2014 Professional Division Report

Philippa Levine, University of Texas at Austin
Vice-President of the Professional Division

The 2014 Professional Division (PD) consisted of four members – Andrew Rotter (Colgate University), Mary Louise Roberts (University of Wisconsin-Madison), both continuing to serve in 2014, and two new members, Catherine Epstein (Amherst College), and myself, as the new vice-president. Andrew Rotter completes his term this year. Jacqueline Jones, previous vice-president, cycled off the division after the 2014 Council meeting. I would like to take this opportunity to thank her for her stellar service to the division and the AHA, and for her generous assistance in effecting a smooth handover. The division also acknowledges the invaluable and mammoth support provided by AHA staff Julia Brookins, Seth Denbo, Debbie Ann Doyle, Jim Grossman, Matthew Keough, Allen Mikaelian, Liz Townsend, Sharon K. Tune, and Dana Schaffer.

The work of the division is to monitor all areas of professional work within the discipline and to develop advisory materials to assist historians at various stages of their careers. It addresses issues related to the responsibilities and working conditions of historians, and to their training and employment. The division also responds to informal queries from AHA members seeking advice on workplace and other practices. We are not an investigatory body, and thus usually refer enquiries to the AHA’s Statement on Standards of Professional Conduct, available on the Association’s web site, as well as to guidelines produced by other pertinent organizations. The Professional Division oversees the Advisory Committee on Disability.

Among the general issues discussed in the past year have been a continuing focus on the “malleable” PhD degree, and the job market for historians; the role of retired historians in their former departments; and the changing landscape of hiring practices in the academy.

At the June 2014 Council meeting, the PD recommended that the AHA adopt a new policy on the recording or videotaping of employment interviews. The policy as adopted reads as follows: “The council considers it unacceptable to record or videotape any employment interview activity that takes place in conjunction with the annual meeting.” The PD also recommended that the amount available for childcare help at the annual meeting be raised to $2500, a motion approved by Council.

In the May issue of Perspectives, the division launched a new initiative, introducing a column entitled “The Ethical Historian: Notes and Queries on Professional Conduct.” The column will appear two or three times a year. The topic for the first column, in May 2014, made recommendations about the responsibilities of both candidates and hiring departments regarding job offers. The second column, in the November 2014 issue, outlined best practices in hiring focused principally on interview protocol. The topics were chosen in part as a result of issues raised in correspondence from our members.

The pilot program initiated in 2009 to subsidize childcare services for early-career attendees at the annual meeting continues to offer help to parents needing such services. Mary Lou Roberts and Catherine Epstein served as a selection subcommittee, reviewing sixteen applications. The division was able to make 10 awards of $250 each for a total of $2,500.

We await the report of the Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and Queer Historians Task Force, jointly appointed by the PD and the Committee on Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender History (an affiliated society of the AHA) in 2009. Its charge has been to gather information about the concerns of LGBTQ historians and propose concrete and practical solutions for as many of those concerns as possible. The task force is completing its final report.

For the 2015 Annual Meeting program, the PD will sponsor sessions that include the annual interview workshop; a session titled “Measuring Faculty Productivity,” followed by a luncheon for chairs; a Q&A with publishers; as well as sessions on the dissertation embargo; on writing historical fiction, and, pursuant to the malleable PhD theme, employment for historians beyond the academy. Divisional members Mary Louise Roberts and Andy Rotter guided many of these panels to completion.

In other actions, the division agreed not to award the Troyer Anderson Prize for 2014.

On behalf of the continuing members of the division, and the entire Council, I would like to thank Andy Rotter, who is rotating off the division, for exemplary service to the Association over the last three years. I would also like to extend a hearty welcome to Valerie Paley (New York State Historical Society) who will join the division in 2015.
2014 Research Division Report

John McNeill, Georgetown University
Vice-President of the Research Division

My triennium serving as Vice-President of the AHA, with responsibility for the Research Division (RD) is in its final month. Accordingly, I will not only give an account of the year’s activities of the RD, but will offer parting reflections on its future at the end of this report.

But first things first. I extend my thanks to RD members Stephen Aron, Farina Mir, and Randy Packard for their judgment, industry, and collegiality in the line of duty. And to Debbie Doyle on whom the RD (and I especially) relied at every turn this year.

By far the largest effort of the RD went into the search for a new editor of the AHR because by statute the Vice-President co-chairs the search committee. That committee settled on a superb candidate who for family reasons ultimately declined the post, which means the search must be conducted again in 2015.

In the course of its routine business, the RD took the following actions concerning the AHA Annual Meeting:

- Recommended to Council that the Annual Meeting Guidelines be revised to formalize the practice of the executive director organizing one or two sessions on timely issues that arise after the February 15 proposal deadline.

- Recommended to Council that two additional members be added to the Program Committee to reduce the workload for individual members, in recognition of the growing numbers of submissions for poster sessions in particular.

- At the request of the Program Committee, clarified the policy regarding multiple appearances on the program. The new language for item 4.2. B. in the Annual Meeting Guidelines states: “Participants may appear on no more than two sessions at the annual meeting. These two appearances must be in two different roles. Roles include: presenting a paper in a formal session, participating in a roundtable, presenting at an experimental session, presenting a poster, and chairing and/or commenting on a session. Participation in a plenary session stands outside this limitation.”

- Encouraged the Program Committee to model “New Research” roundtables with five or six participants, each speaking for no more than 10 minutes. Speakers would be graduate students or early-career professionals recruited by a senior scholar who would chair and comment on the session. The idea is to enable emerging scholars to present their work at the meeting without relying on poorly attended, highly specialized formal research sessions.
- Clarified the process for the Program Committee to distribute its $10,000 travel fund and 10 registration waivers for foreign scholars, non-historians, and non-academics on sessions organized by the committee.

- Discussed whether to clarify the diversity statement in the Annual Meeting Guidelines (4. 2. C); agreed that the current advisory statement provides the Program Committee flexibility to review each proposal on its merits.

- Discussed the role of the affiliated societies at the annual meeting. Agreed to continue to monitor the Association’s relationship with the affiliated societies to ensure that each relationship is mutually beneficial.

The RD’s responsibilities also include the administration of AHA prizes, and this year a few issues came up that required our attention. In response, the RD:

- Updated the guidelines for the Helen & Howard R. Marraro Prize to remove the requirement that entries be published “by a historian whose usual residence is North America” and eliminated articles from eligibility.

- Updated the guidelines for the John E. O’Connor Film award. Changes included offering awards for dramatic features as well as documentaries, encouraging AHA members to nominate films, and screening winners at the annual meeting.

- Approved a simplification to the grant report form completed by recipients of the Beveridge, Schmitt, Littleton-Griswold, and Kraus grants.

In the normal course of events, many issues are brought to the attention of the RD by members of the AHA, or by others concerned with historical research, asking for support or advocacy for a particular cause. This year, in response to the issues raised, the RD:

- Recommended that the Association sign on as a petitioner in a lawsuit to unseal grand jury records from a 1942 case brought by the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the press. (The case now rests with the Chief Judge of the Northern District of Illinois.)

- Sent a letter to John Jarvis at the National Park Service encouraging NPS to return the National Archives for Black Women’s History—which was originally housed at the Mary McLeod Bethune Council House National Historic Site in Washington, DC—to the historic site if feasible.

- Asked Lee White to look into the timing of Fulbright Award announcements and report on his findings. The offset in timing of the announcement of Fulbright and Fulbright-Hays grants occasionally obliges graduate students to choose between either accepting the smaller of the awards and forfeiting the larger; or declining the smaller in hopes of winning the larger. This awkward position results from a recent changes in the timetable of award announcements by the two departments (State and Education) involved.
• Corresponded with the archivist at the University of Arkansas about restrictions on access to the Fulbright Grantee reports in CIES records held at the University of Arkansas’ library (that policy will be reviewed in 2016 and the librarian promises to keep AHA informed).

• Discussed how the AHA should respond to the controversy over Penguin Books India withdrawing Wendy Doniger’s The Hindus (on which Council ultimately elected to remain silent).

• Discussed the future of research libraries and in particular the practice of removing books and periodicals from library stacks to remote locations. The division will consider drafting a broad position statement on best practices for access to off-campus remote library collections.

• Recommended that Perspectives publish an article about corporate archives following an exchange with the archivist at the JP Morgan Chase archive.

Each year the RD tackles a few issues that do not easily fall under one heading or another and thus earn the sobriquet “miscellaneous.” In addition to those actions described above, the RD this year also:

• Approved a revision to the AHR book review policy in response to a recent flap over a review

• Commented on a National Archives Statement on Privacy in Archival Documents.

Envoi

The colleagues with whom I served on the RD for the last three years strengthened my faith in the professionalism and sense of responsibility of historians in general. The roster included Martha Howell and Tom Sugrue, as well as those mentioned at the top of this report. I hope and trust my successor, Ed Russell, will find himself equally fortunate in this respect.

I have no radical revisions to recommend in the machinery of the RD or the AHA. The challenges for the RD come mainly in the form of the unpredictability of most of the tasks it attends to. One never knows when something urgent might pop up. This inconvenience is not subject to reform. It might be possible to achieve tighter integration among RD, PD, and TD, but in my three years this tripartite arrangement did not lead to difficulties. It might, of course, in future, although I suspect the AHA staff can serve as brokers and liaisons among the divisions when necessary.

Most of the issues that lie ahead are of course unforeseeable. But some ongoing ones will linger for the next year or several years. These include, most obviously, the selection of the next AHR editor, which will take a good bit of the disposable time of the next leader of the RD, who will serve as co-chair of the search committee.

Equally obviously, the discussions about the implications of digital publishing and open access challenges for the AHR will continue, very likely for many years ahead until some new equilibrium (or set of equilibria) asserts itself in journal publishing. At some point in the near future, the RD might wish to conduct a general review of AHA publication outlets – Perspectives, the booklet series, etc. -- to see whether the inherited arrangements, as modified over time, are optimal. Are there other things the AHA should be publishing, in one or another form, for its membership? Should the RD spearhead an effort to put historical perspectives on issues of the day more conspicuously before the public eye?

Less obviously, but clearly enough, the RD will need to continue to consider reforms to the annual meeting. We have, together with successive programs committees, launched a few experiments in session format, and the RD will likely want to continue to encourage such experimentation. It might also with to monitor the results of these experiments and begin to form a sense of the best practices among novel formats, and with that provide more expert advice to future program committees.

The AHA prize program strikes me as in adequate shape, now that we have added new book prizes in Latin American and World History. One of the happy surprises of my tenure at the RD was how easy it was to raise the necessary funds for each of these prizes, even in unpromising economic times. Credit for those achievements rests with Alan Karras and Merry Wiesner-Hanks, who led the effort for the Bentley Prize; and John Coatsworth and Barbara Weinstein, who did the same for the Katz Prize.
2014 Teaching Division Report

Elaine Carey, St. John’s University
Vice President, Teaching Division

Over the course of 2014, the Teaching Division has worked on a number of projects, developed new collaborations, and initiated new projects to enhance the teaching of history at all levels. These projects strengthen the ties between the AHA and its diverse constituents: K-12 teachers, higher education professors, historical practitioners, and historians in industry, government, and other areas.

At this AHA meeting, the Tuning Project expanded to add 100 other faculty and institutions. Tuning is a faculty-led project to articulate the disciplinary core of historical study and to define what a student should understand and be able to do at the completion of a history degree program. Beginning in June 2012, when nearly 70 historians gathered in Washington, DC, to begin the Tuning process, following meetings took place 2013 and 2014. In September 2013, Teaching Division member Anne Hyde compiled the Tuners’ many ideas and suggestions to articulate the AHA’s History Tuning Project: History Discipline Core. On Friday, January 3, 2014, Tuners held a series of workshops and members offered panels and workshops during the annual meeting.

The NEH-sponsored project, Bridging Cultures at Community Colleges, continues. William Deverell (Univ. of Southern California and Huntington Library) led the first institute at the Huntington Library in San Marino, California. Twenty-three community college professors joined Deverell and other scholars to explore Pacific Rim history and learn more about globalizing U.S. History. The second institute took place in Washington, DC, after the AHA meeting. Philip Morgan (Johns Hopkins University) led this institute, and Teaching Division member Josh Reid joined Morgan along with other scholars. At this seminar, participants explored the influence of Atlantic encounters on the U.S. survey course.

On April 12, the AHA New-York Historical Society, the Institute for Constitutional History, and New York University co-sponsored “The Constitution in the Classroom: A “Teach-In,”” and members of the TD attended. The speakers included Justice Sonia Sotomayor, Sanford Levinson (University of Texas-Austin), Eric Foner (Columbia University), and Linda Greenhouse (New York Times and Yale University). The day ended with a teaching session that included Robert Cohen (NYU), Laura Dull (SUNY-New Paltz), Stacie Brensilver (NYU), and Mia Nagawiecki. (NYHS) The four sponsoring organizations hope to collaborate on other workshops for K-12 teachers. In November, there was a follow up conference. A panel on Constitutional History in High School Classroom is being held on Friday at the 2015 annual meeting.

The Tuning Project expanded with two conferences. The first took place in May 2014. Five participants of the Tuning Project (Sara Haviland, Eric Platt, Sarah Shurts, Emily S. Tai, and Elaine Carey) organized a conference at St. Francis College in Brooklyn on Teaching History to Undergraduates. Initially, they expected 30 to 40 participants. The response was overwhelming. Over 130 historians gathered to discuss declines in enrollment, students who struggle academically, recruitment of transfer students, student retention, and greater administrative demands for assessment and accountability. The organizers wrote a blog post regarding the conference and will follow up with a Perspectives article.
The second meeting took place in August with Julia Brookins, Anne Hyde, and other Tuners gathered at the Pacific Coast Branch of the American Historical Association to talk about how to introduce Tuning to colleagues, why history matters to general education requirements, and what to do with the materials that have been created by the Tuning Project.

With programming at the 2015, TD completed its work on the Teagle Foundation grant, “Preparing Graduate Students in History for Teaching,” which sought to better integrate the scholarship of teaching and learning into graduate education in history. Members of TD collaborated with a small group of experts in history teaching and learning to put together two sessions for the New York meeting, “Teaching with Primary Sources: What Students Wish Professors Knew,” and “What’s the Problem? Turning Teaching Questions into Scholarship of Teaching and Learning Research.” In addition, the teaching and learning group came up with the idea of an informal event to build community among AHA members with a keen interest in teaching and learning issues. The resulting Teaching and Learning Networking Opportunity on Sunday afternoon promises to be an excellent chance for attendees not only to meet each other and affirm the AHA as a go-to organization for learning about history teaching, but also for historians to meet TD representatives and published scholars of history learning research.

Members of the Teaching Division also worked with Ad Hoc Committee on Contingent Faculty (Non-Tenure Track Committee): Philip Suchma, Lynn Weiner, Charlie Zappia, Shrlene Sayegh, and Monique Laney. Over the year, member of the committee and AHA staff members met. A series of three surveys were developed, and those surveys of non-tenure track faculty, chairs, and students were circulated in the fall. Over 400 adjuncts responded, over 130 department chairs, over 500 undergraduate students. The committee met this weekend to begin analyzing the data in preparation to complete their report.

In the summer, Jim Grossman and Elaine Carey met with members of the College Board. The College Board revised its exams using the C3 framework and the Tuning Project. With the release of the exam, this new collaboration turned political due to the response to the new APUSH exam. Since the summer, Grossman and Carey met again with the College Board to assist in creating materials for AP teachers. Further opportunities for AHA members will continue with the rollouts for AP Europe and AP World.

To promote the teaching of History at the K-12 levels, the TD has continued to work with the Gilder Lehrman Institute of American History (GLI), National History Day, and the College Board. On Saturday, January 3, 2015, the AHA, the GLI, NHD, the History Channel, and the College Board hosted a K-12 workshop: “Food Will Win the War: A K-12 Educators’ Workshop on Teaching World War I, 1914-1919.” Scholars and teachers presented different approaches for using food as a category of analysis when teaching about World War I. Along with the workshop, the TD put together an array of panels, workshops, and pedagogical presentations. Dana Schaffer wrote the Resource Guides on K-12 Sessions of Interest [http://www.historians.org/annual-meeting/resources-and-guides/k-12-sessions-of-interest] and Teaching Sessions of Interest [http://www.historians.org/annual-meeting/resources-and-guides/teaching-sessions-of-interest], which she circulated to members of the TD and posted on the blog as well as blasted in emails. The TD hopes that having information directed at teachers as well as an evening reception will encourage more K-12 membership.

The TD continues to work with the Social Science Research Council, consulting with sociologists Richard Arum and Josipa Roksa, authors of Academically Adrift, on a study to understand undergraduate student learning in order to offer tools to improve instruction. Members of the TD participated in a “listening” with Arum and Roksa in December 2013 and will participate in a follow-up meeting in March 2014.¹

As Vice-President, I have benefited from the work of my TD colleagues. The enthusiasm and energy of Trinidad Gonzales, Peter Porter, and Josh Reid have made this experience well worthwhile. I particularly want to thank Anne Hyde who rotated off the TD in 2014 but has continued to coordinate the Tuning Project and her ongoing advocacy for the teaching of history. We have all been fortunate to work with Jim Grossman, Dana Schaffer, Julia Brookins, Emily Swafford and all the AHA staff who answer questions and coordinate all that we do with humor and insight. Peter rotates off the TD this year, and his work on the division has been invaluable. Lastly, I extend a warm welcome to Brenda Santos who joins the TD in 2015.

2014 American Historical Review Report

Robert A. Schneider, Editor

I would like to report on the American Historical Review to the members of the Council of the American Historical Association.

Board of Editors

The Board of Editors is at full strength and working hard. We try not to burden Board members with unworthy or unpromising manuscripts. All submissions are first read and evaluated in-house. Only a fraction of these are passed on to two Board members for their review. In addition, the BOE serves as an advisory council on a whole range of matters, especially in the commissioning and curating of editorial projects (forums, roundtables, review essays, etc.). And I have also charged members with seeking out and recommending promising work that might find a place in our pages.

Current members of the BOE:

David A. Bell (Princeton) Modern Europe
Herman L. Bennett (Graduate Center, CUNY) Theory and Methods
Timothy J. Brook (U. of British Columbia) East Asia
Belinda J. Davis (Rutgers, New Brunswick) Modern Europe
Sandra Greene (Cornell) Africa
Susan Juster (U. of Michigan) Early American
John Jeffries Martin (Duke) Early Modern Europe
Jan Plamper (Goldsmiths, University of London) East Europe, Russia
Prasannan Parthasarathi (Boston College) South Asia
Cynthia Radding (University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill) Latin America
Randolph Roth (Ohio State) Modern U.S.
Carol Symes (U. of Illinois, Champagne-Urbana) Medieval
Judith E. Tucker (Georgetown) Middle East

I should note that as of this year, I have expanded and reconfigured the composition of the Board. There are now thirteen members; a position for the Middle East has been added; finally, there is now a position each for East and South Asia.

I should note too that while members are largely selected based upon their expertise and accomplishments, there is also the concern to balance the composition of the Board in terms of gender and institutions (private and public).

AHR Activities
Editorial Initiatives:

- AHR Conversation. For the past seven years (excluding 2010 when I was on leave) we have published the AHR Conversation. The idea behind this is to select a topic of wide interest, recruit scholars from a range of fields and periods, and conduct an on-line discussion, moderated by the Editor, which is then lightly edited, footnoted and published in the December issue. Last year’s topic was, “How Size Matters: The Question of Scale in History.” This year’s topic is “The Challenge of Explaining Historical Changes and Transitions,” which we hope to publish in the April issue. The participants are: Emmanuel Akyeampong (Harvard), Caroline Arni (Basel), Pamela Cossey (Dartmouth), Mark Hewitson (University College, London), William Sewell (Chicago).

- Projects for Forums, Exchanges, Roundtables and Review Essays. As always, the main way for the editors to shape the journal and its content is by commissioning and encouraging Forums, Review Essays and other genres of publication. There are several Roundtables in the works as well (the Roundtable is a genre of publication I have introduced, comprised of a series of essays—seven to ten—that are shorter than regular articles, addressing a subject of general interest): “Ending Civil Wars,” “The Archives of Decolonization”, and “The State of the Humanities: Global and Historical Perspectives.” There are also several Review Essays on “Comparative History,” Big Data in Historical Research” “Food History,” “New Economic History,” among other subjects. While Review Essays are in many ways among the most useful and popular kinds of articles we publish, we have had great difficulty commissioning these successfully-- that is, to the point of publication. We are thus making a renewed effort to see that more of these sorts of essays appear in our pages. In either February or April, we will be publishing an “Exchange” between Jo Guldi and David Armitage, authors of The History Manifesto (Cambridge, 2014) and two critics of the book, Deborah Cohen and Peter Mandler.

- Digital Projects. Two initiatives are relevant here. First, we have been engaged with several historians at Stanford working on “Mapping the Republic of Letters,” a project that uses sophisticated mapping and network analysis to present a new view of eighteenth-century intellectual and cultural life. We now have six essays in hand that are in the final stages of the review process. Second, we have commissioned three Review Essays of websites specifically designed for scholars (as opposed to teachers, students or the general reader), and which take advantage of digital methods in order to analyze historical materials in new ways.

AHR Staff

The editorial and production staff of the AHR at Bloomington continues to function at an excellent level, with relatively little turn-over. Key members of the staff are the graduate students who serve as Editorial Assistants (EAs). The EAs are responsible, under the direction of Assistant Editor Allison Madar, for the enormously complex process of selecting reviewable books, assigning books to reviewers, and then editing the reviews once they come in. They also proofread the entire journal before it goes to press. EAs normally serve three year terms, often renewable for a fourth year. The current Editorial Assistants, with their areas of specialty, are:

AMANDA KOCH  (foreign language: Spanish)
U.S. (post 1930)

AMY RANSFORD (foreign language: French and basic Dutch)

Religion (American)
Early America (to 1830)
Canada (to 1830)

Asia

DAVID EACKER (foreign language: German, Persian, Russian)

Russia/former Soviet Union
Northern Europe
Eastern Europe

DENISA JASHARI (foreign language: Spanish)

ADRIENNE CHUDZINSKI (foreign language: basic French)

In addition to these Editorial Assistants, the office of the AHR, 914 Atwater, is home to five other people who are indeed truly responsible for the excellent journal we edit and publish five times a year:

Alex Lichtenstein (Associate Editor, Associate Professor of History, Indiana University)
Allison Madar (Assistant Editor, Book Reviews)
Jane Lyle (Assistant Editor, Articles)
Cris Coffey (Operations Manager)
Jessica Smith (Production Assistant)

It is hard for me to express how crucial all of these people are to everything we do. They take pride in being associated with the AHR—and it shows!

Book Reviews

One of the most important services we provide, both to our readers and the profession as a whole, is the extensive Book Review section of the journal. Since January of last year, we have had a new Book Review Editor, Allison Madar. With her assumption of this position, we have been able to increase both the efficiency and scope of this aspect of our operation. We now are reviewing 200 books an issue (1000 a year). In addition, we are continuing in our efforts to secure book from publishers, especially from presses not located in Europe or North America, which do not normally send us review copies. We continue to rely upon members and others for suggestions for appropriate scholarly books to review that might escape our notice.

Oxford University Press

This is the third year of our relationship with Oxford University Press as our publishing partner. In general, the relationship has been a good and productive one. In all my dealings with Oxford, and especially with Trish Thomas, Executive Editor, Humanities Journal, I have been impressed with their willingness to accommodate our particular needs and their eagerness to market the journal to libraries and institutions where we heretofore have not had much access.

Cooperation with the AHA and IU on Technical Matters

This year has been a busy one on the technical front. After much input from staff members at the AHA, especially Vanessa Varin, Seth Denbo and Liz Townsend, we have entirely revamped our webpage. And after extensive discussions and negotiations with IT services at Indiana University, we have ungraded our digital connections. Work is currently being undertaken to increase our connectivity speed and capacity and to remove our server off-site. With this, we can look forward to importing software from Oxford University Press to update our editorial management system.

Search for New Editor

As everyone certainly knows by now, the search for a new Editor last year did not end successfully. We have been authorized by the College of Arts and Sciences, IU, and the American Historical Association to conduct a new search, which has already begun. More will be said about this at our Council meetings.

Budget, Printing and Publishing
The journal is operating within its 2014-15 budget.

Included is an Appendix is the Operating Budget for 2014-15, as well as charts displaying information on book reviews and article submissions.

I welcome any comments you care to share on this report or any other issues relating to the AHR.

Minutes of the 129th Business Meeting
Goldstein called the meeting to order at 4:45 p.m.

Report of the Executive Director
Grossman reported that the 2015 meeting has welcomed over 5,400 participants, held the largest ever poster session, and allowed 250 graduate students to attend for free under a new registration category, which enables faculty to bring groups of students for only $10 each. After reviewing the AHA’s five categories of activity - professional issues, teaching and learning in history, historical research, advocacy, and networking – he focused especially on advocacy. Grossman explained how the AHA has been broadening avenues of advocacy and emphasizing professional development through initiatives such as the Tuning Project and the Committee on Professional Evaluation of Digital Scholarship.

Report of the AHR Editor
Schneider gave his final report as American Historical Review Editor. He reviewed the last decade and emphasized that through the AHR the AHA has a profound impact on the discipline that goes far beyond membership and subscriptions.

Report of the Nominating Committee
Kennedy reported that the Nominating Committee met in Washington, D.C., from Feb 8-9, 2014, to determine a slate of candidates for the 2014 election. The election ballots were distributed in June 2014, and 3000 votes were received, representing over 21 percent of all members. He also announced his successor, Takashi Fujitani of the University of Toronto.

Reports of the Vice Presidents

Teaching Division
Carey applauded the expansion of the Tuning Project, which sponsored several conferences and teaching workshops. She discussed Grossman’s response to national press concerning the AP US History exam, the K-12 workshop “Food Will Win the War,” and the Teaching Division’s collaboration with the Social Science Research Council on their Measuring College Learning Project to improve student learning and instruction.
Professional Division
Levine highlighted three main accomplishments: the creation of a Perspectives ethics column, the extension of Annual Meeting child care grants, and petitioning the Governor of Virginia to revoke an executive order that requires department chairs to fill out a public financial disclosure form.

Research Division
Aron, on behalf of McNeill, stated that McNeill has been part of a search committee looking for Schneider’s successor at the American Historical Review. He also reported on changes to both the administration of prizes and the composition of the program committee for the purpose of engaging more participants.

Other Business
Goldstein awarded past president Pomeranz a plaque in recognition of his work on behalf of the AHA over the past three years.

AHA member Barbara Weinstein moved to suspend a bylaw in order to consider a resolution submitted on December 22 concerning academic freedom in Israel-Palestine.

Goldstein reviewed the business meeting procedures and the criteria for the discussion of proposed resolutions. She explained that the resolution in question had arrived more than seven weeks after the November 1 deadline and could not, on those grounds alone, be placed on the agenda; nor did Council act on January 2 to waive a bylaw in order to put it on the agenda directly. Grossman gave two reasons for the Council’s decision: a lack of fairness to the general membership to raise a complex issue without time for research and reflection, and the disenfranchisement of members who would like to have debated the resolution but could not adjust their travel plans in order to be present.

Goldstein announced that 30 minutes would be allotted for discussion of Weinstein’s motion, after which a quorum of members present at the meeting would vote by paper ballot on whether to suspend the relevant bylaw in order to consider the resolution. She instructed the meeting that the suspension of a bylaw was, in constitutional terms, a serious matter, requiring a two-thirds majority in order to pass.

Several members took turns speaking for and against suspending the bylaw. Members in favor of suspension questioned why procedural matters should impede debate on an important issue. Those opposed argued that a suspension undermined the principles of fairness and timeliness. The Executive Committee distributed paper ballots and asked membership to vote “yes” (in favor of suspension), “no” (opposed), or “present” (abstention).

Goldstein announced a final tally of 144 “no,” 51 “yes,” and 3 “present” votes. The motion to suspend was not passed.
Goldstein asked if there was new business. A member inquired if the AHA would take steps to inform the membership about the topics included in the resolution so that the membership could be fully informed about the issues. Goldstein responded that in the interest of enabling members to discuss, as historians, the issues relating to the conversation at that day’s business meeting, Ruiz would devote half of her presidential sessions at the 2016 meeting to the historical context of conflict between Israelis and Palestinians. Grossman added that the AHA is dedicated to opening its meeting program to whatever issues members think are important. He invited members to submit proposals to the Program Committee.

Goldstein passed the gavel to the new AHA president Vicki Ruiz.

Ruiz adjourned the meeting.

Roles include, but are not limited to: presenting a paper in a formal session, participating in a roundtable, presenting at an experimental session, presenting a poster, and chairing and/or commenting on a session. Participation in a plenary session stands outside this limitation.”

• Approved a letter to Jonathan Jarvis, director of the National Park Service, in response to the decision to relocate the National Archives for Black Women’s History collection from the Mary McLeod Bethune Council House National Historical Site to the National Park Service’s Museum Resource Center in Landover, MD. The letter urges that the collection be housed on the historic site as envisioned in the authorizing legislation and encourages the site’s renovation to a standard adequate to preserve the records and to allow the collection to be utilized by researchers.

• Approved an addition to the AHA’s Guidelines for the Hiring Process (http://bit.ly/1hLVrWn) that states, “The AHA considers it unacceptable to record or videotape any employment interview activity that takes place in conjunction with the AHA’s Annual Meeting.”

June - December 2014

Through email conversation, from June 25 - December 19, 2014, the Council of the American Historical Association made the following decisions:

• Approved the nomination of John Martin (Duke Univ.) to serve on the Board of Editors of the American Historical Review.

• Issued a statement endorsing a bill proposed by Senator Dick Durbin (D-IL) to expand student loan forgiveness to adjunct faculty.

• Issued a statement in support of the College Board’s revised framework for the Advanced Placement US history course.

• Appointed Peter Jelavich (Johns Hopkins Univ.) as AHA delegate to the Friends of the German Historical Institute. Jelavich will serve as chair for this three-year term.

• Approved a statement of support for the Council on Graduate Schools’ Resolution on Deadlines for Accepting Offers of Admission.

• Approved the AHA to be a petitioner in a suit brought by the Reporters Committee for Freedom of the Press to unseal the records of a 1942 grand jury proceeding concerning the US government’s investigation of the Chicago Tribune for publishing a story regarding the Japanese military’s plan to attack US forces at Midway in advance of the historic battle. The story appeared to be based on a leaked top-secret Navy dispatch.

- Agreed to cast AHA’s vote to approve the National Coalition for History’s endorsement of the amended version of bill S.398 to create a commission to study the potential creation of a National Women’s History Museum.

- Approved a statement protesting the New York State Board of Regents’ proposed modification to the Regents Examinations allowing students to choose between Global History and Geography or US History and Government. The statement encouraged the Board of Regents to consider a method by which both Global History and Geography and US History and Government remain vital components of the curriculum and the Regent’s Exam.

- Approved a change to AHA Bylaws, Article IV, Section 3.c.ii, clarifying the make-up of the selection committee for the editor of the American Historical Review. The bylaws now reflect that the search committee consists of: “in the case of the editor of the American Historical Review: the vice-president for research, a current or past member of the Board of Editors or a past member of the AHA Research Division, and two faculty members nominated by the journal’s host department or university.”

Independent Auditors’ Report

Report on the Financial Statements

We have audited the accompanying financial statements of American Historical Association, which comprise the statements of financial position as of June 30, 2014 and 2013, and the related statements of activities and cash flows for the years then ended, and the related notes to the financial statements.

Management’s Responsibility for the Financial Statements

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of these financial statements in accordance with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America; this includes the design, implementation, and maintenance of internal control relevant to the preparation and fair presentation of financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor’s Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits. We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audits to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. The procedures selected depend on the auditor’s judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the financial statements, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity’s preparation and fair presentation of the financial statements in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity’s internal control. Accordingly, we express no such

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of American Historical Association as of June 30, 2014 and 2013, and its revenues, expenditures and changes in net assets for the years then ended.

Other Matters

Report on Supplemental Information

Our audits were made for the purpose of forming an opinion on the basic financial statements of American Historical Association taken as a whole. The accompanying supplemental statements of expenses by program, and net assets by classification for the years ended June 30, 2014 and 2013 and the schedule of general operations for the years ended June 30, 2014, 2013 and 2012 are presented for purposes of additional analysis and are not a required part of the basic financial statements. Such information is the responsibility of management and was derived from and relates directly to the underlying accounting and other records used to prepare the financial statements. The information in these schedules has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audit of the basic financial statements, and, in our opinion, is presented fairly in all material aspects in relation to the financial statements taken as a whole.

1. DESCRIPTION OF THE ORGANIZATION

The American Historical Association (the Association) is a District of Columbia non-stock corporation founded in 1884 and incorporated by Congress in 1889 for the promotion of historical studies, the collection and preservation of historical manuscripts, and the dissemination of historical research.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of Accounting

The financial statements have been prepared on the accrual basis of accounting in accordance with generally accepted accounting principles. Accordingly, revenues are recognized when earned and expenses are recognized when incurred.

Cash and Equivalents

The Association considers all highly liquid investments purchased with an original maturity of three months or less to be cash equivalents.

Pledges Receivable

Pledges receivable represents amounts which have been promised but not yet received. Pledges beyond one year are discounted to reflect the present value of the pledge.

Investments

Investments are recorded at market value. Realized and unrealized gains and losses on investments are reported on the statement of activities as they occur.

Inventory

Inventory consists of publications and is stated at the lower of cost or market, based on the FIFO (first-in, first-out) method of accounting.
2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (Continued)

Fixed Assets

Furniture and equipment are reported at cost. Assets and capital lease purchases are depreciated over a three to five year estimated life using the straight line method. Depreciation expense for the years ended June 30, 2014 and 2013 was $154,041 and $99,064, respectively.

Accounts Receivable

Accounts receivable is recorded net of an allowance for uncollectible receivables, based on management’s evaluation of outstanding accounts receivable at year end. The allowance for uncollectible receivables was $0 and $0 for the years ended June 30, 2014 and 2013, respectively.

Deferred Revenue

The Association records income for membership dues, subscriptions, registration fees and publication advertising which have been paid in advance as deferred revenue.

Endowment Funds

The Financial Accounting Standards Board issues Staff Position No. FAS 117-1, Endowments of Not-for-Profit Organizations: Net Asset Classification of Funds Subject to and Enacted Version of the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act (UPMIFA) and Enhanced Disclosures for All Endowment Funds (the FSP). The FSP provides guidance on the net asset classification of donor restricted endowment funds for a not-for-profit organization that is subject to an enacted version of the Uniform Prudent Management of Institutional Funds Act of 2006. The FSP also improves disclosures about an organization’s endowment funds (both donor restricted endowment funds and board designated endowment funds) whether or not the organization is subject to UPMIFA.

Reclassification

Certain amounts reported in 2013 have been reclassified to conform with the 2014 financial statement presentation.
2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (Continued)

Net Assets

Net assets are reported by the Association in accordance with Financial Accounting Standards Board (FASB) 116 and 117. Accordingly, net assets have been reported using the following categories.

Unrestricted

Unrestricted net assets represent resources over which the Council has discretionary control and are used to carry out operations of the Association in accordance with their bylaws.

The Council’s designated fund, included as part of the unrestricted net assets, was established to accumulate a reserve for the Association.

Temporarily Restricted

Temporarily restricted net assets represent contributions and grants, which have been restricted by donors for specific programs or activities. Restrictions, which have been met by the passage of time or expenditure of net assets, are reported as revenues released from restrictions on the statement of activities. For the years ended June 30, 2014 and 2013, the Association received $1,924,450 and $310,998 in temporarily restricted contributions and grants, respectively.

Permanently Restricted Funds

Permanently restricted net assets represent contributions which have been restricted by donors indefinitely. Investment income generated from the principal of the permanently restricted net assets is used to fulfill programs and the general operations of the Association. For the years ended June 30, 2014 and 2013 the Association did not receive any permanently restricted contributions. The balance of the permanently restricted funds was $481,370 and $481,370 for the years ended June 30, 2014 and 2013, respectively.
2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (Continued)

Gifts and bequests of property

Gifts and bequests of property are recorded at the earlier of the date received or when the bequest is no longer subject to probate and its value can be reasonably estimated. Gifts and bequests are valued at their estimated fair market value on the date they are recorded.

Donated Services and Materials

Contributions of services are recognized if the services received create or enhance nonfinancial assets or require specialized skills, and are provided by individuals possessing those skills and would typically need to be purchased if not provided by donation. Contributed services and promises to give services that do not meet the above criteria are not recognized. During 2014 and 2013, the Association did not receive any donated materials or services.

Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect certain reported amounts and disclosures. Accordingly, actual results could differ from those estimates.

Income Taxes

The Association is a nonprofit organization, which is exempt from federal income taxes under the provision of Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. However, the Association is subject to unrelated business income tax for activities conducted outside its tax exempt purpose. The Association conducted unrelated business activities that resulted in net operating losses during 2014 and 2013, respectively accordingly no provision for income taxes was recorded.

Functional Allocation of Expenses

The costs of providing the various programs and other activities have been summarized on a functional basis in the Statement of Activities. Accordingly, certain costs have been allocated among the programs and supporting services benefited.

4. FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENTS

FASB Statement No. 157, Fair Value Measurements, establishes a framework for measuring fair value. That framework provides a fair value hierarchy gives the highest priority to unadjusted quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities (Level 1 measurements) and the lowest priority to unobservable inputs (Level 3 measurements). The three levels of the fair value hierarchy under FASB Statement No. 157 are described as follows:

Level 1 Inputs to the valuation methodology are unadjusted quoted prices for identical assets or liabilities in active markets that the Foundation has the ability to access.

Level 2 Inputs to the valuation methodology include
- Quoted prices for similar assets or liabilities in active markets;
- Quoted prices for identical or similar assets or liabilities in inactive markets;
- Inputs other than quoted prices that are observable for the asset or liability;
- Inputs that are derived principally from or corroborated by observable market data by correlation or other means. If the asset or liability has a specified (contractual) term, the Level 2 input must be observable for substantially the full term of the asset or liability.
4. FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENTS (Continued)

Level 3 Inputs to the valuation methodology are unobservable and significant to the fair value measurement.

The assets or liability’s fair value measurement level within the fair value hierarchy is based on the lowest level of any input that is significant to the fair value measurement. Valuation techniques used need to maximize the use of observable inputs and minimize and the use of unobservable inputs.

Following is a description of the valuation methodology used for assets measured at fair value. There have been no changes in the methodologies used at June 30, 2014.

Mutual funds: Valued at the net asset value (NAV) of shares at year end.

Cash and equivalents: Valued at cost.

Equity Securities: Valued at the closing price reported on the active market on which the individual securities are traded.

The preceding method described may produce a fair value calculation that may not be indicative of net realizable value or reflective of future fair values. Furthermore, although the Association believes its valuation methods are appropriate and consistent with other market participants, the use of different methodologies or assumptions to determine the fair value of certain financial instruments could result in a different fair value measurement at the reporting date.

The following sets forth by level, within the fair value hierarchy, the Association’s assets at fair value as of June 30, 2014:

5. ENDOWMENT AND BOARD-DESIGNATED FUNDS

The Association endowment includes both donor-restricted endowment funds and funds designated by the Council to function as endowments/board-designated funds. As required by GAAP, net assets associated with endowment funds, including funds designated by the Council to function as endowments, are classified and reported based on the existence or absence of donor imposed restrictions.

Interpretation of Relevant Law

Based on its interpretation of the provisions of UPMIFA and the FSP described in Note 1, the Association feels that retaining its existing policies regarding net asset classification of its donor restricted endowment funds is appropriate. Distribution of any gift, bequest or fund is governed by the Association’s governing documents and donor agreements. Thirty-nine percent of the Association endowment funds make available the use of principal which are able to be utilized for the intended purpose of the fund. As a result of the ability to distribute corpus, the Association has determined that these donor restricted contributions received subject to the governing documents and subject to UPMIFA are classified as temporarily restricted until appropriated, at which time the appropriation is reclassified to unrestricted net assets. Board designated endowments do not possess external spending restrictions and therefore are classified as unrestricted net assets. Endowment funds that require the corpus remain restricted in perpetuity represent eight percent of the Association’s endowment funds are classified as permanently restricted.

Funds with Deficiencies

From time to time, the fair value of assets associated with an individual donor-restricted endowment fund may fall below the level that the donor or UPMIFA requires the Association to retain as a fund of perpetual duration. There were no deficiencies as of June 30, 2014.

Return Objectives and Risk Parameters

The Association has adopted investment and spending policies for endowment and board-designated assets that attempt to provide a predictable stream of funding to programs supported by its endowment while seeking to maintain the purchasing power of the endowment assets. Endowment assets included those assets of donor-restricted funds that the Association must hold until appropriated as well as board-designated funds. Under this policy, as approved by the Council, the board-designated assets are invested in funds with a primary objective of safety and liquidity. The objective of the restricted assets is to maintain the real purchasing power in order to support the Association’s programs, initiatives and operations.

Strategies Employed for Achieving Objectives

To satisfy its long-term, rate-of-return objectives, the Association relies on a total return strategy in which investment returns are achieved through both capital appreciation (realized and unrealized) and current yield (interest and dividends). As a result, the Association has elected to adopt a well-diversified asset allocation consisting of equity and fixed income securities. The Association’s current asset allocation for endowment funds targets a composition of between 0 to 10 percent in money market funds, 50 to 70 percent in equities and 30 to 50 percent in fixed income funds.

Spending Policy and How the Investment Objectives Relate to Spending Policy

Expenditures from the board-designated net assets are released as approved by the Association’s Council. The earnings on the temporarily restricted net assets are reinvested. Temporarily restricted net assets are released from restricted funds and are used in accordance with donor stipulations.

The changes in endowment net assets for the year ended June 30, 2014 are detailed for income, expenses, investment earnings, investment expenses and transfers on the supplemental statement of net assets by classification.

6. COMMITMENTS

The Association has entered into agreements for rental of space for the annual meeting. The Association is required to pay a portion of the anticipated room revenues in the event that the conference is canceled. Cancellation insurance has been obtained by the Association to offset any potential future losses. The Association anticipates that all minimum room rental requirements will be met.
7. RETIREMENT PLAN

The Association maintains a qualifying defined contribution retirement plan for qualifying full-time employees under Internal Revenue Code Section 403(b). The Association contributes up to a maximum of 10 percent of the employee’s total annual compensation to the plan each year. The contributions are fully vested and nonforfeitable. For the years ended June 30, 2014 and 2013, contributions to the plan were $96,121 and $98,015, respectively. There were no contributions due to the plan at June 30, 2014 and 2013, respectively.

8. CONCENTRATION OF RISK

The Association maintains cash balances in a financial institution which is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for amounts up to $250,000. The Association is exposed to concentrations of credit risk at times when cash balances exceed the FDIC limit. The Association has not experienced any losses and believes they are not exposed to significant risk.

9. SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

The Association’s management has evaluated events and transactions for potential recognition or disclosure through January 16, 2015, the date the financial statements were available to be issued. There were no subsequent events that require recognition of, or disclosure in, these financial statements.
