2012 Professional Division Report

Jacqueline Jones, University of Texas at Austin
Vice-President of the Professional Division

The Professional Division is charged with addressing issues related to the responsibilities and working conditions of historians; and with collecting and analyzing information related to the training and employment of historians. The PD also oversees the Advisory Committee on Disability as well as the LGBTQ Historians' Task Force. I would like to take this opportunity to thank members of the division for their hard work this year—Laura Isabel Serna, Sara Abosch, and Andrew Rotter.

History graduate students and professional historians continue to face serious challenges stemming from a difficult job market, budget cuts imposed by academic administrators and state legislators, and the increasing reliance on part-time and adjunct faculty on the part of colleges and universities. The Professional Division seeks to highlight these challenges and provide relevant data so that individuals, departments, and institutions of higher learning can make informed decisions. In addition, the PD serves as an advocate for both students and employed historians confronting a transformed landscape of higher education, where online learning, the digital humanities, and the contraction of the tenure and tenure-track work force are affecting the teaching and study of history in dramatic ways. I would like to thank Rob Townsend, whose detailed studies of the lifetime trajectory and current status of the academic workforce, and historians in particular, have proved invaluable to the division's deliberations. A prime example is Mr. Townsend's article, "Underpaid and Underappreciated: A Portrait of Part-Time Faculty." Published in the September, 2012 issue of Perspectives, this article is based on data collected by the Coalition on the Academic Workforce Survey of the Contingent Workforce. This issue will be the topic of the Chairs' luncheon at the 2013 annual meeting.

In an effort to promote the history PhD as a "malleable" or "versatile" degree, the PD organized a "mini-conference" on the topic "Beyond Plan B," held at the annual meeting in New Orleans. Individual panels featured historians who have pursued careers outside teaching. We also sponsored a panel that posed the question, how should graduate education reflect the many career options of history PhDs? Other sessions included a workshop on converting one's CV to a resume appealing to a wide range of employers, and another on applying for jobs with the federal government. The PD also oversaw the annual interview workshop and chairs' luncheon.

The PD voted to continue to offer childcare subventions for early career scholars attending the annual meeting; this program was successful for the 2012 meeting (twelve applicants received funding), and a subcommittee of Ms. Serna and Mr. Rotter chose the recipients for 2013 meeting. This program expended $2000 each of the two years.

The PD seeks to encourage history graduate programs to make their placement records accessible to all, regardless of whether their graduates find jobs in academia or other fields. Prospective students are entitled to information related to the placements of the institutions to which they are applying. Accordingly, the division wrote and council approved a document calling for transparency in graduate-program placement records-- "Best Practices on Transparency in Placement Records" published in the October 2012 issue of Perspectives.

Responding to the increasingly common practice of history departments merging with other departments, the PD wrote and council approved a best-practices document titled “When Academic Departments Merge: First Principles, Best Practices.” This document suggests ways that historians can retain their disciplinary integrity while cooperating with colleagues from different disciplines within a departmental structure.

Discussions generated within the PD, as well as responses to specific queries from members generally, ranged over a wide variety of professional issues. Among those topics were the state of the job market; workplace issues confronting non-tenured and non-tenure track faculty; the job-search problems facing PhDs who have been out of graduate school for several years without finding a tenure-track position; lay-offs of tenured faculty due to budget cuts; ethical issues stemming from some faculty members’ lamentable practice of posting online examples of students’ poor writing and exam gaffes, raising questions of free speech, professionalism, and confidentiality; and the policy related to AHA Perspectives job ads posted by institutions under AAUP censure. An on-going project undertaken by the PD is the revision of the association’s Statement on Standards.

In other business: Members agreed not to award the Troyer Anderson Prize for 2012. The division conducted a modest survey of historians who work for for-profit educational institutions, in an effort to gain some understanding of the teaching responsibilities and the workplace conditions of these historians.

The vice-president of the PD chaired a committee consisting of Tom Sugrue, Anne Hyde, and Sara Abosch to consider the problem of assessing faculty, in response to a growing trend of non-historians and even non-scholars establishing standards of evaluation that might or might not be appropriate for historians. The document, titled “The ‘Productivity’ Question: Assessing Historians and Their Work” was published in the March 2012 issue of Perspectives and posted on the association’s website.

Special thanks to Sharon Tune and Debbie Doyle, and special recognition to Laura Isabel Serna, who is rotating off Council this year. In addition to her hard work on behalf of the Professional Division, Ms. Serna has also served as co-chair of, and showed exemplary commitment to, the Graduate and Early Career Committee.

2012 Research Division Report

John McNeill, Georgetown University
Vice-President of the Research Division

The AHA's Research Division generally divides its times between routine oversight tasks related to the Association prizes and publications, and more expansive attention to research issues in the discipline at large.

Much of our larger work focused on the relationship between the discipline and digital media. In April we reviewed a petition from AHA members asking us to provide guidelines and support for digital scholarship. We did not feel the members of the Division were suitably knowledgeable on the issue, so we asked Council to establish a task force of people with some real expertise. That task force should be formed in the near future and will help formulate an AHA position on thorny issues concerning digital scholarship, tenure, promotion, etc.

In response to recent efforts to restructure the way journals are supported and financed, and in particular to the so-called Finch Report in the UK, we drafted a statement, now posted on the AHA website, addressing various issues connected to the future of journal publishing. We are concerned about the current array of proposed solutions, such as author payment charges, that only seem suited to the natural sciences. We hope that historians will continue to engage with the issues and conversations about the future of scholarly journals in our discipline and in general.

Book prize activities consumed an unusually large amount of the Division's time this year. We helped to develop fundraising initiatives for two new prizes—the Friedrich Katz Prize in Latin American History and the Jerry Bentley Prize in World History. The two prizes will fill gaps in the Association's coverage of the field, while also honoring two exceptional leaders in the discipline. Alan Karras and Merry Weisner-Hanks have agreed to lead the fundraising for the Bentley Prize, and Barbara Weinstein and John Coatsworth will lead the effort for the Katz Prize. Please refer to the AHA web site for the details, but I hope you will consider helping us reach our goals by donating to the prize.

Alongside the two new prizes, we surveyed our book prize committees, and discovered considerable resistance to the idea of receiving e-books for review instead of printed books. It appears the ability to write and mark in books remains an important part of the reviewing experience.

To address another concern of the committees, we decided to shift the calendar for book prize submissions to the calendar year. Starting in 2013, we will use the copyright date listed in the book, instead of leaving it to the prize committees to try to determine when a book was published during some portion of the calendar year. This should simplify the options for publishers and committees alike.

In addition to our work on the prizes, we made a few changes to policies covering the annual meeting, such as restricting the submission of single papers, asking organizers to consider carefully the authority of their session chairs, and barring commentators who have a conflict of interest with respect to other presenters. We have also been working with the Program Committee to clarify policies related to a small pool of funds intended to help a few foreign scholars participate in the annual meeting.

More generally, we have been reviewing recent surveys of members who attend the meeting. While there are generally high levels of satisfaction with the meeting, there are a number of areas for improvement—both in the opportunities for networking and participation, and in the guidance we provide to members thinking about submitting a session. We will be working on that in the coming year.

By way of conclusion, I wish to thank the members of the Research Division Stephen Aron, Martha Howell, Thomas Sugrue, and our ex-officio member Rob Schneider for their good work and judgment in 2012. Lastly, I wish to thank Rob Townsend for his indispensable guidance.

2012 Teaching Division Report

Patricia Limerick, University of Colorado, Boulder
Vice-President of the Teaching Division

In the allocation of stature and respect, the position of teaching in the history profession has not always led the pack. With the growing financial vulnerability of humanities higher education, the need to make a forceful case for the contribution that history teachers, at every level, make to the nation's well-being has emerged as an unmistakable professional priority. Thus, I write my last annual report with both gratitude for and satisfaction over the fact that, in my role as Vice President for Teaching, I have always felt that our division was recognized as the equal of the Research and Professional Divisions, and never treated as the "second-class" division, a state of affairs easily explain by the commitment to teaching of all the Council Members, whatever their division.

Over these three years, I have had the privilege of serving with remarkable Teaching Division Members—Barbara Tischler, Cheryl Cody, Anne Hyde, and Peter Porter—who are as insightful as they are good-natured, as creative as they are reliable. As we cooked up projects and initiatives, Executive Director Jim Grossman was always supportive, and a fine source of ideas, comments, and suggestions. It has also been a great pleasure to have Rob Townsend assigned to the Teaching Division as our AHA staff member. With these auspicious arrangements, we have brought a number of projects to fruition, injecting excitement and promise into the work of the Division, and to the AHA as a whole.

The largest of these undertakings is the AHA Tuning Project (anyone struggling to decode this term will find relief in thinking of the moment when members of an orchestra take their diverse instruments and bring them into harmony before bursting into glorious sound). Responding to an overture (speaking of symphonies) from the Lumina Foundation, Jim Grossman and I co-authored a proposal for a major project in defining the dimensions, values, and core capabilities delivered by a history education. While securing a three-year grant, at an amount not a great distance from $1 million, was certainly good news, an even better unit of good news came when Teaching Division Member Anne Hyde agreed to serve as the project's principal leader. On the AHA staff, Julia Brookins took on important aspects of launching and coordinating the initial convening of the Tuning Leadership Group in January of 2012, and then, in June, the first meeting of a group of "Tuners," a remarkable group drawn from history departments nationwide. While a few AHA members responded with skepticism or even hostility to this project, the fear that the project sought to impose a top-down, mandated set of practices on departments was ungrounded. The Tuning Project provides a critical opportunity for historians to think through some of our most basic goals in the preparation of students at the post-secondary level and to put forward a clear statement of the asset that a history education offers individual students and, through the work of those students, to the nation at large. (Anyone who would like to hear more of my arguments on behalf of this project can find, on the AHA website, a filmed version of my speech to the summer Tuning meeting this year, with opening remarks from Jim Grossman.) For the majority of the participants, the project has provided a welcome and helpful opportunity to talk with a community of historians about their work. Faculty members are finding, in Tuning, a fresh way of looking at their own work in relationship to the work of their colleagues, as well as a path to identifying the resources in their institutions and local communities that can help in the cause of launching their students into satisfying and productive careers. The Tuning project, moreover, gives the AHA leadership and staff a fine chance to observe and to make the most of the changing responses of history professors to collaborative efforts on behalf of the greater good of students, faculty, and the world.

The Teaching Division is, as well, starting up the “American History, Atlantic and Pacific” project, as part of the National Endowment for the Humanities’ Bridging Cultures at Community Colleges initiative. Stemming from a proposal prepared by Jim Grossman and Cheryl Cody, the project will give twenty-four community college faculty members the chance to revise and develop the syllabi for their U.S. history survey, with the particular aim of placing their subject in a global context. Through presentations, articles, and social media, we anticipate that the intellectual harvest from this enterprise will extend well beyond the faculty members directly participating in the project. The first of three institutes for the project will be held at the Huntington Library in January 2013. Under the leadership of William Deverell (University of Southern California and Huntington Library), the first project institute will focus on the Pacific Rim. Next year, Philip Morgan (Johns Hopkins University), will lead an institute at the Library of Congress on the Atlantic Rim. The team leaders on the project, including Cheryl Cody (Houston Community College-West Loop Campus) of the Teaching Division and Kevin Reilly (Raritan Valley Community College, and also a member of the Tuning leadership team), have already selected a fine group of participants for the institutes. We look forward to hearing more about the results of their efforts in the coming years.

The Tuning and Bridging Cultures projects are only the highest-profile undertakings in an array of initiatives for the Teaching Division. One new project originated at the 2011 AHA conference. With a big lecture class starting immediately upon my return from the January convention in 2011, I found myself looking at the AHA members passing me in the hallways with a heightened recognition of their knowledge and expertise. To put this more bluntly, facing the prospect of 200 freshmen in a big survey class, I saw every passing AHA Member as a person who was very likely to know something I needed to know. The AHA membership now appeared as an under-tapped (and renewable!) natural resource, and I began to search for a way to provide historians a vehicle for pooling their knowledge and sharing their breakthroughs and discoveries. The plan for a new interactive feature of the AHA Website, Teaching Tipping Points, is now well-defined, and we are about to begin soliciting contributions. As much as possible, we are aiming to shift the dominant tone of teaching tips websites—often more prescriptive than companionable—to narrative (shaped, for instance, by confronting a classroom frustration and then arriving at a remedy), since narrative is, after all, a core asset of the historical enterprise. I attach here, for your contemplation, my December article for Perspectives on History, providing a description of this project. Working with Rob Townsend and Pilarisetti Sudhir of the AHA Staff, who made a productive and pleasant visit to Boulder, and Sam Bock, a talented history graduate student at the University of Colorado, has already provided a solid dose of fun (and fun is a desired feature in the Teaching Tipping Points exchange!). The AHA staff hopes to have this site up and running early in the next year. In order to avoid burdening my successor as Vice President with any un-asked-for obligation, I will continue to work on the Teaching Tipping Points project until it is well-launched. We are currently looking for volunteers to participate on an editorial board for the project, and also for volunteers to contribute their own stories and ideas to the site as it gets underway. (If you are interested, please send a note to Rob Townsend soon.)

In addition to our most visible efforts, members of the Division are working on a number of other projects that are no less deserving of attention. Anne Hyde spent her “free time”—that is, when she was not chairing the Tuning Project, winning the Bancroft Prize, and teaching with energy and originality—working with the California History/Social Science Project on a pilot Blueprint for History and Social Science Education. They released the first piece of that project—a module on the Civil War—late last year. And Peter Porter, in his free time—that is, when he is not teaching up a storm and working with organizations like the Gilder Lehrman Institute to maximize opportunities for fellow teachers—is working with the Alliance for Curriculum and Professional Development in World History, a national effort to improve the preparation for teachers for the world history classroom. AHA staff member Robert Townsend is working with the National Council for Social Studies and the Council of Chief State School Officers on a project to develop a new set of state-level standards for the social studies. He reports that the drafting process—which draws together a number of different disciplines, constituencies, and political interests—is taking much longer than initially expected.

As the 2013 program attests, many of the Division’s initiatives have a tangible presence, here in New Orleans, in the form of sessions and workshops this year. The opening workshop on Undergraduate Teaching provides an early public preview of the Tuning Project. Cheryll Cody, in her free time (yes, this has become a bit of a formula in this report, but I can’t stop now!)—when she is not doing the lord’s work in engaging and coaching students from a range of backgrounds and varying levels of skill, and navigating her way through the challenges of a community college working environment—organized a fascinating session on “What Brain Science Can Teach Us about Our Students,” featuring Janet Zadina of the Tulane School of Medicine. Peter Porter organized a session with a number of National History Day Teachers on “Sacrifice for Freedom: The Normandy Institute – Telling the Stories of America’s D-Day Soldiers, Sailors, and Marines.” Robert Townsend and I assembled a session on “The Oldest Alternative Profession: What Doctoral Programs Can Do to Improve History Teaching.”

In conclusion, I offer a special note of thanks to Cheryll Cody, who is rotating off the Division this year. Working with her, soon after we had taken office, on the difficult matter of the Texas State History Standards was one of life’s more memorable and instructive adventures, and the session she put together on that big state’s big controversy was one of the most illuminating conference sessions I have ever attended (and I am, alas, a conference animal who has exceeded what should be a lifetime dosage limit of session attendance). For many reasons, I am grateful to the AHA Nominating Committee of days of yore for the chance to serve as the AHA Vice President for Teaching. Had my electoral fate gone in a different direction, what really would have not been tolerable would have been missing the chance to meet Cheryll and become her friend.

2012 American Historical Review Report

Robert A. Schneider, Editor

I would like to report on the American Historical Review to the members of the Council of the American Historical Association.

Board of Editors

The Board of Editors is at full strength and working hard. We try not to burden Board members with unworthy or unpromising manuscripts. All submissions are first read and evaluated in-house. Only a fraction of these are passed on to two Board members for their review. In addition, the BOE serves as an advisory council on a whole range of matters, especially in the commissioning and curating of editorial projects (forums, roundtables, review essays, etc.). And I have also charged members with seeking out and recommending promising work that might find a place in our pages.

Current members of the BOE:

David A. Bell (Princeton, Modern Europe)
Timothy Brook (University of British Columbia, Asia)
Harold J. Cook (Brown, Early Modern Europe)
Philip Ethington (USC, Methods and Theory)
Gregory Grandin (NYU, Latin America)
Jochen Hellbeck (Rutgers, Eastern Europe & Russia)
Dagmar Herzog (CUNY, Graduate Center, Modern Europe)
Susan Juster (U. of Michigan, Early American)
Sumathi Ramaswamy (Duke, World)
Emily Rosenberg (U. of California, Irvine, Modern U.S.)
Carol Symes (University of Illinois, Champagne-Urbana, Medieval)
Megan Vaughan (King's College, Cambridge, Africa)

I should note that while members are largely selected based upon their expertise and accomplishments, there is also the concern to balance the composition of the Board in terms of gender and institutions (private and public).

AHR Activities

Editorial Initiatives:

- AHR Conversation. For the past five years (excluding 2010 when I was on leave) we have published the AHR Conversation. The idea behind this is to select a topic of wide interest, recruit five or six scholars from a range of fields and periods, and conduct an on-line discussion, moderated by the Editor, which is then lightly edited, footnoted and published in the December issue. Last year's topic was, "Historical Perspectives on the Circulation of Information." The current topic is "Historians and the Study of Emotions," which you will find in the December issue. The participants are: Nicole Eustace (NYU), Eugenia Lean (Columbia), Julie Livingston (Rutgers), Jan Plamper (London), William Reddy (Duke) and Barbara Rosenwein (Loyola, Chicago).

- Projects for Forums, Exchanges, Roundtables and Review Essays. As always, the main way for the editors to shape the journal and its content is by commissioning and encouraging Forums, Review Essays and other genres of publication. Some of these have been accepted for publication, others are currently being revised or reviewed, still others have only been commissioned. Forthcoming AHR Forums are: “Forecasting Futures” (December); “Transnational Lives in the Twentieth Century” (February); and “Pre-Histories: Three Case Studies,” (June). Those submitted and either undergoing review or revision are: “New Perspectives on Musical Life and Social Identities in Europe and America,” and “You the People” (On European historians writing U.S. history). There are three Roundtables also in the works. (A Roundtable is a genre of publication I introduced, entailing a series of essays—seven to ten—that are shorter than normal articles, addressing subject of broad interest.) They are “How to End a Civil War,” “The Archives of Decolonization,” “Biology and History,” and “The State of the Humanities: Historical and Global Perspectives.” As always, we have had less success in publishing Review Essays, which are, in fact, some of the most valuable pieces we publish. Several have been commissioned, but the yield on these initiatives has been disappointingly low.
- Prize for Best Article in Digital History. In March we announced a competition for the best article in digital history, with submissions due in March 2013 and publication of the winning article in October of that year. The Call for Submissions has gone out via several different outlets. Our sense is that there is a great deal of awareness and interest in this competition among digital historians. We hope that this will yield a wide range of promising submissions. Spread the word!

Consideration of an International Advisory Board

Last June I announced my intention to create an International Advisory Board, comprised of scholars from around the world who could serve as ambassadors and informants for the AHR. My understanding (from my own experience and from others I’ve spoken with) is that this sort of board functions very differently from journal to journal; in some, it is merely an honorary or symbolic feature illustrating the publication’s desire to display an international profile; for others, it serves to recruit authors or reviewers or otherwise to advise editors on the historical profession in foreign countries. From our discussion in June, my sense is that it was not terribly important to define precisely how or under what mandate it would function. In any case, in the last few months I have been trying to assemble a roster of potential members. This is indeed still a work in progress. I hope to be able to circulate a long list of names to you before the meeting, allowing you to comment on them and offer your own suggestions. In the meantime, I would be especially interested in hearing from Council members regarding possible candidates, especially from Africa (excluding South Africa, where I have many nominees) and the Middle East.

AHR* Staff

The editorial and production staff of the AHR at Bloomington continues to function at an excellent level, with relatively little turn-over. Key members of the staff are the graduate students who serve as Editorial Assistants (EAs). The EAs are responsible, under the direction of Assistant Editor Moureen Coulter, for the enormously complex process of selecting reviewable books, assigning books to reviewers, and then editing the reviews once they come in. They also proof read the entire journal before it goes to press. EAs normally serve three year terms, often renewable for a fourth year. The current Editorial Assistants, with their areas of specialty, are:

In addition to these Editorial Assistants, the office of the AHR, 914 Atwater, is home to five other people who are indeed truly responsible for the excellent journal we edit and publish five times a year:

Lara Kriegel (Associate Editor, Associate Professor of History and English, Indiana University)

Moureen Coulter (Assistant Editor, Book Reviews)

Jane Lyle (Assistant Editor, Articles)

Cris Coffey (Operations Manager)

Jessica Smith (Production Assistant)

It is hard for me to express how crucial all of these people are to everything we do. They take pride in being associated with the AHR—and it shows!

Oxford University Press

As you know, with the October issue we began publishing with Oxford University Press, the start of a ten-year contract that was signed last year. With two issues under our belt, I can say that the relationship has gotten off to a good start. There have been, to be sure, some glitches, mostly in the context of handing of our files to Cadmus Press, our printer, and the role of OUP in this process. In all my dealings with Oxford, and especially with Trish Thomas, their Director of the Journals Division, I have been impressed with their willingness to accommodate our particular needs and their eagerness to market the journal to libraries and institutions where we heretofore have not had much access.

The Question of Open Access

In recent exchanges, especially among members of the Research Division, there has been much discussion about the question of Open Access, especially the AHA's response to the Finch Report (which, I believe, was also discussed at Council). Undoubtedly this will continue to be an item for us to discuss and consider, especially as the move toward Open Access has gained support from many quarters, especially those of an official nature. In November, Rob Townsend and I attended a meeting at the American Educational Research Association, in Washington, D.C., for a small number of editors and others interested in this issue. It was an extremely interesting gathering, allowing for the airing of a surprisingly wide range of views. Rob's memo for this meeting has already been circulated. I attach to this report as an appendix my own. There will be a session at the AHA meeting, that will offer another, more public occasion to air this issue, "Peer Review, History Journals, and the Future of Scholarly Research," chaired by Rob, (with Tony Grafton, Dan Cohen, Shawn Martin and myself as panelists).

Budget, Printing and Publishing

The journal is operating within its 2012-13 budget.

Included in an Appendix is the Operating Budget for 2012-13, as well as charts displaying information on book reviews and article submissions.

I welcome any comments you care to share on this report or any other issues relating to the AHR.

2012 Committee on Minority Historians Report

Celia E. Naylor, Barnard College, Columbia University

This year members of the Committee on Minority Historians (CMH) held teleconferences on May 30, 2012 and December 14, 2012.

AHA Equity Award

The primary business for the May 30th meeting was the discussion of nominations for the AHA's Individual and Institutional Equity Awards. As noted in last year's annual report, the CMH recently revised the language for the criteria of the awards and changed the deadline for nominations to May 15th. This new, earlier deadline and the concerted efforts to advertise the award more broadly increased the number of applications for the Individual Equity Award. This year Herman Bennett (Professor of History, CUNY Graduate Center) is the AHA Individual Equity Award recipient, and the W.E. B. Du Bois Department of Afro--- American Studies at the University of Massachusetts, Amherst is the Institutional Equity Award recipient.

Annual Meeting

2012 Annual Meeting (Chicago): At the 2012 Annual Meeting, the CMH hosted its mentoring breakfast (on January 6th) and its evening reception (on January 7th). A record number of participants attended the breakfast. The CMH also organized a panel entitled "Inside Stories: Identity, Community, and the Historian's Subjectivity," featuring scholars of color who are engaged in research that intimately involves the histories of their own families and ethnic communities. The discussion centered on the particular challenges of such work, especially the connections and tensions between subjectivity and historical inquiry.

2013 Annual Meeting (New Orleans): This year we discussed changing the format of the CMH Mentoring Breakfast to a more formal structure in order to encourage discussion and interaction. As a result, the CMH Mentoring Breakfast at the 2013 AHA Annual Meeting will begin with comments from a panel of speakers focused on strategies for navigating particular aspects of the profession. Small, informal group discussions will follow the panel. In addition, for the 2013 Annual Meeting in New Orleans, the CMH has organized a panel entitled "Bodies of Evidence: Black Women's Bodies in the Atlantic World as Sites of Domination, Experimentation, and Resistance."

Committee Report(s)

Ms. Karen Cook---Bell reported on the current activities of the Graduate and Early Career Committee.

Membership

The CMH welcomed two new members in January 2012—Brenda Child (Associate Professor of American Indian Studies, University of Minnesota) and Karen Cook---Bell (Assistant Professor of History, Bowie State University). At our May 30th meeting, Shaun Lopez announced he would be resigning from the CMH due to changes in his professional life; the CMH expressed our thanks to him for all his hard work on the committee. In January 2013, as Celia E. Naylor rotates off the committee, the CMH will welcome two new members—Maria Muñoz (Assistant Professor of History, Susquehanna University) and Tyler Stovall (Professor of History, University of California, Berkeley). Brenda Child will serve as chair of the CMH in 2013.

2012 Committee on Women Historians Report

Leora Auslander, University of Chicago

The Committee on Women Historians has held three meetings in this period, one at the AHA annual meeting in Chicago and a second and third via conference call in the Spring and the Fall. The CWH initiated several new practices this year, including a brainstorming session following the Breakfast sponsored by the Committee at the 2012

AHA meeting, subsidized graduate-student tickets for the Breakfast, an effort to have a more visible presence to the AHA membership, and a more concerted effort for the committee to meet face-to-face at the annual convention.

The 2012 brainstorming session, intended to help guide the Committee as it determines its agenda for the future, was lively and well-attended. Discussion there made clear that although the CWH was created at a time when women represented only a small minority of professionally employed historians and women's history occupied a marginal position within the discipline and neither situation holds true today, the Committee is still needed. Participants at the brainstorming session emphasized the continued challenges of balancing family and work in an environment in which the requirements for tenure seem to be continually rising. Childcare is often unavailable or unaffordable. Support for leave-time to take care of children, ill partners, or parents varies tremendously from institution to institution and many argued that even when it is available, there is a stigma attached to using it. Participants found that while these challenges are faced by both women and men, they are still experienced differently. A sense also emerged from that session that such worries have become a luxury. The current crisis of the profession, including the growing scarcity of tenure-track or tenured positions, has meant that more historians are piecing together part-time and adjunct work; this poses even greater challenges to family-work balance. Finally, a number of colleagues raised questions surrounding the treatment of retired faculty. No clear agenda emerged out of that session, but all agreed that it had been useful and we would meet again this year. Invitations for the 2013 brainstorming session have been sent out to all who participated in last year's discussion and we hope that others will join us.

The cost of the Women's Breakfast, and the sense that it is not as welcoming as it should be to colleagues new to the profession, have long been troubling issues. Many graduate students and younger faculty have said that they would like to come, but find the cost prohibitive and conversations difficult to enter when have attended. The AHA is generous subsidizing graduate student tickets this year, and we have asked senior colleagues to personally invite their students to the meeting (and suggested that they might think about paying for their tickets). We have also planned to be more attentive to the newcomers at the Breakfast, assuring that they are welcomed into ongoing conversations and relationships.

One of the suggestions to emerge from the brainstorming session was that the Committee should have a greater virtual presence, through the AHA's webpage, Facebook page, and blogs. We have, frankly, found that difficult to sustain, given other demands on the Committee members' time as well as our own communicative habits. This issue will be addressed once more in the Committee's meeting and this year's brainstorming session.

The Committee has also found that meeting only through conference calls twice or three times a year to be a hindrance to its effective functioning. We are trying to institute face- to-face meetings at the annual Convention, but the cost of travel is rendering that difficult. In most years only two or at best three members of the Committee attend the Convention. We are considering video-conferences as a more realistic improvement over conference calls.

Over the year to come the Committee will continue to develop both its professional and intellectual missions. Our primary goal is to find ways to more effectively address the challenges facing women in the profession as well as sustain and expand the Breakfast and brainstorming sessions as exciting intellectual and political events.

2012 LGBTQ Task Force Report

Leisa Meyer, College of William and Mary

The Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, Queer Taskforce of the AHA was created by AHA Council at the January 2009 annual meeting. The Taskforce is composed of five members (with the vice president of the PD and Leisa Meyer of the AHA serving as co-chairs), two additional AHA members appointed by the PD (Leisa Meyer, Marc Stein), and two appointed by the Committee on Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender History (Jennifer Brier, Susan Stryker), an affiliate society of the AHA. The Taskforce has a three-year charge and meets once a year always during the AHA annual meeting with several conference calls during the year for discussion of ongoing business.

The LGBTQ Taskforce began this year by holding an Open Forum at the 2011 AHA. At this forum we presented the information we had gained through our work to this point with a focus on initial comments on the early survey results. This survey was drafted in 2011 and was disseminated to all AHA members as well as to members of affiliate organizations like the Committee on Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, and Transgender History. The final draft of the survey concentrated on questions designed to gain insight and acquiring details concerning the continuing challenges of LGBTQ historians and LGBTQ people in the profession. During the Open Forum members of the Taskforce presented some of our initial findings from the survey. Our intent here was to gain audience feedback concerning both the issues facing LGBTQ historians and the work of the Taskforce. The resulting exchange was extremely useful for the Taskforce in 2012 as some of the comments from the audience suggested ways we might hone our interpretation of the results of this survey and our final recommendations to the AHA Council.

The major focus of the Taskforce during 2012 has been on analyzing the data from the survey and drafting and revising sections of our final report due to AHA Council in January 2013.

The Taskforce held two conference calls during the year to discuss the above work and to continue laying out the report that we will be submitting to the AHA Council in 2013. We will also hold our annual meeting at the AHA conference in January 2013 in New Orleans.

2012 Pacific Coast Branch Report

Peter J. Blodgett, Executive Director

The 105th annual meeting of the Pacific Coast Branch, American Historical Association, took place at the Joan B. Kroc Institute for Peace & Justice at the University of San Diego in San Diego CA on August 9-11, 2012. The conference had 248 registered attendees, who participated in fifty-six different sessions. During the conference, Matthew Garcia (Arizona State University) spoke to the Latina/o Scholars Luncheon on the topic "Struggle in the Fields, Struggle in our Field: Reflections on the Farm Worker Movement Fifty Years after its Creation" and Jessica Weiss (California State University, East Bay) spoke to the Western Association of Women Historians luncheon on the topic "Feminism as Fans (and non-Fans) Found it: Letters to Gloria Steinem" while President Kyle Longley (Arizona State University) presented his presidential address, "Between Sorrow and Pride: Memory, the Morenci Nine, and the Vietnam War." The presidential address shall appear in expanded form in the February 2013 issue of the Pacific Historical Review.

Minutes of the Meeting of the Council of the Pacific Coast Branch, American Historical Association, the Manchester Boardroom, Joan Kroc Institute, August 9, 2012.

President Kyle Longley called the meeting of the PCB Council to order at 2:05 p.m. Following approval of the 2011 minutes and a brief discussion of the 2012 local arrangements, the Council thanked 2012 Program Committee co-chairs Matthew Garcia (Arizona State University) and Jason Colby (University of Victoria) and their committee members for their exceptional efforts in developing the 2012 program. On behalf of the Council, President Longley also welcomed Dr. James Grossman, Executive Director of the American Historical Association, who remained throughout the Council meeting.

Executive Director Blodgett followed the discussion of the 2012 program with a report on the current financial state of the PCB. Having retained all its assets in cash through the year, the PCB has avoided any financial losses for a third year and has maintained complete liquidity of all its funds. On the other hand, both the 2012 interest rate for the Business Market Rate account (0.05%) and the income from advertisers and exhibitors at the annual meeting remain at regrettably low levels. Discussion ensued upon the impact of such low interest rates upon PCB efforts to develop self-sustaining endowments for the various prizes presented by the Branch and by the Pacific Historical Review; fund-raising efforts will be pursued once non-profit status for the Branch has been obtained from the Internal Revenue Service.

Pacific Historical Review Managing Editor David Johnson then presented the report of the journal in which he noted that between August 1, 2011 and August 1, 2012, the journal received sixty-seven submissions, accepted twelve for publication, and published fourteen. Over the year, 129 scholars served as external referees for the journal. The journal published 119 book reviews with 114 reviewers representing 93 institutions. At Johnson's request, the Council then approved a slate of individuals whom the editors proposed as new PHR editorial board members and expressed its thanks to those board members whose terms had concluded. Discussion thereafter ensued concerning the ongoing negotiations with Portland State University about extending its agreement with the PCB to host the Pacific Historical Review as well as the selection of a new editor for the journal.

In the absence of Nominating Committee chair Kristine Dennehy (California State University, Fullerton), Executive Director Blodgett announced that 140 members voted in this year's election, with the following results:

President-elect for 2013: David Igler (University of California, Irvine)

New members of the PCB Council:

- David Gutierrez (University of California, San Diego),
- Liping Zhu (Eastern Washington University)
- Ana Elizabeth Rosas (University of California, Irvine)

New members of the PCB Nominating Committee:

- Sheila McManus (University of Lethbridge)
- Pedro Castillo (University of California, Santa Cruz)

Executive Director Blodgett then announced the winners of the various PCB awards:

The Pacific Coast Branch Book Award: Jun Uchida, Stanford University, for Brokers of Empire: Japanese Settler Colonialism in Korea, 1876-1945 (Harvard University Press)

The Norris and Carol Hundley Award: Nayan Shah, University of Southern California for Stranger Intimacy: Contesting Race, Sexuality, and Law in the North American West (University of California Press)

The W. Turrentine Jackson (Dissertation) Award: Trevor Griffey, "Black Power's Labor Politics: The United Construction Workers Association and Title VII Law in the 1970s" completed for the University of Washington

Thereafter, PHR Managing editor Johnson announced the two awards for articles that appeared in the Pacific Historical Review:

The Louis Knott Koontz Memorial Award (chosen by the entire editorial board) to Stacey L. Smith (Oregon State University) for "Remaking Slavery in a Free State: Masters and Slaves in Gold Rush California," published in the February 2011 issue.

The W. Turrentine Jackson (Article) Prize (chosen by the editors from among articles submitted by graduate students) to Angela Hawk (University of California, Irvine) for "Going 'Mad' in Gold Country: Migrant Populations and the Problem of Containment in Pacific Mining Boom Regions" which appeared in the February 2011 issue.

Executive Director Blodgett and incoming President Carl Abbott then offered preliminary details about the 2013 annual conference. The meeting will take place at Denver Westin Downtown on August 9-11, 2013. President Abbott announced his selection of Susan Wladaver-Morgan (Portland State University) and Elizabeth Escobedo (University of Denver), as well as the conference theme, "People in Motion, Places in Change."

Turning to the related topic of future meeting venues, Executive Director Blodgett solicited the input of PCB Councilors about sites for the 2014 meeting and beyond. Initial discussion included mention of Victoria/Vancouver, British Columbia, Los Angeles/Pasadena CA, Boise ID/Spokane WA and Albuquerque NM. Further conversations among the members of the Site Selection Committee will continue online in the coming months.

Under the heading of “old business,” Executive Director Blodgett reported on the planning for his departure from this position and his replacement by Professor Kevin Leonard (Western Washington University). Professor Leonard’s discussions with the administration at WWU have proceeded very favorably and he will work with the current Executive Director to finalize the necessary paperwork.

Still under the heading of old business, Executive Director Blodgett announced that long- time Branch member and past President Iris Engstrand (a member of the University of San Diego faculty) will receive a special Award of Meritorious Service at the PCB opening reception. This commendation will recognize Professor Engstrand’s unfailing dedication to and support of the Pacific Coast Branch throughout the course of her career.

After incoming President Abbott announced his selections for new members of the PCB award committees and the new chair of the Nominating Committee, President Longley invited AHA Executive Director Grossman to discuss new initiatives being undertaken by the national organization. Dr. Grossman mentioned the issues connected to the subject of the Friday plenary session, “Another University is Possible: Overcoming Threats to the History Profession in Texas and California,” (in which he will participate) and also reviewed efforts to define with greater clarity the full range of professional skills acquired through training in history.

Following Dr. Grossman’s presentation, with no further issues awaiting discussion, President Longley then declared the Council meeting adjourned at 3:57 PM.

Independent Auditors' Report

We have audited the accompanying statement of financial position of the American Historical Association as of June 30, 2012 and 2011 and the related statements of activities and cash flows for the years then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the Association's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by the management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the American Historical Association as of June 30, 2012 and 2011, and its changes in net assets and its cash flows for the years then ended in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

Our audits were made for the purpose of forming an opinion on the basic financial statements of the American Historical Association taken as a whole. The accompanying supplemental statements of expenses by program, and net assets by classification for the years ended June 30, 2012 and 2011 and the schedule of general operations for the years ended June 30, 2012, 2011 and 2010 are presented for purposes of additional analysis and are not a required part of the basic financial statements. The information for the years ended June 30, 2012 and 2011 has been subjected to the auditing procedures applied in the audits of the basic financial statements and, in our opinion, is fairly stated in all material respects in relation to the basic financial statements taken as a whole.

Unrestricted

Unrestricted net assets represent resources over which the Council has discretionary control and are used to carry out operations of the Association in accordance with their bylaws.

The Council's designated fund, included as part of the unrestricted net assets, was established to accumulate a reserve for the Association.

Temporarily Restricted

Temporarily restricted net assets represent contributions and grants, which have been restricted by donors for specific programs or activities. Restrictions, which have been met by the passage of time or expenditure of net assets, are reported as revenues released from restrictions on the statement of activities. For the years ended June 30, 2012 and 2011, the Association received $945,753 and $124,854 in temporarily restricted contributions and grants, respectively.

Permanently Restricted Funds

Permanently restricted net assets represent contributions which have been restricted by donors indefinitely. Investment income generated from the principal of the permanently restricted net assets is used to fulfill programs and the general operations of the Association. For the years ended June 30, 2012 and 2011 the Association did not receive any permanently restricted contributions. The balance of the permanently restricted funds was $481,370 and $481,370 for the years ended June 30, 2012 and 2011, respectively.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES (Continued)

Gifts and bequests of property

Gifts and bequests of property are recorded at the earlier of the date received or when the bequest is no longer subject to probate and its value can be reasonably estimated. Gifts and bequests are valued at their estimated fair market value on the date they are recorded.

Donated Services and Materials

Contributions of services are recognized if the services received create or enhance nonfinancial assets or require specialized skills, and are provided by individuals possessing those skills and would typically need to be purchased if not provided by donation. Contributed services and promises to give services that do not meet the above criteria are not recognized. During 2012 and 2011, the Association did not receive any donated materials or services.

Estimates

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect certain reported amounts and disclosures. Accordingly, actual results could differ from those estimates.

Income Taxes

The Association is a nonprofit organization, which is exempt from federal income taxes under the provision of Section 501(c)(3) of the Internal Revenue Code. However, the Association is subject to unrelated business income tax for activities conducted outside its tax exempt purpose. The Association conducted unrelated business activities that resulted in net operating losses during 2012 and 2011, respectively accordingly no provision for income taxes was recorded.

Functional Allocation of Expenses

The costs of providing the various programs and other activities have been summarized on a functional basis in the Statement of Activities. Accordingly, certain costs have been allocated among the programs and supporting services benefited.

3. INVESTMENTS

The value of investments was as follows:

The market value of stocks is estimated based on quoted market prices for those investments. None of the investments are held for trading purposes.

4. FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENTS

FASB Statement No. 157, Fair Value Measurements, establishes a framework for measuring fair value. That framework provides a fair value hierarchy gives the highest priority to unadjusted quoted prices in active markets for identical assets or liabilities (Level 1 measurements) and the lowest priority to unobservable inputs (Level 3 measurements). The three levels of the fair value hierarchy under FASB Statement No. 157 are described as follows:

- Level 1 Inputs to the valuation methodology are unadjusted quoted prices for identical assets or liabilities in active markets that the Foundation has the ability to access.
- Level 2 Inputs to the valuation methodology include
- Quoted prices for similar assets or liabilities in active markets;
 - Quoted prices for identical or similar assets or liabilities in inactive markets;
 - Inputs other than quoted prices that are observable for the asset or liability;
 - Inputs that are derived principally from or corroborated by observable market data by correlation or other means. If the asset or liability has a specified (contractual) term, the Level 2 input must be observable for substantially the full term of the asset or liability.

4. FAIR VALUE MEASUREMENTS (Continued)

Level 3 Inputs to the valuation methodology are unobservable and significant to the fair value measurement.

The assets or liability's fair value measurement level within the fair value hierarchy is based on the lowest level of any input that is significant to the fair value measurement. Valuation techniques used need to maximize the use of observable inputs and minimize and the use of unobservable inputs.

Following is a description of the valuation methodology used for assets measured at fair value. There have been no changes in the methodologies used at June 30, 2012.

Mutual funds: Valued at the net asset value (NAV) of shares at year end.

Cash and equivalents: Valued at cost.

Equity Securities: Valued at the closing price reported on the active market on which the individual securities are traded.

The preceding method described may produce a fair value calculation that may not be indicative of net realizable value or reflective of future fair values. Furthermore, although the Association believes its valuation methods are appropriate and consistent with other market participants, the use of different methodologies or assumptions to determine the fair value of certain financial instruments could result in a different fair value measurement at the reporting date.

The following sets forth by level, within the fair value hierarchy, the Association's assets at fair value as of June 30, 2012:

	Fair Value	Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Treasury notes and bonds	$ 1,560,804	$ 1,560,804	$ -	$ -
Equity mutual funds	2,500,488	2,500,488	-	-

5. ENDOWMENT AND BOARD-DESIGNATED FUNDS

The Association endowment includes both donor-restricted endowment funds and funds designated by the Council to function as endowments/board-designated funds. As required by GAAP, net assets associated with endowment funds, including funds designated by the Council to function as endowments, are classified and reported based on the existence or absence of donor imposed restrictions.

Interpretation of Relevant Law

Based on its interpretation of the provisions of UPMIFA and the FSP described in Note 1, the Association feels that retaining its existing policies regarding net asset classification of its donor restricted endowment funds is appropriate. Distribution of any gift, bequest or fund is governed by the Association's governing documents and donor agreements. Thirty-nine percent of the Association endowment funds make available the use of principal which are able to be utilized for the intended purpose of the fund. As a result of the ability to distribute corpus, the Association has determined that these donor restricted contributions received subject to the governing documents and subject to UPMIFA are classified as temporarily restricted until appropriated, at which time the appropriation is reclassified to unrestricted net assets. Board designated endowments do not possess external spending restrictions and therefore are classified as unrestricted net assets. Endowment funds that require the corpus remain restricted in perpetuity represent eight percent of the Association's endowment funds are classified as permanently restricted.

Funds with Deficiencies

From time to time, the fair value of assets associated with an individual donor-restricted endowment fund may fall below the level that the donor or UPMIFA requires the Association to retain as a fund of perpetual duration. There were no deficiencies as of June 30, 2012.

Return Objectives and Risk Parameters

The Association has adopted investment and spending policies for endowment and board-designated assets that attempt to provide a predictable stream of funding to programs supported by its endowment while seeking to maintain the purchasing power of the endowment assets. Endowment assets included those assets of donor-restricted funds that the Association must hold until appropriated as well as board-designated funds. Under this policy, as approved by the Council, the board-designated assets are invested in funds with a primary objective of safety and liquidity. The objective of the restricted assets is to maintain the real purchasing power in order to support the Association's programs, initiatives and operations.

Strategies Employed for Achieving Objectives

To satisfy its long-term, rate-of-return objectives, the Association relies on a total return strategy in which investment returns are achieved through both capital appreciation (realized and unrealized) and current yield (interest and dividends). As a result, the Association has elected to adopt a well-diversified asset allocation consisting of equity and fixed income securities. The Association's current asset allocation for endowment funds targets a composition of between 40 to 80 percent in equities and 20 to 60 percent in fixed income funds.

Spending Policy and How the Investment Objectives Relate to Spending Policy

Expenditures from the board-designated net assets are released as approved by the Association's Council. The earnings on the temporarily restricted net assets are reinvested. Temporarily restricted net assets are released from restricted funds and are used in accordance with donor stipulations.

The changes in endowment net assets for the year ended June 30, 2012 are detailed for income, expenses, investment earnings, investment expenses and transfers on the supplemental statement of net assets by classification.

6. COMMITMENTS

The Association has entered into agreements for rental of space for the annual meeting. The Association is required to pay a portion of the anticipated room revenues in the event that the conference is canceled. Cancellation insurance has been obtained by the Association to offset any potential future losses. The Association anticipates that all minimum room rental requirements will be met.

7. RETIREMENT PLAN

The Association maintains a qualifying defined contribution retirement plan for qualifying full-time employees under Internal Revenue Code Section 403(b). The Association contributes up to a maximum of 10 percent of the employee's total annual compensation to the plan each year. The contributions are fully vested and nonforfeitable. For the years ended June 30, 2012 and 2011, contributions to the plan were $95,159 and $111,856, respectively. There were no contributions due to the plan at June 30, 2012 and 2011, respectively.

8. CONCENTRATION OF RISK

The Association maintains cash balances in a financial institution which is insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for amounts up to $250,000. The Association is exposed to concentrations of credit risk at times when cash balances exceed the FDIC limit. The Association has not experienced any losses and believes they are not exposed to significant risk.
