The Axis Alliance and Japanese-American Relations, 1941

By PAUL W. SCHROEDER

WINNER of the 1956 Beveridge Award, this persuasive analysis of a controversial chapter in American history deals with the role of the Tripartite Alliance in Japanese-American relations. Skillfully stressing the strong influence of public opinion, the author places responsibility for America's "too hard and rigid" policy not on the Administration and a party only, but on the whole nation. 254 pages, $4.50

British Investment and the American Mining Frontier, 1860-1901

By CLARK C. SPENCE

Beveridge Award Honorable Mention for 1956

December, $4.50

Rails, Mines, and Progress: Seven American Promoters in Mexico, 1867-1911

By DAVID M. PLETCHER

DURING the years 1867-1911 Mexico went through an unprecedentedly rapid economic development in which the United States played a dominant part. This study, which won the 1957 Beveridge Award, examines the writings and careers of seven American promoters who carried capital and influence southward, and deals with their intentions, accomplishments, and failures. Six maps clarify the locale of their ventures. December, $5.50

20th CENTURY RUSSIA

Donald W. Treadgold

Associate Professor of Russian History

UNIVERSITY OF WASHINGTON

From Iskra, Nicholas II and Lenin, to Sputnik, national communism and Khrushchev is a long and winding path. In 20th CENTURY RUSSIA, Professor Treadgold presents a clear picture of the change that brought Russia from a half-literate agricultural state to the enormous industrial power whose shadow blankets the world today.

Not only has the political scene been portrayed, but also the transformation in social and cultural life. The book is divided into four parts:

- (1) The Early Growth of Russian Communism and the Last Years of the Tsar
- (2) Lenin's Rule and Stalin's Seizure of Power
- (3) Stalin's Rule Before World War II
- (4) The U.S.S.R. From the Beginning of World War II to the Present

For his sources, Professor Treadgold has not relied entirely upon official Soviet texts, but also upon the reports of Russian emigres, foreign travelers and correspondents, and the results of research by Western scholars. Maps, illustrations, and bibliographical notes guide the student through the maze of modern Russian history.

A Yankee Jeffersonian

Selections from the Diary and Letters of William Lee of Massachusetts

Edited by MARY LEE MANN. In France as consul from 1801 to 1817, and in Washington's governmental circles for the next twelve years, William Lee was a keen observer and astute recorder. This volume not only provides fresh views of Jefferson, Madison, Napoleon and many others, but contains detailed descriptions of such unusual events as the disastrous fire at the wedding celebration of Napoleon and Marie-Louise, and the story of Christopher Hughes—who delivered the Treaty of Ghent to President Madison, but completely consumed the President's wine consignment en route. Illustrated. A BELKNAP PRESS BOOK $5.75

Lucretia Mott

By OTELIA CROMWELL. The first detailed and comprehensive account of the famed nineteenth century reformer often regarded as "America's greatest woman." Involved with almost all the liberal movements of her time, the soft-spoken but forceful Mrs. Mott preached free religious inquiry, attacked many social dogmas and conventions, and sought freedom for the slave as well as rights for women. A good account of Lucretia Mott and her influence has long been overdue, and Miss Cromwell's book should prove invaluable to all students of nineteenth century social problems. $5.00

Great Basin Kingdom

An Economic History of the Latter-Day Saints, 1830-1900

By LEONARD J. ARRINGTON. The Mormon dream of building a true kingdom of God was a part of a great American dream. Their experiment in group economics, too, can be regarded as a more explicit formulation of the total American experience. For economists and social scientists, this is an invaluable study of an "under-developed" American economy; for historians, an exploration of one of the most neglected phases of American history; and for students of religion, a comprehensive treatment of one of the few native American religious movements. $9.00

Henry Adams: The Middle Years, 1877-1891

By ERNEST SAMUELS. In the Education, Henry Adams seemed to dismiss twenty of his most active years with the statement: "Education had ended in 1871, life was complete in 1890." This second volume of the biographical trilogy begun with The Young Henry Adams probes deeply into those creative, tragic years. From such new sources as Adams' unpublished letters to his wife, a striking diary fragment and correspondence among the other members of Adams' circle, Mr. Samuels has reconstructed the definitive account of Adams' relationship with his wife, her suicide, his embittered labors on the history, his unhappy passion for Mrs. Cameron and his ultimate flight to the South Seas. The Story of the Westward Movement

BY THOMAS D. CLARK

Head, Department of History, University of Kentucky

This is the story of the American frontier from the middle of the eighteenth century to the end of "free land" in the 1890's. Pioneering was a colorful process and none of its color has been lost in Dr. Clark's narrative. At the same time, he never loses sight of the interrelations between westward expansion and the changes which were taking place elsewhere in the nation. The result is a book of breadth and depth, a unique contribution to its subject.

TSARIST RUSSIA AND BALKAN NATIONALISM

It analyzes Russia's Near Eastern policy, giving particular attention to Russian involvement in nationalist developments in Bulgaria and Serbia. JAMES S. COLEMAN. Beginning with the inauguration of British rule in 1900, the author describes and analyzes the events that have caused Nigerians to demand—and the British to promise—independence in 1960. ## THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC

by RICHARD HOFSTADTER,
WILLIAM MILLER
and DANIEL AARON

Retaining the crisp, lucid style and the taste and simplicity of exposition that was responsible for the unprecedented success of The United States: The History of a Republic, this new two volume set offers even greater coverage of our country's development as a nation.

More than just an expansion of The United States, all the material has been thoroughly re-worked and brought completely up to date through the 1958 elections. Three new chapters (one cultural and two economic and social) have been added to the coverage of the 20th century. In addition, there are new chapters on Jefferson, the West before the Revolution, and the Constitution.

Remarkably well balanced, THE AMERICAN REPUBLIC slights no important facet of American history—economic development, westward movement or foreign affairs.

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation will award a substantial number of fellowships for the academic year 1960-61 for first-year graduate work leading to a career in college teaching. The period when nominations are accepted has passed for the 1959-60 awards, but historians who are presently members of college or university faculties are encouraged to bear in mind this important means of assistance to their students who will be seniors in 1959-60, as well as former students who have taken extra-academic employment but desire to begin graduate study.

Two regional chairmen, Professor Dewey Grantham (Region VII) and Professor Donald W. Treadgold (Region XIV) will be available at this Annual Meeting of the American Historical Association to answer any questions about the program of the Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation which members of the Association might wish to raise. Arrangements to talk with them may be made through the Information Desk. At any time information about the program may be obtained from:
