

EDUCATION:

Brown University. Ph.D., History, May 1998. M.A., History, May 1993.
University of Wisconsin-Madison. B.A., History, May 1991.

SELECTED EMPLOYMENT EXPERIENCE:

University of California, Davis. Assoc. Dean for Academic Programs and Planning, L&S, 2017-present.
University of California, Davis. Chancellor's Leadership Professor of History, 2016-present.
The Pennsylvania State University. McCabe Greer Professor of History, 2014-2016.
University of California, Davis. Associate Professor and Professor of History, 2005-2014.
University of Denver. Assistant Professor and Associate Professor of History, 2000-2005.
University of Oklahoma. Reach for Excellence Honors Professor, 1998-2000.

SELECTED PUBLICATIONS:

BOOKS:

For Liberty and Empire: How the Civil War Bled into the Indian Wars. (New York: Basic Books, under contract).
Battle Lines: A Graphic History of the Civil War. With Jonathan Fetter-Vorm. (New York: Hill and Wang, 2015).
A Misplaced Massacre: Struggling over the Memory of Sand Creek. (Cambridge, MA: Harvard University Press, 2013). Received five national awards, including the Bancroft Prize.
A River and Its City: The Nature of Landscape in New Orleans. (Berkeley: University of California Press, 2003). Received the Abbott Lowell Cummings Award.

SELECTED SCHOLARLY ARTICLES, BOOK CHAPTERS, REVIEW ESSAYS:

"Boundaries of Memory at Sand Creek." In Gary W. Gallagher and J. Matthew Gallman (eds.), Civil War Places: Seeing the Conflict through the Eyes of Its Leading Historians. (Chapel Hill: University of North Carolina Press, forthcoming 2019), 49-55.
"Sand Creek." In Andrew Lichtenstein and Alex Lichtenstein (eds.), Marked, Unmarked, Remembered: A Geography of American Memory. (Morgantown: West Virginia University press, 2017), 61-65.
"Reconstruction in the U.S. West." In Greg Downs and Kate Masur, Reconstruction: The Official National Park Service Handbook. (Washington: Eastern National Press, 2016), 124-135.
"Black Lives Mattered." The Times Literary Supplement, (December 7, 2016), 4-7.
"Lies and Steals." The Times Literary Supplement, (February 11, 2015), 7-8.
"Remembering Sand Creek, Rethinking the Civil War." Common-place (January 2014).
"Perimeters of Pain." The Times Literary Supplement, (July 26, 2013), 8-9.
"What's in a Name? The Fight to Call Sand Creek a Battle or a Massacre." In Ronald K. Wetherington and Frances Levine (eds.), Battles and Massacres on the Southwest Frontier. (Norman: University of Oklahoma Press, 2013).
"The Hills are Alive." The Nation, (July 4, 2011), 34-37.
"Even Paranoids Have Enemies: Rumors of Levee Sabotage in New Orleans's Lower Ninth Ward." Journal of Urban History, 35 (July 2009), 627-639.
"Boundary Issues: Clarifying New Orleans's Murky Edges." Journal of American History, 94 (December 2007), 695-703.
"New Orleans's Phantom Slave Insurrection of 1853: Racial Anxiety, Urban Ecology, and Human Bodies as Public Spaces." In Andrew Isenberg (ed.), The Nature of Cities. (Rochester: University of Rochester Press, 2006), 3-23.
"The Necropolis of the South." Reprinted in Howard Chudacoff (ed.), Major Problems in American Urban and Suburban History. (Boston: Houghton-Mifflin, 2005), 155-161.