AMERICAN HISTORICAL ASSOCIATION

The AHA provides leadership for the discipline by protecting academic freedom, developing professional standards, supporting scholarship and innovative teaching, and helping to sustain and enhance the work of historians.

As the largest organization of professional historians in the world, the AHA serves historians representing every historical period and geographical area in a wide variety of professions. The AHA is a trusted voice for history education, the professional work of historians, and the critical role of historical thinking in public life.

Leadership

A leader in promoting new approaches to history education and scholarship and setting professional standards for the discipline

- Defining the disciplinary core of historical study
- Reconsidering introductory college history courses to better serve students of all backgrounds
- Advancing the history discipline and promoting excellence in professional behavior, research, and teaching with widely cited AHA Statements and Standards of the Profession
- Publishing analysis on the latest quantitative data about historians' education and careers

Advocacy

A vocal public presence articulating the value of history and historical thinking

- Promoting the value of history education
- Providing historical perspective on contemporary issues
- Supporting historians and safeguarding the relevance and usefulness of history in contemporary policy and civic life

Community

A platform for historians from all specializations and professions to discuss, disagree, and learn

- Connecting historians through our online community
- Advancing research, teaching, careers, and more at the AHA's annual meeting, the largest gathering of historians
