the new chair of the committee and Red Tremmel at Tulane University as a new committee member.
Committee on Minority Historians Report

Submitted by: Melissa N. Stuckey, chair

The members of the 2017 Committee on Minority Historians (CMH) are: William Bauer (University of Nevada, Las Vegas), Devyn Spence Benson, (Davidson College), Adrian Burgos, (University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign), Reginald K. Ellis, (Florida A&M University), and Melissa Nicole Stuckey, (Elizabeth City State University, chair). The committee receives invaluable support from AHA staff, especially Debbie Ann Doyle and Joe Gardella. Executive Director Jim Grossman has been a valued participant in our meetings.

The committee met twice during the last year and continued its commitment to advocating a more inclusive profession and also representing the interests and concerns of minority historians and the Association’s outreach to public history organizations and K-12 teachers.

In this capacity, the CMH continued several initiatives. The committee hosted its annual reception at the 2017 Annual Meeting. It continued its work of administering the AHA Equity Award and named Lorena Oropeza (University of California, Davis) recipient of the 2017 Individual Equity Award. The committee also published two articles in Perspectives featuring interviews with 2016 Equity Award winners Al Camarillo (Stanford Univ.) and the history department of the University of Texas at El Paso. Finally, the committee organized five panels for the 2018 Annual Meeting.
Graduate and Early Career Committee Report

Submitted by: Jane Fiegen Green, AHA Staff Liaison to the Committee

2017 Graduate and Early Career Committee Members: Anita Casavantes Bradford, Univ. of California, Irvine, Chair; Ellen Feingold, Smithsonian Inst.; Erica Heinsen-Roach, Univ. of South Florida, St. Petersburg; Elizabeth Lundee, Univ. of North Carolina, Chapel Hill; and Adam Pratt, Univ. of Scranton

Annual meeting events sponsored by GECC:

- Graduate Student Reception, Thursday, Jan 4, 5:00 PM-6:00 PM, Hampton Room, Omni Shoreham, East Lobby
- Graduate and Early Career Committee Open Forum: Finding Funding in an Era of Uncertainty, Friday, Jan 5, 1:30-2:30 PM, Marriott Ballroom, Salon 2
- Dissertation Lightning Round, Friday, Jan 5, 3:30-5:00pm, Roosevelt Room 1, Marriott Wardman Park, Exhibition Level
- Parent Meet-Up on Friday, 8:30am, in Marriott Salon 2, as an informal gathering for attendees to discuss parenting and being a historian

Over the past year, GECC members have worked to update resources on the AHA’s graduate student webpage.

- Guide to Foreign Language Study for Graduate Students, prepared by Erica Heinsen-Roach for the Graduate and Early Career Committee in February 2017
- A Guide to Graduate Student Conferences is nearly finished and will be published shortly
- GECC is reviewing a three-part guide to oral examinations written by graduate students at UC-Berkeley.

In 2018, GECC members will continue to oversee revisions to outdated graduate student resources and improve outreach to graduate students to use these resources.

In 2018, GECC will welcome the AHA Council At-Large Graduate Student member, Sarah Mellors of the University of California, Irvine and 3 other members of the committee, while all but one member of the current committee will rotate off.
Council Decisions and Actions
Council Decisions and Actions

At meetings on January 4 and 8, 2017, the Council of the American Historical Association made the following decisions or took the following actions:

• Approved the June 2016 meeting minutes, the June-December 2016 meeting minutes, the 2017 committee appointments, and the 2019 program committee chairs appointments.

Report on the Financial Statements

We have audited the accompanying financial statements of American Historical Association, which comprise the statements of financial position as of June 30, 2017 and 2016, and the related statements of activities and cash flows for the years then ended, and the related notes to the financial statements.

Management’s Responsibility for the Financial Statements

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of these financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America; this includes the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor’s Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits. We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audits to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. The procedures selected depend on the auditor’s judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity’s preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity’s internal control. Accordingly, we express no such opinion. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of significant accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the financial statements.
We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinion.

Opinion

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of American Historical Association as of June 30, 2017 and 2016, and the changes in its net assets and its cash flows for the years then ended in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

Other Matters

Report on Supplemental Information

Our audits were conducted for the purpose of forming an opinion on the basic financial statements of American Historical Association taken as a whole. The accompanying supplemental statements of expenses by program, and net assets by classification for the years ended June 30, 2017 and 2016, have been presented for purposes of additional analysis of the financial statements rather than to present the financial position, changes in net assets, and cash flows of the entity, and are not a required part of the basic financial statements. Such information is the responsibility of management and was derived from and relates directly to the underlying accounting and other records used to prepare the financial statements. The information in these schedules has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the basic financial statements and certain additional procedures, including comparing and reconciling such information directly to the underlying accounting and other records used to prepare the financial statements or to the financial statements themselves, and other additional procedures in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. In our opinion, such information is fairly stated in all material aspects in relation to the financial statements taken as a whole.

The accompanying supplemental statement of general operations for the years ended June 30, 2017, 2016 and 2015 (unaudited), is presented for purposes of additional analysis and is not a required part of the basic financial statements. Such information is the responsibility of management and was derived from and relates directly to the underlying accounting and other records used to prepare the financial statements. The supplement statement is not prepared in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, users of these financial statements should recognize that they might reach different conclusions about the Association’s financial position, results of operations, and cash flows, if they had access to a revised supplemental schedule prepared in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America, accordingly we do not express an opinion or other form of assurance on this information.

1. DESCRIPTION OF THE ORGANIZATION

The American Historical Association (the Association) is a District of Columbia non-stock corporation founded in 1884 and incorporated by Congress in 1889 for the promotion of historical studies, the collection and preservation of historical manuscripts, and the dissemination of historical research.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of Accounting

The financial statements have been prepared on the accrual basis of accounting in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. Accordingly, revenues are recognized when earned and expenses are recognized when incurred.

Cash and Equivalents

The Association considers all highly liquid investments purchased with an original maturity of three months or less to be cash equivalents.

Pledges Receivable

Pledges receivable represents amounts which have been promised but not yet received. Pledges beyond one year are discounted to reflect the present value of the pledge.

Investments

Investments are recorded at market value. Realized and unrealized gains and losses on investments are reported on the statement of activities as they occur.

Inventory

Inventory consists of publications and is stated at the lower of cost or market, based on the FIFO (first-in, first-out) method of accounting.
2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (Continued)

Fixed Assets

Furniture and equipment are reported at cost. Assets and capital lease purchases are depreciated over a three to five-year estimated life using the straight line method. Depreciation expense for the years ended June 30, 2017 and 2016 was $33,897 and $58,184, respectively.

Accounts Receivable

Accounts receivable is recorded net of an allowance for uncollectible receivables, based on management’s evaluation of outstanding accounts receivable at year end. The allowance for uncollectible receivables was $0 and $0 for the years ended June 30, 2017 and 2016, respectively.

Deferred Revenue

The Association records income for membership dues, subscriptions, registration fees and publication advertising which have been paid in advance as deferred revenue.

Endowment Funds

The Financial Accounting Standards Board issues Staff Position No. FAS 117-1, Endowments of Not-for-Profit Organizations: Net Asset Classification of Funds Subject to and Enacted Version of the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act (UPMIFA) and Enhanced Disclosures for All Endowment Funds (the FSP). The FSP provides guidance on the net asset classification of donor restricted endowment funds for a not-for-profit organization that is subject to an enacted version of the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act of 2006. The FSP also improves disclosures about an organization's endowment funds (both donor restricted endowment funds and board designated endowment funds) whether or not the organization is subject to UPMIFA.

Reclassification

Certain amounts reported in 2016 have been reclassified to conform with the 2017 financial statement presentation.
2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (Continued)

Net Assets

Net assets are reported by the Association in accordance with Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) 116 and 117. Accordingly, net assets have been reported using the following categories.

Unrestricted

Unrestricted net assets represent resources over which the Council has discretionary control and are used to carry out operations of the Association in accordance with their bylaws.

The Council’s designated fund, included as part of the unrestricted net assets, was established to accumulate a reserve for the Association.

Temporarily Restricted

Temporarily restricted net assets represent contributions and grants, which have been restricted by donors for specific programs or activities. Restrictions, which have been met by the passage of time or expenditure of net assets, are reported as revenues released from restrictions on the statement of activities. For the years ended June 30, 2017 and 2016, the Association received $1,634,068 and $169,222 in temporarily restricted contributions and grants, respectively.

Permanently Restricted Funds

Permanently restricted net assets represent contributions which have been restricted by donors indefinitely. Investment income generated from the principal of the permanently restricted net assets is used to fulfill programs and the general operations of the Association. For the years ended June 30, 2017 and 2016 the Association received zero and $102,500 in permanently restricted contributions, respectively. The balance of the permanently restricted funds was $1,114,326 and $1,114,326 for the years ended June 30, 2017 and 2016, respectively.
2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (Continued)

Gifts and bequests of property

Gifts and bequests of property are recorded at the earlier of the date received or when the bequest is no longer subject to probate and its value can be reasonably estimated. Gifts and bequests are valued at their estimated fair market value on the date they are recorded.

Donated Services and Materials

Contributions of services are recognized if the services received create or enhance nonfinancial assets or require specialized skills, and are provided by individuals possessing those skills and would typically need to be purchased if not provided by donation. Contributed services and promises to give services that do not meet the above criteria are not recognized. During 2017 and 2016, the Association did not receive any donated materials or services.

Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect certain reported amounts and disclosures. Accordingly, actual results could differ from those estimates.

Income Taxes

The Association is a nonprofit organization, which is exempt from federal income taxes under the provision of Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. However, the Association is subject to unrelated business income tax for activities conducted outside its tax exempt purpose. The Association conducted unrelated business activities that resulted in net operating losses during 2017 and 2016, respectively accordingly no provision for income taxes was recorded.

Functional Allocation of Expenses

The costs of providing the various programs and other activities have been summarized on a functional basis in the Statement of Activities. Accordingly, certain costs have been allocated among the programs and supporting services benefited.

The market value of stocks is estimated based on quoted market prices for those investments. None of the investments are held for trading purposes.

4. FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENTS

FASB Statement No. 157, Fair Value Measurements, establishes a framework for measuring fair value. That framework provides a fair value hierarchy that gives the highest priority to unadjusted quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities (Level 1 measurements) and the lowest priority to unobservable inputs (Level 3 measurements). The three levels of the fair value hierarchy under FASB Statement No. 157 are described as follows:

Level 1 Inputs to the valuation methodology are unadjusted quoted prices for identical assets or liabilities in active markets that the Association has the ability to access.

Level 2 Inputs to the valuation methodology include:
- Quoted prices for similar assets or liabilities in active markets;
- Quoted prices for identical or similar assets or liabilities in inactive markets;
- Inputs other than quoted prices that are observable for the asset or liability;
- Inputs that are derived principally from or corroborated by observable market data by correlation or other means. If the asset or liability has a specified (contractual) term, the Level 2 input must be observable for substantially the full term of the asset or liability.
4. FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENTS (Continued)

Level 3 Inputs to the valuation methodology are unobservable and significant to the fair value measurement.

The assets or liability’s fair value measurement level within the fair value hierarchy is based on the lowest level of any input that is significant to the fair value measurement. Valuation techniques used need to maximize the use of observable inputs and minimize and the use of unobservable inputs.

Following is a description of the valuation methodology used for assets measured at fair value. There have been no changes in the methodologies used at June 30, 2017.

Mutual funds: Valued at the net asset value (NAV) of shares at year end.
Cash and equivalents: Valued at cost.
Equity Securities: Valued at the closing price reported on the active market on which the individual securities are traded.

The preceding method described may produce a fair value calculation that may not be indicative of net realizable value or reflective of future fair values. Furthermore, although the Association believes its valuation methods are appropriate and consistent with other market participants, the use of different methodologies or assumptions to determine the fair value of certain financial instruments could result in a different fair value measurement at the reporting date.

The following sets forth by level, within the fair value hierarchy, the Association’s assets at fair value as of June 30, 2017:

5. ENDOWMENT AND BOARD-DESIGNATED FUNDS

The Association endowment includes both donor-restricted endowment funds and funds designated by the Council to function as endowments/board-designated funds. As required by GAAP, net assets associated with endowment funds, including funds designated by the Council to function as endowments, are classified and reported based on the existence or absence of donor imposed restrictions.

Interpretation of Relevant Law

Based on its interpretation of the provisions of UPMIFA and the FSP described in Note 1, the Association feels that retaining its existing policies regarding net asset classification of its donor restricted endowment funds is appropriate. Distribution of any gift, bequest or fund is governed by the Association’s governing documents and donor agreements. Forty-five percent of the Association endowment funds make available the use of principal which are able to be utilized for the intended purpose of the fund. As a result of the ability to distribute corpus, the Association has determined that these donor restricted contributions received subject to the governing documents and subject to UPMIFA are classified as temporarily restricted until appropriated, at which time the appropriation is reclassified to unrestricted net assets. Board designated endowments do not possess external spending restrictions and therefore are classified as unrestricted net assets. Endowment funds that require the corpus remain restricted in perpetuity represent six percent of the Association’s endowment funds are classified as permanently restricted.

Funds with Deficiencies

From time to time, the fair value of assets associated with an individual donor-restricted endowment fund may fall below the level that the donor or UPMIFA requires the Association to retain as a fund of perpetual duration. There were no deficiencies as of June 30, 2017.

Return Objectives and Risk Parameters

The Association has adopted investment and spending policies for endowment and board-designated assets that attempt to provide a predictable stream of funding to programs supported by its endowment while seeking to maintain the purchasing power of the endowment assets. Endowment assets included those assets of donor-restricted funds that the Association must hold until appropriated as well as board-designated funds. Under this policy, as approved by the Council, the board-designated assets are invested in funds with a primary objective of safety and liquidity. The objective of the restricted assets is to maintain the real purchasing power in order to support the Association’s programs, initiatives and operations.

Strategies Employed for Achieving Objectives

To satisfy its long-term, rate-of-return objectives, the Association relies on a total return strategy in which investment returns are achieved through both capital appreciation (realized and unrealized) and current yield (interest and dividends). As a result, the Association has elected to adopt a well-diversified asset allocation consisting of equity and fixed income securities. The Association’s current asset allocation for endowment funds targets a composition of between 0 to 10 percent in money market funds, 50 to 70 percent in equities and 30 to 50 percent in fixed income funds.

Spending Policy and How the Investment Objectives Relate to Spending Policy

Expenditures from the board-designated net assets are released as approved by the Association’s Council. The earnings on the temporarily restricted net assets are reinvested. Temporarily restricted net assets are released from restricted funds and are used in accordance with donor stipulations.

The changes in endowment net assets for the year ended June 30, 2017 are detailed for income, expenses, investment earnings, investment expenses and transfers on the supplemental statement of net assets by classification.

6. COMMITMENTS

The Association has entered into agreements for rental of space for the annual meeting. The Association is required to pay a portion of the anticipated room revenues in the event that the conference is canceled. Cancellation insurance has been obtained by the Association to offset any potential future losses. The Association anticipates that all minimum room rental requirements will be met.
7. RETIREMENT PLAN

The Association maintains a qualifying defined contribution retirement plan for qualifying full-time employees under Internal Revenue Code Section 403(b). The Association contributes up to a maximum of 10 percent of the employee’s total annual compensation to the plan each year. The contributions are fully vested and nonforfeitable. For the years ended June 30, 2017 and 2016, contributions to the plan were $123,373 and $103,426, respectively. There were no contributions due to the plan at June 30, 2017 and 2016, respectively.

8. CONCENTRATION OF RISK

The Association maintains cash balances in a financial institution which is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for amounts up to $250,000. The Association is exposed to concentrations of credit risk at times when cash balances exceed the FDIC limit. The Association has not experienced any losses and believes they are not exposed to significant risk.

9. SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

The Association’s management has evaluated events and transactions for potential recognition or disclosure through December 19, 2017, the date the financial statements were available to be issued. There were no subsequent events that require recognition of, or disclosure in, these financial statements.
