The Family Jewels
The CIA, Secrecy, and Presidential Power
By John Prados

With a new epilogue that discusses former CIA employee Edward Snowden’s revelation of massive covert surveillance by the NSA, this powerful accounting of intelligence abuses by the CIA reveals why such abuses and attempts to conceal them are endemic to spying and proposes how a democratic nation can rein in its spymasters.

The Making of Arab Americans
From Syrian Nationalism to U.S. Citizenship
By Hani J. Bawardi

Using previously untapped archives to reclaim a forgotten history, this groundbreaking study traces Arab American advocacy to the early twentieth century, when mass immigration as a result of Arab grievances with Ottoman Turks fostered a unified Arab American political identity.

Cambridge University Press
New to Cambridge from 2015

We are delighted to announce the expansion of our prestigious history journals list with four new titles

BRITISH CATHOLIC HISTORY

British Catholic History (formerly titled Recusant History), is the official journal of the Catholic Record Society. It is committed to serving as a forum for innovative, vibrant, transnational, inter-disciplinary scholarly research on the history of Catholicism in the British Isles. Current and archival content will be available online from 2015.

link

IRISH HISTORICAL STUDIES

Irish Historical Studies is the authoritative voice in Irish history. It publishes articles embodying original research on Irish history; articles on the scope and teaching of Irish history; select documents, with editorial comment; select and critical bibliographies and guides to sources. Published for the Irish Historical Society and the Ulster Society for Irish Historical Studies, current content will be available online from 2015.

link

BJHS THEMES

BJHS Themes aims to publish open access, high-quality, scholarly, engaging collections of history of science papers, which address provocative themes, and which will be free for readers and offer no financial barrier to authors. Like its sister publication, British Journal for the History of Science, BJHS Themes is a journal of the British Society for the History of Science, a major learned society for its subject.

link

ENTERPRISE & SOCIETY

Enterprise & Society, published for the Business History Conference, offers a forum for research on the historical relations between businesses and their larger political, cultural, institutional, social, and economic contexts. Studies focused on individual firms and industries and grounded in a broad historical framework are welcome, as are innovative applications of economic or management theories to business and its context.

PRAISE FOR THE JOSEPH SMITH PAPERS

The project’s high standards for documentary editing are complemented by maps, biographies, thorough historical introductions to the transcribed manuscripts, and stunningly detailed notes. This project remains the gold standard in the field of historical documentary editing.”

—Thomas P. Slaughter,
Professor of History, Rochester University,
and Editor, Reviews in American History

The opportunity in these volumes to understand Smith and his earliest adherents on their own terms, in their own words, and in their own times is unprecedented and will be of great benefit . . . to scholars of Mormonism and historians of American religion.”

—Kenneth Minkema,
Executive Editor of The Works of Jonathan Edwards,
Yale University
JOURNAL OF AMERICAN HISTORY, SEPT. 2011

The editorial staff have gathered every available Smith document, subjected them all to a three-step verification process, and provided an extensive historical annotation without theological commentary in conjunction with an advisory board of Smith scholars. . . . In addition to extensive introductory material, the volume contains useful reference material including a chronology, maps, glossary, and essay on sources. . . . This is an extraordinary work. . . . Highly recommended.”

—Daniel Liestman,
Library Director, DeVry University

New and notable from Duke Journals

Celebrities and Publics in the Internet Era
An issue of Public Culture (Vol. 27, no. 1)
Sharon Marcus, special issue editor
Contributors to this issue consider how new digital media platforms have changed celebrity—and how they haven’t. They question if new media such as search engines, Twitter, Facebook, Instagram, GIFs, and reality TV have qualitatively changed what celebrity is and how fans interact with celebrities and one another.

Recent and forthcoming issues of Radical History Review
Queering Archives
Volume 1: Historical Unravelings (#120)
Volume 2: Intimate Tracings (#122)
Daniel Marshall, Kevin P. Murphy, and Zeb Tortorici, special issue editors
These special issues explore the ways in which the notion of the “queer archive” has become increasingly crucial for scholars working at the intersection of history, sexuality, and gender. The issues consider historical materials from queer archives around the world as well as the recent critical practice of “queering” the archive by looking at historical collections for queer content (and its absence).

Opium and Empire
The Lives and Careers of William Jardine and James Matheson
Richard J. Grace
978-0-7735-4452-9 $34.95 cloth

“By far the most complete narrative on the lives of Matheson and Jardine to date … adds significantly to our understanding of the period and provides extensive references, many of which appear for the first time in print.”
Paul A. Van Dyke, Sun Yat-sen University, and author of The Canton Trade Life and Enterprise on the China Coast, 1700–1845

The British System of Government and Its Historical Development
Christopher Edward Taucar
978-0-7735-4429-1 $34.95 paper
978-0-7735-4428-4 $100.00 cloth

From White to Yellow
The Japanese in European Racial Thought, 1300–1735
Rotem Kowner
978-0-7735-4455-0 $39.95 paper
978-0-7735-4454-3 $125.00 cloth

“This magisterial work by Rotem Kowner fills an important gap in contemporary scholarship about racial history and European perceptions of the Japanese during the age of maritime explorations, beginning with the voyages of Marco Polo. The author approaches a delicate and complex topic with a breadth of knowledge and erudition based on the careful analysis of primary documents from a wide variety of both printed and manuscript sources in numerous languages.”
M. Antoni J. Ucerler, University of San Francisco

The Idea of Liberty in Canada during the Age of Atlantic Revolutions, 1776–1838
Michel Ducharme

PANDEMIC DISEASE IN THE MEDIEVAL WORLD
RETHINKING THE BLACK DEATH
Edited by Monica H. Green

The Medieval Globe is a new journal sponsored by the Program in Medieval Studies at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign. Its ground-breaking inaugural double issue, also available as a free-standing book, brings together scholars from the humanities and social and physical sciences to address the question of how recent work in the genetics, zoology, and epidemiology of plague’s causative organism (Yersinia pestis) can allow a rethinking of the Black Death pandemic and its larger historical significance.

Topics include

- The status of plague in the modern world and the relevance of historical research to contemporary concerns about emerging infectious diseases.
- New discoveries and analytical methods in archaeology that foster more integrated comparison with documentary sources for plague’s effects – including new archeological evidence for the Black Death’s impact on a Jewish community in Catalonia.
- Investigation of the causes and consequences of plague persistence and the establishment of enzootic foci in Western Europe and the Ottoman world.
- The effects of long-term depopulation and changes in the immune profile of surviving populations.
- The implications of evolutionary genetics for postulating a much wider geographic extent of the late-medieval pandemic than hitherto imagined, and the benefits of “global health thinking” for expanding analysis even further.
- Correction of a misdiagnosed “plague” image and reflection on the nature of knowledge-production in a digital age.

This issue of The Medieval Globe is published with the support of the World History Center at the University of Pittsburgh.

Monica H. Green (Arizona State University) specializes in the global history of health and medieval European history. She has published widely on medieval medicine.

Carol Symes is the founding executive editor of The Medieval Globe. She is the Lynn M. Martin Professorial Scholar at the University of Illinois, Urbana-Champaign, where she is associate professor of history, theatre, and medieval studies.

The freshest take on the West

With a chronological narrative that offers a truly global context, The Making of the West tells the story of the cross-cultural exchanges that have shaped Western history. The book weaves together the different strands of history—social, cultural, political, economic, intellectual—into an integrated portrait of Western civilization that helps students see the big picture. The text places the West’s emergence in a global context, explaining its position in the world today and emphasizing the role of borderlands and non-European regions in this process. Instructors can choose from a variety of formats and each version comes with a wealth of helpful supplement options.

Introduce your students to the global past

A History of World Societies and Understanding World Societies use vibrant social history to introduce students to the global past. Informed by the latest scholarship, these survey texts have been thoughtfully developed to meet the needs of the evolving course. Proven to work in the classroom, the books’ regional and comparative approach helps students understand the connections of global history while providing a manageable organization. With engaging special features that teach historical analysis, an outstanding map and art program, and sustained attention to social history, both books offer a global perspective that is easy to teach and easy to learn. Each book is available in a number of affordable formats, including e-book and loose-leaf, and is accompanied by a rich array of print and multimedia options.

WAYS OF THE WORLD
A BRIEF GLOBAL HISTORY WITH SOURCES
SECOND EDITION
Robert W. Strayer, The College at Brockport: State University of New York

Available in a loose-leaf version, as an e-book or with LaunchPad, featuring LearningCurve

This brief-by-design narrative is truly global and focuses on significant historical trends, themes, and developments in world history. Following each chapter’s narrative are collections of primary written and visual sources organized around a particular theme, issue, or question so that students can consider the evidence the way historians do. This edition is integrated with LearningCurve—an online adaptive learning tool that helps students come to class better prepared.

“Ways of the World with sources engages students in the process of historiography and the analysis of primary sources and gives students a good sense of what historians do.”

– Kate McGrath, Central Connecticut State University

Where students learn

We designed LaunchPad as a resource to help students achieve better results. LaunchPad combines an interactive e-book with high-quality multimedia content and ready-made assessment options, including LearningCurve adaptive quizzing. Pre-built units are easy to assign or adapt with your own material, such as readings, videos, quizzes, discussion groups, and more.

Students surveyed about LaunchPad reported positive results.

LearningCurve, Macmillan Education’s adaptive quizzing program, quickly learns what students already know and helps them practice what they don’t yet understand. Game-like quizzing motivates students to engage with their course and reporting tools help teachers discern their students’ needs.
